Senate Votes Restored ECA Bill

Billion Dollar Money Bill Is Vetoed By President

President Truman yesterday slammed his third veto in four days at Congress, choosing a $975,914,700 appropriation bill as his missile, a step rarely taken in appropriations measures.

The bill provided operating funds for the Social Security Administration, the United States Employment Service and part of the Public Health Service through the fiscal year starting next month.

He objected to a legislative rider "tacked onto" the bill transferring the Employment Service from the Labor Department to the Federal Security Agency.

First Veto Overridden

The Republican Congress, which overrode Mr. Truman's first veto of the three in double time, will attempt a repeat performance on the second and third.

His second saying "No" to the Bulwinkle bill exempting railroads from antitrust laws in the fixing of freight rates by agreement among themselves, will be called up in the Senate today. Some Democratic leaders claimed the votes to sustain it.

But the Administration's top men held out little or no hope that Congress will uphold his unexpected veto of the money bill yesterday.

In blocking the first such measure in three years, Mr. Truman himself remarked it was "unusual" to veto an appropriations bill but said the Employment Service transfer would be a "serious error." He said tying riders to money bills is an "unsound" way to legislate.

Adjournment Race Continues

In overriding his first veto Monday Congress clinched into law a bill which would bar some 750,000 semi-independent workers from Federal old-age insurance. A rider on that bill provided higher benefits for the needy aged, dependent children and the blind.

In receiving his third, Congress didn't skip a beat in its adjournment race, but some wondered if it was an ominous token of more

Congress Pushing For Saturday Wind-up

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Republican Congress last night headed for what looked like a late Saturday or early Sunday windup, but harried GOP leaders still kept their fingers crossed.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) told reporters: "I hope and think Congress will recess Saturday and not come back."

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.) agreed: "There is a very good chance."

But both delayed a final decision until later this week. Among the unanswered adjournment questions:

How many "must" bills would be left on the hook?

Does President Truman's first veto of a money bill in three years portend more such vetoes to follow, and a Government funds stalemate that might force Congress back?

Congress meanwhile maintained its back-breaking adjournment pace, with the Senate wading through its second night session in two days and the House scheduling a 10 a. m.-to-draft-passage finish tonight.

Scaling down the heavy workload by inches:

1. The House yesterday accepted by a voice vote the Senate's Vandenberg-Millikin compromise extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act and sent the one-year restricted measure to the White House and a possible veto.

2. The Senate battled all day

Operators End Negotiations With Lewis

By The Associated Press

Soft-coal contract negotiations broke down yesterday and the Government Conciliation Service stepped in in an effort to head off a Nation-wide strike.

Conciliation Director Cyrus S. Ching telegraphed both sides asking them to meet with him at 10:30 a. m. (EDT) Thursday.

Lewis summoned his 200-man policy committee to meet June 24 on "instructions."

Vacation Ends July 6

Presumably, those instructions will concern whether the miners are to go back to work after they have a vacation period beginning June 25.

The vacation period ends July 6. Meantime, the present working contract will expire June 30. The operators first announced the breaking off of negotiations on a new contract. They said the talks were "getting nowhere."

Then Lewis held a news conference and announced his call for a meeting of the United Mine Workers Policy Committee.

Lewis said that the group will be given a "full report" and will be asked for instructions for "any future plans."

Lewis also said that the key to the deadlocked negotiations was held by Benjamin F. Fairless, head of the United States Steel Corporation, and George M. Humphrey, chairman of the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co.

Lewis said history shows that "men beaten back into the mines are not good producers of coal."

He repeated again and again that he had been forced into the negotiations with the operators by a court injunction.

He said that a Nation-wide agreement could be negotiated within five days if Humphrey and Fairless gave the word.

"Bound to Fail," Says Lewis

Lewis said that "in the very nature of things" the kind of conference the court had directed "in free America was bound to fail."

"Negotiation under duress is distasteful to a free-born America," he said. "During the days of the conference we were only permitted to arrive at their pleasure and depart when weariness affected them

Serious Crime Hits New High In District

Reports of serious crimes—there were 8002 of them—hit a new peak in the District last year but more accurate police statistics rather than an upsurge of lawlessness was probably the answer.

This was the conclusion reached in the twelfth annual report of the Washington Criminal Justice Association made public yesterday.

The 8002 serious crimes reported to police during 1947 marked an increase of 1843 offenses or 23 per cent over the 6159 serious crimes reported in 1946.

It was the highest number of serious crimes for any year since the association began compiling crime statistics here in 1936.

"This increase," the association report said, "is for the most part due to the improvement of (police) reporting methods and is not indicative of any great real increase in the volume of actual crime."

The report observed that this is "probably the first time that a reasonably complete picture (of Washington's serious crime) has been available."

The new police crime reporting system was installed after The Washington Post last year exposed the then current police practice of "pocketing" thousands of reports of robberies and larcenies.

Because of this, the reports of crimes that were "pocketed" never found their way into police statistics and these statistics, naturally, were distorted.

Verified by FBI

The findings of The Washington Post were subsequently verified by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in a survey made at the request of the Police Department. Police here installed a new crime reporting system based on recommendations of the FBI.

Improved crime reporting procedures were put into effect in July, 1947, although the new revised system did not become actually operative until the first of this year.

The effect of The Washington Post disclosures can be readily seen in the statistics.

During the first six months of 1947 (before the story broke) serious crimes reported totaled only 3226, which is a mean average of 538 a month. During the second six months the total

House to Act On Housing Late Thursday

Post Reporter

The Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill will be up for House action at a late night session Thursday before Congress adjourns.

The House Rules Committee yesterday launched a war of nerves and threatened to shelve the measure unless the House Banking and Currency Committee would strike out provisions for public housing, slum clearance, urban redevelopment and rural housing.

Republican sources, who described the Rules Committee talks as "just a technical maneuver" and a "sham battle," conceded the Rules Committee threat has failed of its purpose.

Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.) of the Banking and Currency group, who opposes public housing and related provisions as "obnoxious," told the Rules group bluntly yesterday that he could not shake the 14-to-13 vote by which his committee sent out the T-E-W measure.

GOP stalwarts, who had originally hoped to change the votes of at least two of the three Republicans who voted with 11 Democrats to approve the T-E-W bill, admitted last night it was impossible. The two were Representative Hardie Scott (R., Pa.) and Representative William G. Stratton (R., Ill.)

That being so, the Rules group despite predictions from all sides that the T-E-W bill is dead, has no choice but to give floor clearance to the measure complete with public housing and all the other provisions Wolcott describes as "obnoxious," or to shelve housing altogether.

The Washington Post was told authoritatively last night that the Rules group is not going to shelve all housing for this year and therefore sometime today will approve the T-E-W measure for floor action.

The Rules Committee cannot it-

Segregation Ban in Draft Loses in Test

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Two attempts to bar racial segregation in the armed forces were voted down in the House late yesterday as the 19-through-25-years draft bill ran into its first heated floor battle.

An amendment offered by Representative Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.) to write a non-segregation clause into the preamble of the bill was rejected, 135 to 23, in the initial test vote.

Another such proviso was beaten 102 to 14 a short time later, as proponents charged they were being "gagged." But as the House quit for the day yesterday, Majority Leader Charles Halleck (R., Ind.) promised fuller debate on remaining amendments.

Long Day Ahead

This means a long day for the Representatives, for leaders want to pass the bill tonight, and the "civil rights bloc" alone have 26 more amendments.

Late last night, the Senate passed the 1949 naval appropriation bill—providing $3,866,733,250 to operate and expand the Navy during the next 12 months.

Action was by voice vote, after less than 30 minutes consideration. The measure now goes back to the House for vote on Senate increases totaling more than 125 million dollars.

Funds are included in the bill to lay down a giant 65,000-ton "flush-deck" aircraft carrier, capable of launching long-range planes bearing an atomic bomb.

Supplementary Defense Bill

Earlier in the day, the House received from its Appropriations Committee a supplementary spending bill carrying another $730,683,200 for defense next year.

The new spending measure—which leaders expect to pass this week—is largely for stockpiling, building overseas bases and expanding those in continental United States.

Only one other amendment to the draft bill was voted on during the first day's debate. Presented by Representative John H. Folger (D., N. C.) it would have barred the registration of any one under 21 years old for the draft.

After it was beaten, 77 to 32, Folger said he would offer a similar proposal to prohibit drafting anyone under 21.

Major Tests Loom

"At no other age is it so important for boys to remain at home," said Folger, an opponent of the bill.

Representative Paul W. Kilday (D., Tex.) opposed the age amendment. Unless Congress wants to draft married men and "the veterans who fought the war," he said, the 19-and-20-year-olders must be taken.

Two major tests of the draft may come early today. One is an amendment by Representative Frederic R. Coudert, jr. (R., N. Y.), to cut the period of service under the draft from 24 to 12 months and lower the maximum draft age from 25 to 21.

The other—presented by Representative Paul W. Shafer (R., Mich.)—would postpone any inductions under the bill at least until January 31, 1949. Draft calls then could be ordered only if the President and Congress found that

House Committee on Rules Approves U. S. Pay Hike Bills

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The House Rules Committee late yesterday gave its approval to two separate bills to raise the salaries of Federal workers—a flat $450 for postal workers and $360 for classified employes.

However, House action on the classified bill was definitely in doubt. Both Speaker Martin and Majority Leader Halleck made it plain that the House GOP Steering Committee had approved only the bill to raise postal salaries. Said Martin:

"I'll call another meeting of the Steering Committee in a day or so to consider the bill to raise salaries of the classified workers. I have no idea what the decision will be."

Earlier, Halleck had denied yesterday's report that the House GOP leaders had agreed to a compromise bill carrying the $450 and $360 pay raises. This word was given the House Civil Service Committee when it approved the measure in a special session.

Meantime, Senator Taft, the Senate GOP leader, promised the Senate would approve a bill before Congress adjourns to raise salaries of both postal and classified workers. Said Taft:

"If the House passes only a postal bill, we'll amend it in the Senate to include classified workers as well. We'll send it to conference and see what happens."

It begins to appear that the real hope of a general pay raise bill lies with Taft—provided he can obtain favorable action from the Senate in the next day or so. If action in either body is delayed until the last minute, pay raises for all employes will be a lost cause as House-Senate conferees won't have time to work out an acceptable agreement. And no pay legislation would please several congressional leaders.

The Rules Committee sent the pay bills to the House floor following a brief hearing. The measures met only minor opposition. The committee gave each bill a "closed" rule, which means that neither can be amended; that the House must either reject or approve them as written, provided the members get the opportunity to vote on them.

The "rule" provides that each bill is to be debated an hour. However, there was talk that the postal bill might be considered under a suspension of rules which would limit debate to 40 minutes.

Both bills were approved exactly as they had been reported out of

Final Vote Is 60 to 9; 12-Month Basis Back

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

By an overwhelming vote of 60 to 9, the Senate early today restored most of the cuts and wiped out most of the restrictions on foreign aid funds previously made by the House.

The total amount appropriated for all relief and recovery programs abroad was $6,215,710,000, of which four billion would be used for European recovery over a 12-months' period.

The bill now goes to a Senate-House conference which will try to iron out the differences between the two houses.

Twelve-Month Basis Restored

Almost as important as the final vote was an earlier 64-to-15 roll call putting the European recovery program back on a 12-month basis instead of spreading the funds over 15 months, as the House had proposed.

Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg of the Foreign Relations Committee, praising the appropriation bill as "highly acceptable," proposed the first roll-call vote because, he said, it was "highly important that the position of the Senate should be made unmistakably plain."

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), who led the fight last April to cut a billion dollars from the authorized funds, voted this time with Vandenberg and the majority.

In the coming Senate-House conference the overwhelming Senate vote will make it harder for the House conferees to insist on the 15-month period. The House itself took no roll-call when it adopted the 15-month device and in effect lopped more than a billion dollars from the European recovery funds.

On the other hand, a danger signal for ECA was seen in a Senate Appropriations Committee report yesterday hinting that the conference might well cut from 300 to 800 million dollars from the figures just approved by the Senate.

The report was a scathing attack on Government estimates submitted in support of the ECA program. The committee described its own bill as "a blank check against a balance-of-payment analysis that leaves any appropriation recommendation little more than a 'shot in the dark.'"

The final vote on the bill was delayed until after midnight, because of angry protests against a two-thirds slash in the proposed 60 million dollars' contribution to the International Children's Fund.

Unequal Distribution Feared

The committee had called for cutting the sum because much of it would be spent in eastern Europe where, according to Chairman Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), Communist governments were refusing to distribute food to the children of non-Communist parents.

Those who protested most bitterly were Senators Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), Claude Pepper (D., Fla.), Carl Hatch (D., N. Mex.) and Glen Taylor (D., Idaho.) Bridges replied that he would have favored a far bigger appropriation for this item if he could have been sure of equal treatment for all children in eastern Europe.

Bridges called for passage of the entire appropriation bill as "a venture in faith on the part of this Nation."

But he argued for caution in spending ECA funds because of "vast stores of American equipment dumped in foreign fields" and of "the production and wealth of American workers spent to no good

Soviet Ready To Discuss Danube Issue

Soviet Holds Up Coal

RUSSIANS HALT 140 carloads of coal bound for Berlin from British zone of Germany. Page 2.

Few Results Expected

Soviet Russia has agreed to hold a conference at Belgrade on July 30 to discuss freedom of navigation on the Danube, the State Department announced yesterday.

The date and site of the conference were proposed last month by the United States. The peace treaties with Italy and the Balkan satellites contained a declaration calling for free navigation on the Danube, and also provided for a conference of the four major powers and the river-basin countries to discuss the problem.

Officials here expect little if any success from the conference in view of the Soviet stranglehold on shipping from Linz, Austria, all the way to the mouth of the Danube in the Black Sea.

However, the conference is regarded here as important because it will be a clew to Soviet policies and attitudes elsewhere. President Truman and Secretary Marshall have said in recent weeks that Russia could demonstrate her will to peace by concrete action in international gatherings rather than in new two-country discussions with the United States.

Moreover, any Soviet concessions on Danube shipping would be interpreted here as a sign of Soviet concessions and possible agreement on the Austrian treaty, which has hung fire for more than two years.

The American delegation, therefore, will regard the Danube conference as a test of Soviet intentions. One of the first controversial issues at the conference

Sen. Cain Pins D. C. Pay Rises To Sales Tax

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) last night drew a big new question mark through the tangled District sales tax—pay increase picture.

Cain said if the proposed District sales tax fails to pass, as far as he is concerned the proposed pay increases for teachers, police and firemen, and wage scale employes of the Washington city government will die also.

Previously, the big "if" in teachers', police and firemen's pay legislation has been the question whether Congress would enact a general Federal pay boost.

While that question remained unsettled, Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) twice blocked Senate action on the sales tax bill, which Cain is sponsoring as the answer to the heavy new budget demands a general pay increase for all city employes would throw on the District.

Senator Johnston said yesterday as far as he is concerned there is going to be no sales tax for Washington. His answer is an increase in the Federal contribution of three to four million dollars over the present 12 millions a year.

Senator Cain told reporters he did not want to be argumentative, but that "I feel there is no reasonable way to increase the salaries of unclassified District workers if the sales tax bill is not passed."

He pointed out that some 7000 District employes who come under the Federal pay acts would share in any general Federal pay boost.

District officials calculated that the $360 annual pay increase now in sight for classified employes

Fire Department to Retire Two More Foes of Murphy

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Two more Fire Department battalion chiefs who testified against Fire Chief Clement Murphy will retire July 1.

Two other battalion chiefs who opposed the chief before the special trial board hearings in January were retired June 1. Since the hearings another opponent was transferred and a sixth promoted.

During the same period, three officers who testified or aided in the chief's defense against demoralization charges were promoted. Chief Murphy was acquitted of all charges by a unanimous board decision.

Chief Murphy last night vehemently denied any connection between the personnel changes and the trial. He declared, "None of those things has anything to do with my trial."

The two retirements approved yesterday by the District Commissioners were Battalion Chiefs Joseph E. Suit of 1310 Farragut st. nw. and Harold F. Harding of 5920 4th st. nw. Both retirements, which will become effective July 1, were based on physical disability. The chiefs will receive $260 a month.

The two previous retirements, also for physical disability, were Battalion Chiefs Carlisle S. Peterson and John L. Werheim. All four of the chiefs testified against Chief Murphy.

Murphy said the four officers had been ill and that the retirements had been approved by the Board of Fire Surgeons. "I did not even see the papers," he emphasized.

Tamm's Nomination to Bench Faces Pigeon-Hole in Senate

Edward A. Tamm's nomination to be associate justice of District Court is close to a Senate pigeonhole, it was indicated yesterday.

The nomination has been held up more than a month in the Senate Judiciary Committee headed by Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) following 2-1 subcommittee approval for Tamm.

Chairman Wiley predicted yesterday it would take a full day to consider the nomination in his committee, and another day on the Senate floor.

That much time is not in sight before the prospective adjournment Saturday.

Wiley denied, however, that the nomination could be considered dead. He said any Senator could bring it up, but would take responsibility for delaying other noncontroversial committee business. Tamm, No. 3 G-man, was opposed by the American and District Bar Associations.

Earlier, the Senate District Committee decided in executive session not to act on Judge Aubrey B. Fennell's nomination to continue for a 10-year term in Municipal Court.

Senate District Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) disclosed a protest against Fennell's appointment had been received from a Washington lawyer and civic leader. That protest, he said, would make hearings necessary, and there would be no time to hold them. He said Fennell is backed by the District Bar Association. He said Fennell would continue to hold office until a successor is qualified.

Strayer Picked To Make Survey Of D. C. Schools

Dr. George D. Strayer yesterday was appointed to conduct the $100,000 survey of District public schools authorized in the District Appropriations Act.

Truman Says He's Poured It On Till Congress Has Jitters

Aboard Truman Train en Route to Kansas City, Mo., June 15 (AP).—President Truman told Southwestern voters today he has been "pouring it on" Congress until "they've got the jitters" and "gone to work."

He told a crowd at Albuquerque, N. Mex., the issues before the country "are sharply drawn" as a result of his cross-country tour.

Mr. Truman spoke from the rear platform of his special car to a police-estimated 8000 persons assembled along the railroad tracks.

He said the issue now is between "the people," whom he said he represented, and "the special interests."

The President's remark about Congress having the "jitters" came during the course of his off-the-cuff talk when he said, "I drew the issue" in speeches about the country.

"Pour it on them," some one shouted from the crowd. The President has said repeatedly he is going to keep "pouring it on Congress."

Replying to the shout, he declared:

"I've been pouring it on them and they've got the jitters and they've gone to work."

The President appealed during other campaign appearances for votes as a man who has "done his damnedest."

In platform appearances en route to his home in Jackson County, Mo., the President kept up his running bombardment of Congress and his defense of his Administration.

Mr. Truman took cognizance of "a great many stories told about the President of the United States."

D. C. School Children, Staffs to See Much Of Dr. Strayer When Studying System

Dr. George D. Strayer, who yesterday was named to conduct a survey of Washington school facilities, will become a familiar figure to Washington school children and teachers when school convenes in the fall.

The comprehensive study planned by the 71-year-old educator will take him and members of his staff into every school building in the city where they will sit in on classes and interview teachers.

The survey will cover school construction needs, condition of school buildings, curriculum revision, personnel policies, finances, and growth of school enrollment resulting from population and housing trends.

Dr. Strayer, who visited the Board of Education, immediately after accepting his appointment, said he will go to work today setting up offices in Central High School and recruiting a staff of public school administrators from other sections of the country and of college and university professors.

His report, he said, will be submitted to Congress about the first of March.

A vigorous man, belying his years, Dr. Strayer chewed on a cigar yesterday while outlining his program.

Since his retirement in 1942 as professor of educational administration at Columbia University and director of field studies for the Institute of Educational Research, he has not been without a job for more than four or five weeks, he said.

He recently completed an eight-month survey of schools in California and before that conducted studies in Washington State and in Boston. His home when he is in it is in New York.

In Washington, he will make his home with his wife at the new Congressional Hotel.

Altogether, Dr. Strayer estimates he has directed studies of from 80 to 100 school systems throughout the United States.

"We usually find possibilities of improvement," he said, "but we work with and not against those in charge of the school system."

France Held Asking Change In Reich Pact

Paris, June 15 (U.P.).—The government, faced with a crucial foreign affairs vote in the National Assembly, reportedly appealed to the United States and Britain today to accept last-minute changes in the six-power London agreement on Germany.

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault conferred with United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery and British Ambassador Oliver Harvey. Jean Chauvel, secretary-general of the French Foreign Office, hurried to London last night to join French Ambassador Rene Massigli in conferences with British officials.

But, according to reliable sources, both Washington and London bluntly told the French they would not reopen talks on the London decisions to establish a western German government and an international Ruhr authority.

Debate in the Assembly was in its third day and critics of those decisions waxed longer and louder, demanding strict guarantees against possible German or Russian aggression and tighter control on Ruhr coal production.

Chauvel reportedly was trying to get the British to accept the French argument that the London decisions were mere "recommendations" which were not binding on the governments involved—France, Britain, the United States, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

U. S. Official Defies Soviet Export Probe

Representative Wolverton (R., N. J.) accused a high Commerce Department official yesterday of trying to keep from Congress information on exports to Russia.

Wolverton said at a House Foreign Commerce Committee hearing that Thomas C. Glaisdell, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, went on a three-week vacation Saturday although he had been asked to appear before the committee today.

"This is evasion of the highest order and must have serious consideration by this committee," Wolverton said. He is chairman of the group.

With the committee's consent, Wolverton immediately summoned Secretary of Commerce Sawyer to explain Blaisdell's action.

Sawyer hurried up to Capitol Hill. He asked that the committee hear him in a closed-door session.

When the closed-door hearing broke up, Wolverton told newsmen that Sawyer had promised to "order" Blaisdell back from his California vacation any time the committee requests his return.

Wolverton said Sawyer explained that Blaisdell was "in a very much rundown condition and absolutely in need of a rest."

But Wolverton, still angry over the incident, told reporters:

"Certainly any man could postpone his vacation from Saturday to Tuesday, no matter how badly he needs it."

Asked if he still felt Blaisdell had "defied" the committee, Wolverton replied, "I certainly do."

Sweden Shy Of Alliances

London, June 15 (AP).—A Swedish source said the United States and Britain have urged Sweden to join a regional defense alliance with Norway and Denmark.

Informal talks have been held in Washington, London and Stockholm, the informant added. Sweden has indicated unwillingness to enter into such a pact if the proposed Scandinavian alliance is to be linked to the existing Western European Union made up of Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The Swedes were said to have argued that such a formal turn to the west would anger Russia and that Sweden would get no compensating guarantee of military aid.

The informant said the Norwegian and Danish Ambassadors have emphasized to the British foreign office that their governments would regard it as unfortunate if the western alliance "closed its doors to the Scandinavian countries" because of the present deadlock.

Greeks Detain Polk's Widow

Athens, June 15 (AP).—Dwight P. Griswold, head of the American mission to aid Greece, said today two newsmen and the widow of George Polk, American radio correspondent slain at Salonika last month, are prohibited from leaving Greece by order of the police.

Michael Alianos, Greek press minister, said "absolutely no such an order has been issued."

Griswold said the order was issued by Constantine Rentis, Minister of Public Order, so the three could be questioned further in the investigation of Polk's mysterious death.

Those affected in addition to Mrs. Polk were listed by Griswold as Stephen Barber of the London News Chronicle, and Constantine Argyris of the Greek newspaper Vima.

Griswold said the name of Don Matcham, York, Pa., newspaperman, also had been on the list with the others but was scratched out. It was understood Matcham had left Greece several days ago but will return.

Mrs. Polk said her visa for the United States will expire in August and expressed fear she may not be permitted to leave before that time.

New Premier Takes Office In Prague

Prague, June 15 (U.P.).—President Klement Gottwald today swore in the new Czechoslovak cabinet and Labor Boss Antonin Zapotocky, 64, a militant Communist for 26 years, became the new Premier.

Zapotocky

The cabinet is virtually the same as that installed after the February coup. The only new face is Augustin Kliment, Communist labor leader, who becomes Minister of Industry. The former Minister, Social Democrat Zdenek Fierlinger, was promoted to a deputy premiership.

Josef Plojhar, Catholic priest, was returned to the ministry of Health. Archbishop Joseph Beran has suspended Father Plojhar from his religious duties for defying a church regulation and taking part in the government. Under canon law Plojhar faces possible excommunication in six months.

Thirteen of the 22 posts are held by Communists and three by Social Democrats whose party will merge with the Communists this month. Two posts went to Czech Socialists, two to the Peoples Party and one each to the two non-Communist Slovak parties.

Premier Zapotocky, regarded by many as "more powerful than the government," will submit the cabinet's program to Parliament Thursday.

will be the admittance of Austria to the conference as a leading Danube River country. The Russians still object that Austria is ineligible since the Austrian treaty has not yet been concluded.

Setting Is Interesting

One incidental benefit of the conference, it is felt here, will be its setting in Belgrade, the headquarters of the Cominform and the capital of Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia. It will be the first major international conference "behind the iron curtain" since the Moscow meeting of the Foreign Ministers in the spring of last year.

There is a hope in Washington that Tito will be on his best international behavior while the conference is meeting in his territory, and that tension in the Trieste trouble area will be at a minimum until the conference has ended.

Turin Strike Paralyzes Italy's Big Industries

Turin, Italy, June 15 (AP).—A 24-hour "white strike" called by the Communist-led Chamber of Labor paralyzed Turin's heavy industry today. It was Italy's biggest postelection strike.

The work stoppage was ordered after differences developed between the Lancia Automobile Co., Italy's second largest, and its employes over working hours.

London, June 15 (U.P.).—Longshoremen at the entire West India Dock section joined London's wildcat dock strike today, paralyzing almost all of Britain's important coastal shipping trade.

By midafternoon 4000 workers were out and 36 ships were lying idle awaiting unloading.

Reds Halt 140 Coal Cars at British Border

Berlin, June 15 (AP).—The Russians have halted 140 carloads of coal bound for Berlin from the British zone during the last 48 hours, British transport officials said today.

The cars were stopped in Marienborn, Soviet checkpoint on the British-Soviet zonal border. The action was another step in a series of moves to restrict the western Allies' transport between their zones and Berlin.

The Britsih said the Russians are not stopping whole trains but are ordering certain cars they consider defective cut out until they can be inspected.

American authorities said no freight trains from the United States zone have been halted since the 24-hour stoppage Saturday.

The British also revealed the Russians had suddenly closed three border transit points where German travelers from the Soviet zone cross into the British zone.

purpose whatsoever" in Europe since the war.

He also complained of the lack of "a firm, precise, stable and undisputed appropriation figure" in estimates presented to his committee. He charged that the executive branch of the Government had shifted its figures constantly as Congress questioned individual items.

"It is the earnest hope of the Appropriations Committee" he said, "that more realistic justifications shall be presented for any appropriation to be made after next January for further expenditures in 1949 and 1950."

The committee report was more hostile in tone and content than anything in Bridges' speech.

The report began by saying the United States had spent more than 63 billion dollars in "foreign aid" in the 7½ years ending last December—indicating the committee members regarded wartime lend-lease as "foreign aid."

It went on to complain of the "total inadequacy" of the Government's studies as a basis for a precise appropriation. The committee confessed it could not understand what the justifications, charts and tables meant, and charged that "they do not present a program of expenditures which anyone in authority is committed to follow, or intends to follow."

For these and other reasons, the committee reported, it was impossible to cut the appropriation for specific commodities, although "there are indications that the appropriations for ECA expenditures can be reduced from 300 million to 800 million dollars below the amount set in the authorization."

The committee made five recommendations to guide Administrator Paul Hoffman in the coming year, although none of these will have the binding force of law:

1. "A more businesslike and stable formula" should be used in asking for next year's ECA funds;

2. Hoffman should give the "watchdog committee" of Congress "full access to information it may procure from loyalty checks and other sources concerning personnel in responsible positions;"

3. Sharp watch should be kept on prices paid in so-called "offshore" purchases outside the United States;

4. Except under special circumstances, no ECA funds should be used to buy prices higher than the c[illegible] market price in the United States;

5. Expenses of administration abroad, including the purchase or hire of automobiles, should be met from foreign currency funds.

On Greece and Turkey, the committee defended its cut of 25 million dollars in military aid by saying that "the improvement of the military situation in Greece should provide a basis for reducing military expenditure in that country."

The committee said economic and military aid to China should be given generously "as part of the entire effort of this Nation to hold in check the spread of Soviet domination in improvished nations."

London, June 15.—Thomas K. Finletter, head of the European Cooperation Administration's mission to the United Kingdom, promised at his first press conference here today Britain would not be forced under the European Recovery Program to take any goods which are not essential to the nation's recovery.

More than one quarter of the $393,737,029 spent for Marshall Plan supplies has gone to buy wheat and flour for the 16 participating nations, it was disclosed last night.

Paul C. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation administrator, said that $717,600,000 has been spent for these grains, mostly for Italy, France and Austria.

enough volunteers had not been enrolled to fill up the ranks.

In the interim, under the Shafer amendment, enlisted pay would be boosted 25 per cent, two-year enlistments would be accepted, mental standards for entrance would be lowered to a score of 70, and Congressional committees woud keep close tab on recruiting efforts.

Leaders are confident the bill itself will pass by a substantial margin, but are fearful the Coudert and Shafer amendments—which would upset the draft program—will receive substantial support.

Coudert called the present draft plan "the harshest, most ruthless draft law in the Western world." "All of the civilized world outside the iron curtain," he declared, calls up men for a year only.

Host of Amendments

A host of other amendments are ready for presentation today, including provisos to create a "foreign legion" by enlisting 100,000 aliens in the Army, to exempt merchant marine war veterans and to write Army court-martial reforms into the draft bill.

The supplemental spending bill approved yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee carries $1,410,000 for installing a high-speed wind tunnel at the David W. Taylor Model Basin, Carderock, Md. Designed for testing models of trans-sonic planes, the 700-mile an hour tunnel was built by the Germans at their Ottobrun research base.

It is part of a $97,983,200 outlay in cash and contractual authority approved for expansion of naval bases. Major item is construction of a permanent naval operating base at Adak in the Aleutians, which Navy chiefs said had "No. 1 priority" because of its strategic location.

One million dollars is provided for a naval radio station in Greenland. The White Oak, Md., ordnance research station is allowed $2,275,000—$695,000 for facilities for research in explosives and the rest for completing the transfer of another wind tunnel from Germany.

The committee turned down a request for a $205,000 chapel at the Bethesda, Md., Naval Medical Center, but allowed $309,000 for a bombing range at the Patuxent, Md., air station.

Also approved was $32,700,000 for Army housing, mostly in Alaska, a cut of $7,300,000. Three hundred millions in cash and a like amount in contractual authority was voted for stockpiling strategic materials—part of a delayed three billion dollar program. All told, the House committtee cut $180,816,800 from the supplemental defense estimates before it.

The House met early yesterday—10 a. m.—to dispose of some preliminaries and take up the draft bill. Hope of finishing the bill last night was abandoned, and debate will be resumed at 10 this morning.

House Talks Short

In contrast to the three and four speeches during the Senate debate, yesterday's talk in the House largely was confined to five minutes orations. Longest address was a ten-minute affair by Missouri's golden-voice Dewey Short, which members rushed in from the lobbies and cloakrooms to hear.

Short, leader of the opposition forces, attacked the bill as unnecessary, destructive to American liberties, and ruinous to our productive system.

"I'm not so fearful of Russia as the thing she is hoping and praying for—economic collapse here," said the Missouri Republican.

Kilday replied, declaring that Short's eloquence had been exceeded only once before—"when he pleaded against renewal of selective service in August, 1941."

Representative Vito Marcantonio, American Labor Party member from New York, termed the bill a "step toward war." His Labor Party colleague, Representative Leo Isacson, also of New York, declared that the United States "is not threatened by the Soviet Union."

The veteran Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.) called the bill "unwise, unjust, undemocratic and un-American." Another Tarheel Congressman, Graham A. Barden, said the Army could get the men it needs voluntarily, if it "treated them fairly and paid them enough."

But Representative Walter G. Andrews (R., N. Y.) said the question "comes down to whether you want an army or not." And Representative James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) said the House was hearing the same arguments against a draft that were raised in 1940-41.

When the first of the racial segregation amendments was offered, it was strenuously opposed by Representatives John Rankin (D., Miss.) and Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.), both of whom also attacked the draft bill.

Representative Harold D. Cooley (D., N. C.) said he doubted if the Negro wants anti segregation. He declared that he knew of no Congressman from the South "who has heard from any Negro in his district in support of such proposals."

Representative Adam Powell (D., N. Y.), leader of the civil rights bloc, called for adoption of the amendments to repeal the "second class citizenship status of the Negro."

After debate was cut short on the second civil rights amendment, Powell, by a parliamentary maneuver, won a promise there would be no "gagging" today. Late in the day, when President Truman's veto of the supplemental Federal security appropriation was received, he objected that no quorum was present.

The veto message had to be received that day and most members were on their way home. After some discussion, Powell withdrew his no quorum objection and told reporters Majority Leader Halleck had promised to permit reasonably full discussion of his other civil rights amendments. He warned that he would throw in other such parliamentary money-wrenches during the closing days of the session, if the leaders moved to shut off debate.

ERP Finance Bill Blocked

Senator Bricker (R., Ohio) blocked final Senate action yesterday on a bill designed to make it easier for the International Bank to help finance the European Recovery Program.

The Senate passed the bill unanimously, but half an hour later Bricker filed a motion to reconsider the action. This, in effect, will prevent the measure going to the House.

Bricker said he is opposed to the bill but was out of the Senate chamber when it went through without dissent. He said no hearings have been held on the legislation.

The measure would exempt securities of the bank from the Securities Exchange Act, removing what the banking committee called "technical marketing obstacles" to its financing operations in this country.

The bill also would permit State banks which are members of the Federal Reserve System to deal in and underwrite the International Bank's securities.

GOP Weighs Six Delegate Disputes

Philadelphia, June 15 (AP).—Six delegate disputes—two of them involving Negro recognition—neared a showdown today as Republican preconvention skirmishing hit high gear.

Lawyer Ezra R. Whitla of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, chairman of the convention contest committee, said at least three of the disputes—Georgia, South Carolina and Alaska—are "serious contests."

Meanwhile, candidate headquarters were running full blast. Campaign managers buttonholed early-arriving delegates, called press conferences, huddled over their voting plans.

Backers of Harold E. Stassen announced he will be the first major candidate to reach the convention scene. The former Minnesota Governor is due Thursday. New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft are expected over the weekend.

At huge Convention Hall last-minute preparations were hurried for the accommodation of some 16,000 delegates, alternates and favored spectators.

In addition to the Georgia, South Carolina and Alaska delegate disputes, there are controversies on representation for Maryland, Mississippi and the District of Columbia. Whitla said he had not had adequate opportunity to appraise the latter three but is studying briefs of the opposing factions.

He will report to the 40-member contest committee "probably some time tomorrow," Whitla said.

That also is the time set for a final meeting of the 32-member arrangements committee, headed by Walter Hallanan of West Virginia. Hallanan's group will approve the program for the convention which opens Monday. Drafting of the platform begins Thursday.

Whitla's committee will send the delegate disputes and recommendations to the entire national committee of the party, meeting Thursday morning. The national committee sits as a jury in the contests.

Decisions of the national committee may be appealed to the credentials committee of the convention. And a further appeal is allowed from the floor of the convention if a dissatisfied delegate chooses.

Whitla said the Alaskan dispute involves two sets of delegates, one named by the Republican Central Committee of Alaska and the second named by the Republican clubs.

The recognition of Negroes is an issue in both the Mississippi and South Carolina battles.

In South Carolina two groups of six delegates and alternates have been named. One delegation was named by a faction headed by J. Bates Gerald of Charleston, S. C., who won recognition for his group in both the 1940 and the 1944 conventions.

The second group was named by a GOP faction headed by B. L. Hendrix of Estill, S. C., and I. S. Leevy of Columbia.

Although the Hendrix-Leevy crowd claims the Gerald faction is anti-Negro, both delegations include Negroes.

The Gallup Poll

Vandenberg Choice After GOP Big 3

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 15.—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg is not only one of the three most popular candidates among Republican voters for the 1948 nomination but is also the man whom most of the supporters of Governor Dewey, Harold E. Stassen and Senator Taft favor for the nomination in case a deadlock develops among those three leaders.

That fact is brought out in the latest institute poll among GOP voters. Approximately seven out of every 10 Republican voters (69 per cent) favor either Dewey, Stassen or Taft, and when these voters were asked to indicate their next choice in case neither Dewey, Stassen nor Taft can muster enough votes to win nomination, by far the largest proportion unite in choosing Senator Vandenberg. Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Gov. Earl Warren of California rank next, with Joseph Martin Speaker of the House of Representatives, next.

The following two tables give (1) the first choice of the Republican rank and file as indicated in polling which took place between May 27 and June 7 and (2) the second choices of the supporters of Dewey, Stassen and Taft in the event that a deadlock develops.

FIRST CHOICE

Stassen	26
Taft	10	69%
Dewey	33
Vandenberg	13
MacArthur	11
Warren	2
Joseph Martin	1
No choice	4

The 69 per cent who favor Dewey, Stassen or Taft were then asked:

If neither Dewey, Stassen nor Taft can get a majority of votes at Philadelphia and have to drop out of the race, who would then be your choice for the Republican nomination for President?

The vote:

CHOICE OF DEWEY, STASSEN, TAFT FOLLOWERS IN CASE OF DEADLOCK

Vandenberg	31%
MacArthur	13
Warren	10
Martin	4
Others	1
Would prefer a Democrat	1
No choice	9
	69%

Senator Vandenberg has repeatedly declared that he is not seeking the nomination and has no interest in it.

But just as repeatedly, political commentators and observers have kept saying that there is a likelihood of a "draft Vandenberg" movement at the convention if the candidates who have been actively seeking the honor show signs of weakness when the balloting begins at Philadelphia.

Warren Sees Fate of World In GOP Hands

(By a Washington Post Reporter)

Portsmouth, N. H., June 15.—Gov. Earl Warren of California today said that next week's Republican convention will "determine the course of world history for many years to come."

Here for a conference of governors, Warren told a reporter for The Washington Post:

"America is at the crossroads. The Republican Party is at the crossroads. Given a progressive GOP administration, the United States will go forward to an era of prosperity and peace that will benefit the world.

"But should the forces of reaction triumph, their victory will be short lived. It will be followed by a swing to the left—to the extreme left—that will plunge America into dark days that will give totalitarian aggressors a free hand throughout the world."

Warren is confident of a Republican victory this fall. But he is worried about how it will be achieved. He declared that "how the Republicans win is more important than winning."

A progressive, forward-looking Administration, Warren said, is one that "takes a firm stand on the problems that beset the average American today." These problems include:

1. Adequate, decent housing.
2. Some way to protect families against the disaster of catostrophic illnesses.
3. Sound education opportunities for all.
4. Strengthened and broaden social security, to protect all from poverty in old age.

Stassen, Confident, Going To Philadelphia Today

Minneapolis, Minn., June 15 (U.P.).—Harold E. Stassen today said he was going to Philadelphia confident of the Republican presidential nomination and denied that he had made any commitments to accept second place.

He repeated an earlier prediction that he would win on the ninth ballot, but said that he, Taft and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York would be matched closely on the first ballot.

He also conceded there was "some prospect" of a dark horse moving into the field in event of a Stassen-Taft-Dewey deadlock. In this event, he said he believed Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg would be a "strong contender."

'How's the Governor . . .?'

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON AND DAUGHTER—According to Dorothy Warren (left), 17, politics and not merely the weather was the topic of discussion when she and Thomas E. Dewey, jr., 15, met yesterday at Hampton Beach, N. H. Dorothy is the daughter of the Governor of California and Dewey is the son of the New York State chief executive. Their fathers are attending the Governor's Conference at New Castle, N. H.

New Castle, N. H., June 15 (U.P.).—National Comdr. James F. O'Neill announced today that the American Legion will conduct a country-wide, doorbell-ringing campaign this fall to turn out the "greatest vote in the Nation's history."

O'Neill revealed plans for the campaign at the fortieth annual National Governors' Conference after telling the chief executives that it was a "sad commentary on our democratic system when you think that only 46 per cent of the people voted in 1946."

He said that local Legion posts would provide baby-sitters and transportation to "get out the vote" and that the campaign would be conducted on a nonpartisan basis in accordance with the Legion's charter.

The campaign will be started in about 45 days, O'Neill said.

He said the Italian and Korean elections should be an example to the American people by showing that a heavy turnout can prevent the "possibility of minority rule-gaining control by default."

O'Neil also told the Governors that the legion planned to revive its disaster-relief set-up and that it would be coordinated with local defense agencies.

"If we are to survive surprise assaults at the hands of an enemy or the elements," he said, "we must have a civil defense and disaster system capable of full-scale operation at the drop of a hat . . . the problems of maintaining law and order, transportation, medical and evacuation facilities cannot be left to eleventh-hour decisions."

Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, who presided at a round table discussion on the States, suggested to the conference that government be revitalized on the local level "as a means of preventing socialism."

He said the passage of a bill giving Pennsylvania communities "practically unlimited power to tax" had increased the interest in government and the problems it must face.

of this country," he said. "To say what you please about anybody you please—that is, if you can back it up."

That was at Winslow, Ariz., a Navajo Indian band with red plaid shirts and red head-bands had played "The Missouri Waltz" beside the railroad track.

The President, grinning and waving at the crowd, said he thought "the greatest epitaph in the country" was at Tombstone, Ariz. It says, he went on, "Here lies Jack Williams. He done his damnedest."

"I think that is the greatest epitaph a man could have," the President told the crowd. "Whenever a man does the best he can, then that is all he can do and that is what your President has been trying to do for the last three years for this country.

Urges Study of Issues

"I sincerely hope you will familiarize yourselves with the issues, and when the lines are drawn, after these two great conventions meet, I want you to make up your minds to what you think is best for the country, and then do just that, and if I have been at all convincing, I know you will do the right thing."

The President, en route back to Washington, is due in Kansas City tomorrow. He will drive from the station to his home in Independence to spend the night and visit his brother and sister at Grandview, Mo. They are J. Vivian Truman and Miss Mary Jane Truman.

Mr. Truman, in his talk at Winslow, renewed his expression of hope that Congress will pass price control, housing and other legislation before quitting for the GOP convention at Philadelphia.

"I am going back to Independence, Mo., and see the family, and then go on to Washington and finish up the necessary work that has to be done there when the Congress adjourns," Mr. Truman said. "I am sincerely hoping that some of the things in which I am vitally interested will be accomplished by that time."

Old Friends Picked Up

The President's homebound train stopped long enough in Ash Fork to pickup two old friends of the Trumans for the ride into Winslow and for the postmaster, W. L. Conger, to shake hands with the Chief Executive.

"Howdy do, President Truman," he said.

Other townspeople surrounded the platform of the private car to chat with the Chief Executive and voice their friendly greeting, "howdy."

The President made an appearance in pajamas and dressing gown last night at the little California town of Barstow.

"I had gone to bed," he told the crowd, grinning, "but got up."

Mrs. Fred N. Holmquist and Mrs. Lester Finch of Phoenix, boarded the train at Ash Fork for the ride into Winslow.

Mrs. Holmquist was greeted by her brother, Charles G. Ross, the President's secretary, whom she had not seen for 28 years.

Both she and Mrs. Finch are old friends of the President and Mrs. Truman. All four attended the Independence (Mo.) High School as did Ross.

Stop at Gallup

At Gallup, N. Mex., a crowd estimated at 3000 this afternoon also heard Mr. Truman say "The issue is clearly drawn—it is one of special privilege against the people as a whole."

"That is the issue I have made clear in my talks on this trip," the President said. "The issue is whether you want the special privilege boys to run this country or to keep it in the hands of the people you know you can trust and on whom you can depend.'"

Mr. Truman put in a plug for his former Secretary of Agriculture, Clinton P. Anderson, who resigned from the Cabinet to campaign for the U. S. Senate, and also praised the service of Senator Carl Hatch (D., N. Mex.), who is retiring.

"You will be electing a Senator here pretty soon," said Mr. Truman. "I hated to give him up from my Cabinet and I am sorry to see Senator Hatch retire. But when Anderson takes up things where he left off you can be sure they will be run to the best interests of the people of New Mexico."

Anderson, who had the President's indorsement, last week won the Democratic nomination handily against J. J. Dempsey, National Democratic committeeman and former Governor. Anderson and Secretary of Interior Julius A. Krug boarded the presidential train here.

GOP Leaders Harried as Congress Works to End Session before voting four million dollars to start a House-blocked TVA steam generating plant in New Johnsonville, Tenn., and then passed the $43,422,061 Government corporation bill viva voce.

Farm Bill Debate Opens

3. The Senate approved a House-passed $3,686,733,250 appropriation bill in 30 minutes, and opened debate on another bogged GOP "must"—long-range farm legislation, setting up a permanent system of farm price supports.

4. The apparently doomed Federal oleo tax repealer got off to a false start in the Senate before it was stopped short by debate on a civil rights rider.

With a bill restoring most of the House ECA cut awaiting floor action, the Senate spent most of the day debating the TVA steam plant, knocked out by the House and revived by a Senate committee.

Pleas by Acting Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) for "expeditious action" failed to speed up the floor play on what had already developed into a public versus private power issue.

Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.) moved to block construction of the plant by a rarely used point of order against "new legislation" on an appropriation.

Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) "reluctantly" overruled Kem after valley Senators vigorously disputed his contention that the amended TVA Act contemplated no such construction. Vandenberg told Kem he could appeal his ruling to the Senate, but the Missourian declined.

TVA opponents next tried to vote down any funds for the plant. Republican Senators Split. Senators Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.) argued taxpayers in other States were supporting a Government power "subsidy," drawing industries from other sections.

But Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) and John Sherman Copper (R., Ky.) sided with the Southern supporters of the project, contending steam plant generation is needed to "firm up" TVA hydroelectric power when water supplies are low.

Oak Ridge Need Cited

A plea by Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) that the plant was necessary to assure "emergency" power reserves for the Oak Ridge atomic energy ended the bitter debate. Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho) criticized McMahon for raising the point on short notice and McMahon said he should have looked into it himself.

On a roll-call vote, the Senate approved the four-million-dollar steam plant 45 to 37 and then voted TVA and overall $30,972,061. The bill, also carrying funds for the Public Housing Administration, the Home Owners Loan Corporation, the Virgin Islands Company, and other Government corporations, later passed by a voice vote. The steam-generating issue now goes to a sharply divided House-Senate conference committee for a session's end showdown.

The oleo repealer, which leaders have announced will die if Congress adjourns Saturday, was unexpectedly called up by Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) during the Senate's "morning hour," usually reserved for noncontroversial measures.

Langer Blocks Action

The Senate voted 57 to 26 to take it up after Fulbright termed the by-passing strategy "disgraceful." But Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.) promptly offered the anti-lynching bill, an open invitation to a fillibuster, as a rider and the Senate turned to other business.

These other major bills are apparently in the same doomed category if Congress adjourns for keeps Saturday.

Federal aid to education, passed by the Senate but in a House committee pigeonhole.

The House-passed Mundt-Nixon anti-Communist measure and the House-passed tidelands bill, locked in the same Senate committee.

Antilynching legislation, favorably reported by committees in both Houses and the House-passed antipoll tax bill, high and dry on the Senate calendar.

Federal pay raise legislation was definitely slated for Senate action but the House outlook was so confused that only postal salary increases may be finally approved.

In Doubtful Class

In the doubtful class also was farm legislation, with conflicting bills docketed in both Houses.

Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) last night told the Senate the outlook is slim for any farm legislation or even Commodity Credit Corporation extension if the Senate fails to clear up his long-range price supports today. He sharply criticized the "stop-gap" farm measure proposed in the House, and voiced hope for a "workable" compromise in conference.

Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) said House and Senate GOP leaders better "get together pretty fast" on a farm measure and Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) suggested a simple extension of present price supports as a last resort.

Third Veto In 4 Days

vetoes to come. Only in event Congress sustains the veto and lets the bill die will a serious adjournment problem be posed. In that case, vital Federal agencies would be left without funds unless Congress rushed through a new bill, or returned after the conventions to do so.

The money bill rider to which Mr. Truman objected was attached in the House. It originally was knocked out of the bill by the Senate, but restored in modified form by a Senate-House Conference Committee.

When the conference committee decision was placed before the Senate last week, the transfer of the USES was sharply criticized by a number of Republicans and Democrats, including Senators Alben Barkeley (D., Ky.), Wayne Morse (R., Ohio), and George D. Aiken (R., Vt.).

The Senate finally approved the bill after Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.), said it was "the best we could get" out of the House conferees. He pointed out that it was urgent to provide funds for the agencies before Congress adjourns.

President Truman, in his veto message, denounced the rider as "unwise legislative action, enacted in an unsound manner."

"I do not believe it is in the interest of good government that legislation of such importance should be enacted in such a manner," he said.

He pointed out that he has objected previously to the practice of trying to slip a law past a Presidential veto by tacking it onto a different bill such as an appropriation, and that Congress itself has rules against the practice.

He said that in approving the measure Congress had also "acted contrary to its own declared position" on another count. Earlier this year, Mr. Truman presented to Congress a reorganization plan calling for placing the Employment Service permanently in the Labor Department, and coupling it with the Bureau of Employment Security, which is now in the Federal Security Agency.

Congress rejected the plan, "principally on the ground that no basic changes should be made in the structure of the Executive branch" until the Hoover Commission on Government Organization makes its report, Mr. Truman said.

"But in this bill," he went on, "Congress has attempted to effect a far-reaching change in the organization of the Executive branch without waiting for the commission to report."

The net effect of the rider would be to do what Mr. Truman recommended in just the opposite way from his plan. The Employment Service and the Unemployment Insurance Agency would be combined in the Security agency rather than in the Labor Department.

The President said the rider was simply "another in a series" of congressional actions "stripping the Department of Labor of essential funds and functions."

Pointing out that the Congress already had "removed the United States Conciliation Service from the department and drastically slashed the department's appropriation," he said:

"To remove the United States Employment Service from the department would further weaken and demoralize it and reduce the entire department to such a minor status as to raise seriously the question of the validity of its continuance as a separate department."

Alexandria Names Russell A. Hawes Police Inspector

Lieut. Russell A. Hawes, Alexandria detective chief since 1941, was promoted to the rank of inspector yesterday by City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto.

Hawes

The promotion, effective today, was made on the recommendation of Maj. Edgar Sims, police superintendent. It will mean no change in Hawes' duties or his present $4000 annual salary.

Hawes joined the department in 1931 as a patrolman. In 1937 he was made a detective and in the same year he was graduated from the FBI National Academy in Washington. He succeeded Sims as head of the detective bureau when the latter became police chief in 1941.

Truman Gets 1-Year Trade Pact Measure

By the Associated Press

Congress yesterday sent President Truman a trade agreements bill that he doesn't like and may veto.

The House passed the measure by voice vote, accepting amendments added by the Senate. The Senate approved the bill Monday, 68 to 10, over Democratic protests that it would wreck the foreign trade program.

The bill revives for one year the Trade Agreements Act that lapsed Saturday night. It requires the President to wait up to four months, while the Federal Tariff Commission investigates, before making tariff agreements with foreign countries.

Mr. Truman and Secretary of State Marshall, backed by nearly every Senate Democrat, urged that the act be extended for three years without any curbs on the President's tariff-making authority.

Possibility Mentioned

The possibility of a veto was mentioned by several Senators. They said there was a good chance that the Senate, if not the House, would sustain a veto. Democrats came within a few votes Monday of changing the Senate bill to provide a two- or three-year extension.

But there also were predictions that Mr. Truman would accept the present bill as better than none and hope that Congress would give him one more to his liking later.

Representative Doughton (D., N. C.), author of the original act that was sponsored by then State Secretary Cordell Hull, said he hoped Mr. Truman would not resort to a veto. He took the position that the GOP-sponsored bill is better than letting the trade act die.

House Republican Leader Halleck, of Indiana, told reporters: "Another reckless political veto might well mean an end to the reciprocal trade program."

Congress Veto Cut Out

The present bill omits a provision that would give Congress the power to veto a presidential tariff cut if it was greater than the Tariff Commission recommended. The House voted this provision but the Senate struck it out and the House didn't object.

Senators Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and Millikin (R., Colo.) drafted the bill that finally was adopted with minor changes.

This requires the President to notify the Tariff Commission whenever he plans to negotiate a tariff agreement. The commission must hold hearings on every item under discussion. Then it must recommend "peril points" below which tariffs should not be cut—in the commission's opinion—in the interest of United States producers.

An amendment adopted Monday requires the commission to make its report within four months. The President can disregard the commission's findings. But if he does so, he must tell Congress his reasons within 30 days.

Most Restrictions Off On Jap Foreign Banks

Tokyo, June 15 (U.P.).—Allied headquarters announced today that nearly all restrictions on operations of foreign banks in Japan have been relaxed.

T. Em Beplat, headquarters banking chief, described the action as "another step in the gradual loosening of controls on foreign business here."

He said the new regulations will permit the banks to engage in all normal banking functions except to enter into direct competition with Japanese banks for Japanese business.

German Industrialist Cleared Without Penalty

Hamburg, Germany, June 15 (AP).—Hugo Stinnes, reputed to be Germany's richest industrialist, has been cleared without penalty by a German denazification court.

The court, in Duesseldorf, declared there was no case to answer.

He was placed in category five, the lowest grading of Nazi, applied only to men having nominal party membership.

Tuck Asked To Extend Auto Inspection Limit

Virginia State Senator Charles R. Fenwick yesterday urged Gov. William Tuck to extend last night's midnight deadline for auto inspection 15 days because of overcrowded inspection stations.

Fenwick

In a telegram to Tuck, Fenwick said it was "impossible for many cars to complete inspection" due to the last-minute jam in the 67 garages and service stations in Arlington, Alexandria and Fairfax designated as official inspection points.

State Police Chief W. T. Woodson earlier had warned that there would be "positively no extension" of the deadline.

Seven Try to Crash 600 on Picket Line

Dayton, Ohio, June 15 (AP).—Seven workers tried to crash a 600-man picket line at the Univis Lens Co. today and touched off a fast hour of punching, kicking, shoving, heaving and shouting.

None of the men and women responding to a company appeal for a back-to-work movement after 42 days of strike idleness could get through the line.

Some of the first seven to buck it were picked up and carried back into the street. Others were just pushed back in the climax to a strike called May 5 by Local 768 of the United Electrical Workers (CIO) to back up unannounced wage demands.

Roy T. Marks, vice president in charge of sales, was knocked down, kicked, and slugged, when he tried to cut a chain and padlock on the main gate. He also lost his glasses and a shoe but was not seriously hurt. He said the union put the chain there.

He denounced "the uncooperative attitude" of police. Eighteen officers were at the scene but Inspector F. G. Krug flatly refused to escort anyone through the line on grounds that an injunction limiting picketing gave police no authority to make arrests without warrants.

Marks said assault and battery charges would be filed against all who were recognized in the fighting. He also planned to seek a stronger injunction limiting picketing further. No attempt will be made to reopen the plant until then, he said.

Marks said between 300 and 400 production and maintenance workers among the 658 affected by the strike wanted to go back to work. He told them to go home 45 minutes after they came.

5 Maritime Unions Set New Strike Date

San Francisco, June 15 (AP).—Five West Coast maritime unions today set a new date for a strike—precisely on the day that a Federal injunction obtained by the Government yesterday is due to expire.

The union repersentatives:

Set 10:30 a. m., June 24, for the new strike date.

Urged all unions to "intensify strike mobilization."

Reminded all union members that, under the injunction, they retain such "rights" as "the right to quit for safety or other legitimate reasons."

The committee which announced the decisions and sent out its recommendations represented four CIO organizations—International Longshoremen and Warehousemen; Marine Engineers' Benevolent Association; National Maritime Union; Marine Cooks and Stewards—and one AFL, the Marine Radio Officers of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The statement to the membership said the committee was without official authority to postpone the strike, due to begin at 12:01 a. m. tomorrow because of failure to negotiate a new contract retaining the present union hiring hall setup. Nevertheless, the committee said it recommended the new strike date, while work continued under terms and conditions of the expiring contract.

The recommendation added that union members continue "militantly guarding their rights and working conditions."

Crux of the dispute has been the hiring hall. The shipowners contend that the hiring hall, as presently set up with a union man supervising, is illegal under the Taft-Hartley Act.

Truman Blocked Rail Accord, Unions Claim

By The Associated Press

Three railroad union chiefs said yesterday it was President Truman who blocked agreement in the rail labor dispute.

He did it, they told a Senate Labor Subcommittee, by insisting that any settlement must come within the recommendations of the emergency board appointed by himself.

The testimony came from heads of the unions which called a narrowly averted strike last month: David B. Robertson of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Fireman and Enginemen, Alvanley Johnston of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and A. J. Glover, the AFL Switchmen's Union.

Glover said they are convinced that a settlement could have been made "except for the attitude of the President," who, Glover said, "insisted we must accept the report of the board."

Hold Board Findings Not Binding

The union take the position that, under the Railway Labor Act, findings of these boards are not binding on either side.

But Daniel P. Loomis, testifying for the railroad managements, said the unions have a moral obligation to accept emergency board reports. Besides, Loomis said, Mr. Truman asked only a settlement "within the framework" of the board's report.

John R. Steelman, the White House assistant who handled the rail negotiations for Mr. Truman, declined to comment on the union statements. He said he is "still hopeful" of working out a settlement that will suit both sides.

Loomis said the unions apparently want "not only substantial increases in wage rates but separate and additional pay for nearly everything they do other than running the engines over the road."

The emergency board three months ago proposed a wage raise of 15½ cents an hour and certain changes in working rules. The railroads and most of the rail labor organizations agreed to it. The three unions represented today did not.

They called a strike. When last-minute negotiations failed to avert it, President Truman seized the railroads and got a court order forbidding the strike.

More Interested in Rules Changes

Glover said there has been "speculation" that Mr. Truman promised A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, that he wouldn't let other unions get a better settlement than the trainmen got.

Operators End Lewis Talks

—which is a most astounding type of collective bargaining."

It was only due to a court order that Lewis had negotiated at all with the Southern Coal Producers Association.

That group did not join with other coal operators in breaking off negotiations.

The Southern Coal Producers Association, which mines one third of the Nation's soft coal, served notice that it is ready to bargain with Lewis—separately if necessary.

The Southern Association, headed by Joseph E. Moody, was included in the industry-wide negotiations at the order of Justice T. Alan Goldsborough.

The negotiations previously had broken down on May 19 over the question of letting Moody take part.

The operators said that Lewis had insisted on "activating" the 1947 welfare fund before discussing a new contract.

In announcing that negotiations had been halted, Charles O'Neill said for the operators:

"Further meetings may mislead the public and Government agencies by creating the impression that an agreement may be effected by these conferences.

"It is our judgment that no agreement can be achieved by the conferences now in session and the public and the Government is thus informed.

"We're recessing the sessions until some later development which would give cause to hope an agreement can be negotiated."

O'Neill said Lewis has taken the position that it was not a joint conference of miners and operators and that he was "there under duress and at our mercy," O'Neill said.

On the first day of the meetings, Lewis forced the operators to select their own chairman and secretary, while the mine workers did likewise. In other negotiations, there has been one chairman and one secretary for the joint talks.

O'Neill issued a lengthy statement on the position of the operators throughout the meetings, which showed how they differed with Lewis.

The chief obstacle, in the operators' opinion, was Lewis' insistence that on putting into operation the 1947 welfare fund, now totaling more than 40 million dollars, before he would discuss a new contract.

Judge Goldsborough will hear arguments on the dispute over spending the 1947 millions on Saturday.

N. Y. Printer Talks Halted

New York, June 15 (U.P.).—The question of union jurisdiction over varitype operators caused a breakdown in contract negotiations today between 13 New York daily newspapers and Local 6 of the International Typographical Union (AFL).

The union said it was referring the dispute to its international office in Indianapolis. The ITU contract with the newspapers expired March 31.

William Mapel, vice chairman of the Publishers Association of New York, which represents the newspapers, said the deadlock arose over union demands for jurisdiction over operators of varitype machines. Varityping is the new process which has enabled some strikebound newspapers to continue publication.

Mapel said agreeing to the union's demands would "cede the bargaining rights of present and future employes" and would violate the Taft-Hartley Law.

Laurence H. Victory, president of Local 6, said the question of jurisdiction over varitypers is a "vital issue" to the union.

Fairlington Tenants List Grievances

Fairlington Association representatives are scheduled to meet tonight with William Ziegler, general manager of Fairmac Corp., to discuss tenant-management issues.

Clate Cox, association vice president, yesterday listed these as:

1. Corporation employes' action in ripping out tenants' flower beds in the 3500-apartment development in nearby Virginia.

Playground Space Limited

2. Corporation limitation of playground space to 12 of Fairlington's 27 blocks, which tenants complain is insufficient.

3. "Deterioration of service" since Fairmac Corp. assumed ownership from Defense Homes Corp., Government agency which developed and operated Fairlington.

4. "Reluctance" of Fairlington owners to discuss or arrange transfer of land in the northern end of the development for use as a school site.

Cox said Ziegler's answers on the issues will be relayed to members of the tenants' association at a mass meeting set for Thursday, June 24.

Sales Investigated

As the breach between tenants and management widened yesterday, Senator A. Willis Robertson, (D., Va.), declared himself "very happy" that the Senate Investigating Subcommittee is looking into the Defense Homes Corp. sale of Fairlington and McLean Gardens to the Fairmac Corp.

Fairmac, Robertson said, appears to have received such favorable terms from the Government that Congress should review the transaction. The Senator also said he supported the tenants in their protests over destruction last week of flowers and shrubs planted in Fairlington.

U. S. Warships on Greek Duty Greatest Since War

Athens, June 15 (AP).—The largest number of United States warships since the war were anchored in Greek waters today.

Ten more vessels arrived in Suda Bay, Crete, yesterday, in preparation for replacing an equal number already at Crete. Comdr. Morton Sunderland, United States Naval Attache, said 12 or 14 of the 24 ships in Greek ports, including the carrier Philippine Sea, soon will return to America.

Tenants to Fight Plan to Hike Apartment Rents

Tenants are expected to put up a stiff battle today against a proposed 10 per cent rent hike for 666 units at Greenway Apartments, a housing development at Minnesota ave. and East Capitol st.

Tyson

Joseph Forer, attorney for 120 of the tenants, said he had obtained subpenas for Owner Morris Cafritz to appear with his income and expense records at the hearing, which begins at 9:30 a. m. before Rent Control Examiner James G. Tyson.

If rent control hearing rooms at 1740 Massachusetts ave. nw., are too small to accommodate the crowd, said Tyson, he will move the hearing to the District Building board room Thursday.

At a hearing before Tyson yesterday, tenants cited lack of janitor service and redecoration in opposing a 6 per cent boost sought for 28 apartments at 2008 16th st. nw. Present rents range from $35 to $60 a month. Tyson took the case under advisement.

House to Act On Housing

self change legislation before it if it can't induce the committee handling the bill to do so.

The GOP leadership pins its hopes of killing public housing on floor action. GOP spokesmen confidently predict that public housing will be killed by a two-to-one vote.

On the other hand, Wolcott, who terms public housing and slum clearance "socialistic," has been quoted as saying the only hope of killing the provision rests in the hands of the Rules Committee, and that a floor vote will approve the TEW bill.

Supporters of public housing are confident they will prevail on the floor and the bill will become law.

The Rules Committee will meet today to hear further arguments on the bill.

The committee took no formal action yesterday but Chairman Leo Allen (R., Ill.) told some reporters after a hearing that clearance of the measure is "unlikely."

His comment was regarded as a "strategic" expression of concern.

Allen candidly offered the House Banking group a deal for a quick rule at yesterday's crowded hearing in return for dropping public housing but there were no takers.

Representative Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.) said if the bill is killed in the Rules Committee "then the Republicans have handed the Democrats the biggest campaign issue of 1948."

It was in short the kind of war of nerves in which both sides were dragging out their heaviest verbal artillery. Opponents of public housing were threatening to kill even the Title VI FPHA loans for veterans and every other housing aid unless they have their way.

Supporters of public housing were claiming all housing legislation worthless without public housing and predicting defeat for the Republican Party unless it takes action on housing.

Despite the fact that one of the authors and principal sponsors of the bill is Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), a leading candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, Wolcott told the Rules group the bill "fashions the key to open the door of socialism in America." Wolcott expressed some sympathy for those who are being used by those who would destroy the Constitution of the United States.

President Truman, meanwhile, has been flaying Congress for its failure to pass housing legislation during his Western campaign trip.

Russians Now Blame Allies for Weather

Berlin, June 15 (AP).—The Russians today blamed the Western Allies for the weather, in addition to everything else that goes wrong. At least, they said, their inability to make proper weather forecasts was the Allies' fault.

A letter from the Russian military government to the American AMG said severe damage had been done to crops in the Soviet zone because Americans, Britons and Frenchmen had removed important books on weather forecasting from the library of the German weather bureau. The AMG was asked to return the books.

jumped to 4776, a mean average of 796 a month.

What crimes were up in 1947 over the previous year?

Aggrevated assaults, from 633 to 1043.

False pretenses, from 83 to 102.

Grand larceny, from 1455 to 1726.

Housebreaking, from 2826 to 3631.

Mayhem, from 4 to 10.

Rape and carnal knowledge, from 45 to 94.

Sex Crimes Increase

One of the most significant increases was in the number of serious sex crimes. In 1945 there were 36 serious sex crimes reported, in 1946 they advanced to 45, and last year the number soared to 96.

In 1947, as against the previous year, there were decreases in these five catagories of serious crimes:

Arson, from 8 to 3.

Embezzlement, from 40 to 23.

Forgery and uttering, from 42 to 41.

Homicides, from 106 to 70.

Incest, from 6 to 4.

There are several bright spots in the latest report of the Washington Criminal Justice Association, notably the section showing that cases involving juveniles decreased last year.

1114 Juvenile Arrests

During 1947 there were 686 serious offenses closed by the arrest of persons under 18. This represented a decrease of 177 cases, or 20.5 per cent, from the 863 cases closed by juvenile arrest in 1946.

The association pointed out, however, that the 1946 total for juveniles was the highest it had ever recorded.

The 686 cases of 1947 involved 1114 juvenile arrests, or 337 fewer than in 1946.

The racial distribution of juvenile arrests, the report said, remained relatively consistent at approximately three fourths Negro and one fourth white, Age 15 was the predominate age group.

The greatest volume of juvenile arrests occurred in the Eleventh, Ninth and Second Precincts, in that order. There was a sharp decrease in the number of such arrests in the Second and Thirteenth Precincts from the previous year.

3 Precincts Account for 43%

The distribution of serious crimes in Washington remains much as it has been in previous years. The bulk of them occurred in three precincts, the First, Second and Thirteenth, which embrace the city's major commercial area and most of its substandard dwelling sections.

These three precincts accounted for more than 43 per cent of all serious crimes reported in Washington in 1947. One precinct alone, the Second, had 1572 serious crimes, almost 20 per cent of the total for the city.

Here are how the precincts ranked in volume of serious crime:

No. 2	1572
No. 1	1092
No. 13	821
No. 9	783
No. 11	688
No. 4	652
No. 3	620
No. 10	572
No. 5	310
No. 8	306
No. 12	228
No. 7	175
No. 6	164

Of the 8002 serious crimes reported for 1947, police cleared 4107 of them or 51.3 per cent. In 1946 police cleared 3500 of 6159 cases for an average of 56.9 per cent.

This is the breakdown of the clearances for 1947: cleared by actual arrest, 3501; by technical arrest, 289; because complainant refused to prosecute, 317.

This left police with 3876 cases open at the end of 1947, compared to 2659 cases open at the end of 1946.

The 317 cases in which complainants refused to prosecute drew special attention in the association report. In some of these cases, it was noted, the complainant while not formally refusing to prosecute refused to cooperate with police, which, in effect, was the same thing.

". . . the individual citizen is obligated to assist in the solution of crime," declared the report, "regardless of personal preference or inconvenience."

The report pointed out that in serious sex cases because of lack of cooperation a dangerous sex offender is often freed to once again prey upon the community.

The report brings up for study the problem of multiple offenders, those who are charged by police with more than one serious crime.

It cites the case of one prisoner who was charged by police with 60 cases of housebreaking and larceny. The grand jury returned indictments against the individual in nine of the cases (the association presumes that evidence in only nine cases was presented the grand jury). The individual pleaded guilty on all counts and was sentenced to serve from 5 to 15 years on eight of the counts and from one to three years on the ninth count, the terms to run consecutively.

The 289 cases closed by police by technical arrest are those involving multiple offenders. For these persons, evidence in many of their alleged offenses is never presented in court, a practice which the association warns "is dangerous and can develop grave abuses."

"If the evidence indicating guilt," said the report, "is too insubstantial to justify indictment, then it may be questioned whether the case should be closed by charging it to the account of the alleged offender."

Two Slayings Unsolved

The report notes that the 70 homicides in 1947 (19 of them voted justifiable by the coroner's jury) was 36 fewer than the 106 homicides for 1946. With 19 of the homicides considered justifiable, the remaining 51 cases consisted of 37 murders and 14 cases of non-negligent homicide.

Only two of the slayings are still unsolved and a fugitive known to police is being sought in a third murder.

The association remarked that solution of all but two of the slayings was "excellent police work."

"To accomplish these solutions," said the report, "it was necessary for many officers to work extra hours and long shifts. It is a further indication of the results that might be accomplished in all serious crime categories if sufficient personnel of the right caliber were available."

In its annual report the association, whose managing director is Edward J. Flynn, repeated that it is still in accord with the Police Department's request for extra manpower.

In its review of court functions here for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1947, the association found disposition of cases remained "very consistent" with the previous fiscal year.

The number of indictments returned by the grand jury for the 1947 fiscal year was 1754, only nine more than in the previous 12 months.

Board of Trade Cuts Grain Futures Margin

Chicago, June 15 (AP).—The Chicago Board of Trade today voted to reduce margin requirements on grain futures transactions "other than hedging and spreading transactions."

The new margins with the old ones bracketed are: Wheat, 40 cents per bushel (55); corn, 40 cents (50); oats, 14 cents (18); barley, 30 cents (50), and soybeans, 60 cents (80). The reductions are effective at opening of trade Thursday.

Two Firemen To Retire

pl. se. to a lieutenant, moving him to No. 28 Engine Co. at Connecticut ave. and Porter st. nw., from No. 13 Truck Co. at Orren st. and Florida ave. ne. Davis' name headed the list of eligible sergeants for promotion.

The three promotions made during the same period included the elevation of Capt. W. H. Ronan, who aided in Murphy's defense, to battalion chief, and the promotion of Capt. Morris Clark, who testified for Murphy, to the same rank. Yesterday the Commissioners approved the promotion of Capt. Clarence Quick, who also spoke for the chief during the hearing, to battalion chief.

Chief Murphy said he considered Quick "an outstanding fire captain" who had "reorganized Rescue Squad No. 1 into the best fire fighting unit in the country." He said the other two promotions had no relationship to his trial.

The District Commissioners also approved the promotion of Capt. Clarence K. Bunn to battalion chief at a $6242-a-year salary; the retirements of Fire Department Sergt. Maurice J. Curtin of 170 Chesapeake st. sw., $161.33 a month pay, physical disability; Pvt. William F. Deffer of 6205 Kilmer st., Cheverly, $141.58 a month, physical disability, and Pvt. William A. Gee, 1521 Rosedale st. ne., $141.58 a month, physical disability.

Also, the retirement of Police Inspector Ira E. Keck of 6019 Utah ave. nw., $260 a month, physical; Detective Sergt. Curtis H. Trammell of Route 1, Falls Church, $175 a month, physical, and Pvt. Archie B. Clothier of 428 Ingraham st. nw., $141 a month, physical.

The Commissioners appointed five Fire Department privates at $2720 a year. They were Spillman R. Davis, Oscar E. Lyles, Francis X. Mayhew, James W. Nealis and Gerald A. Tassa.

$2200 Monthly Not Enough, Wife Says

The privations suffered by a gambler's wife when her income drops to $2200 a month were described for Justice F. Dickinson Letts in District Court yesterday by Mrs. Anna B. Keliher, 38, of Woodley Park Towers, 2737 Devonshire pl. nw.

Mrs. Keliher testified in support of a motion for maintenance in her accustomed style pending outcome of a legal separation suit she has filed against her husband, John B. Keliher, 2400 16th st. nw., who, she said, is a gambler.

Under questioning by her attorney, James J. Laughlin, Mrs. Keliher said her husband gave her $3500 to $4000 a month for spending money and household expenses, until their separation in January, 1946. Except for five months, when Keliher doled out $700 a month for her maintenance, Mrs. Keliher said her husband has given her nothing during the separation, and all she has been able to scrape together for living expenses has averaged out to about $2200 a month.

She said that although she reduced her expenditures by getting along with only one servant instead of three, cutting her beauty shop bill to $75 a month, used taxicabs for transportatiton at $400 a month, budgeted only $50 a week for food, allowed only $100 a month for medicine, she had accumulated debts of $20,000 and had no resources with which to liquidate her obligations.

8 Heard by Jury, 5 Believed Awaiting Gambling Sentence

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Eight witnesses, including five persons believed to be numbers operators awaiting sentence, testified yesterday as the special grand jury resumed its gambling probe.

Two of the eight witnesses were Mrs. Erma Elizabeth Green, 36, of 1109 6th st. ne., a former numbers writer, and Henry Hogan of 638 L st. ne.

Hogan is believed to have been called before the grand jury in connection with Mrs. Green's statements to police that a gambling establishment—where she says Ninth Precinct police have been served "free drinks"—has been operating in the 600 block of L st. ne.

Five of the remaining six witnesses of the day are believed to be persons named in numbers charges who appeared before District Court Justice Alexander Holtzoff on June 1 to change their pleas from "not guilty" to "guilty."

It is likely that they were summoned in the gambling probe in the hope that they would agree to cooperate with law enforcement agencies and thereby possibly receive lighter sentences.

None of the five indicated whether they had agreed to such "cooperation." One of the witnesses, when questioned by reporters, said he had been asked, "What policemen do you know?"

He did not disclose his answer to this and he and the four others refused to give any other information to reporters.

The five persons who appeared before Justice Holtzoff June 1, and who are now awaiting sentence on charges of operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips, and who are believed to have been yesterday's grand jury witnesses, are:

Theodore A. Dorsey, 29, of 2600 Georgia ave. nw.; Mattie Thomas, 36, of 30 N st. ne., apt. 1; Burnie O. Love, 37, of 1208 Eastern ave. ne.; Conway Chappette, 41, of 3708 Foote pl. ne., and Edna Harris, 32, of 1032 Lamont st. nw.

The remaining witness of the day was not identified.

Mrs. Green told reporters she gave the special grand jury the same information she offered police about gambling on L st. ne., and alleged drinking by precinct police there. Police have said they are checking her story. She may be recalled when the jury probe resumes today.

Hogan was called into the jury room after Mrs. Green appeared, but he declined comment.

At 3 a. m. last Sunday, police reports show, Mrs. Green was involved in a fight with Mrs. Maria Reardon, 43, of 1857 3d st. nw., in which Mrs. Green was cut on the legs and chest with a beer can opener. Mrs. Reardon also was injured, police said, and was charged with assaulting Mrs. Green.

In Municipal Court yesterday Mrs. Reardon's case was continued to Thursday, and she was released under $300 bond. Mrs. Green told reporters the fight came over a personal argument and had no relation to the gambling investigation.

Sir Oliver Franks Decorates 19 for Efforts in War

Two Greater Washington residents yesterday were among 19 persons decorated for work in World War II by Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks at the British Embassy.

Sir Bernard Ottwell Binns, 303 Willard ave., Friendship Heights, Md., a British member of the United Nation's Food and Agriculture Organization here, received the insignia of a knight commander of the British Empire.

Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, 1801 F st. nw., chairman of the inter-affairs committee of the Women's National Republican Club, received the insignia of an honorary officer of the civil division of the same order.

FCC Consent Asked For WTOP Transfer

The Columbia Broadcasting System yesterday asked permission of the Federal Communications Commission to assign the license of Radio Station WTOP to a new corporation, WTOP, Inc., which will be owned 55 per cent by The Washington Post and 45 per cent by CBS.

The Washington Post will pay $855,470 to WTOP, Inc., in exchange for 55 per cent of the stock.

CBS will transfer to WTOP, Inc., properties and equipment valued at $699,930 in exchange for 45 per cent of the stock.

At the same time, the Pacific Agricultural Foundation, Ltd., asked FCC consent to transfer control of KQW, San Jose, and KQW-FM, San Francisco, to CBS for $425,000 plus 55 per cent of the net quick assets, value to be determined when the deal is closed. CBS now owns 45 per cent of KQW.

The CBS-Post application follows an agreement signed Friday by Frank Stanton, president of CBS, and Philip L. Graham, president of The Washington Post Co. and president of WTOP, Inc.

The agreement is contingent on FCC approval of both the WTOP and KQW moves. It also provides that the deal be closed within 30 days after the FCC consent is given, which in turn is subject to a 60-day waiting period.

John S. Hayes, general manager of the Post-owned WINX, will become general manager of WTOP, according to the application.

No other "substantial changes in the present staff of WTOP" are proposed.

No substantial changes in WTOP's program policies are contemplated. However, "the applicant proposes to study the possibilities of augmenting the station's current program schedule by the addition of programs of local interest employing the facilities of The Washington Post, a newspaper nationally distinguished for service to its community."

WTOP-FM, when it is completed, will duplicate WTOP programs, and broadcast "nonduplicated FM programs of local interest when and if circumstances arise which make the presentation of such programs desirable," FCC has granted a conditional construction permit for WTOP-FM.

CBS will retain its news operation and executive offices in Washington.

On May 17, it was also announced that the proposed new firm would seek authority for the construction and operation in the Nation's Capitol of a television station on television channel No. 12.

Straus Denies Talks Violated Lobbying Act

By The Associated Press

Reclamation Commissioner Michael W. Straus said yesterday he has a lawyer's opinion that his two California speeches on Folsom Dam did not violate the Federal Anti-Lobbying Act.

Chairman Harness (R., Ind.) of the House subcommittee on publicity and propaganda challenged the speeches—one at Richmond, Calif., and the other at Sacramento—as intended to influence legislation pending in Congress.

Replying to a question, Straus said his speeches did not have the "sole purpose" of influencing legislation. He said they informed audiences of the comparative benefits of Folsom Dam as authorized for flood control and as a multiple-purpose project proposed by the reclamation Bureau.

Submits 13-page Opinion

After the start of the Harness Committee investigation of the bureau, Straus said he asked Clifford Fix, the bureau's chief counsel, to review the speeches to see whether they violated the terms of a 1919 act prohibiting Federal employes from lobbying.

Straus submitted a 13-page opinion in which Fix said the speeches "would not justify taking action under the anti-lobbying act."

Asked if the bureau has prepared statements for outside witnesses at Congressional hearings, Straus said it does assist prospective Congressional witnesses upon request.

Straus asserted Monday night that he is required by law to inform the general public of Reclamation Bureau policies, plans and opinions.

In furtherance of this requirement, he said he has made "dozens of speeches" and used the radio, newspapers and other means of communication in addition to advising members of Congress individually and in committee.

"Information is not disseminated by mumblings in a dark closet," he said.

Blames Monopolists

Straus said one of his principal occupations is giving reports and opinions to Congress.

"If those reports and opinions are not given any consideration and the opinions do not have any influence upon congressional thought, action and legislation, the Congress is not only wasting my time and salary but more important it is wasting its own time when it has many problems of urgent importance before it unresolved," he said.

Straus blamed "power and land monopolists" for current attacks on his administration of the bureau.

Petition to Gov. Tuck Seeks Aid For North Virginian Schools

The School Emergency Committee of Northern Virginia has drafted a petition to Governor Tuck seeking aid for schools in the area.

Drawn up at a Monday night meeting, the petition will be available for signatures by qualified voters at an open meeting Friday at 8:30 p. m. in the Annandale School.

A subcommittee met with the county school board and the Commonwealth's attorney Monday night to discuss preliminary steps necessary to authorization of a bond issue for school construction.

The committee was formed primarily to help solve what its members called a chronic shortage of school classrooms in Fairfax. Fairfax Superintendent W. T. Woodson has estimated the county will need 60 additional classrooms in September. No money is now available for school construction.

Salvation Army Confident Goal Will Be Reached

Full confidence that the District will meet its $350,000 Salvation Army rebuilding fund goal was expressed yesterday by Brig. Albert Decker, former Washingtonian who is now Salvation Army territorial director of social service for the Atlanta District.

Decker, addressing a luncheon of campaign workers at the Evangeline Home, said his knowledge of Washingtonians' response to worthy appeals convinces him that "they will meet this challenge with their civic heart."

Campaign officials reported that preliminary figures show $5000 has already been raised at the Veterans Administration, while contributions totaling $4000 have been made by Treasury employes.

Police Seek 4 Boys Reported Missing

Four Washington boys, two of them brothers, were the objects of police search yesterday after running away from their homes.

They are Donald Caudell, 12, of 1312 Staples st. ne.; Ronnie Merchant, 15, of 2127 P st. nw., and George and Thomas Preston, 13 and 14-year-olds of 1318 10th st. nw.

Donald Ronnie

Young Caudell, a seventh grade student at Stuart Junior High School, has been missing since shortly after 11 a. m. Sunday. His father, Garland Caudell, believes he is in the company of James B. Watson, 21, who roomed at the Caudell's and is also missing.

Watson left a note saying he was going to Canada, Caudell said. The boy is 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs 130 pounds, has blond hair and blue eyes, and was wearing a brown shirt, tan trousers and tan and white shoes.

The Merchant boy, son of widowed Mrs. Ann Merchant, of 2127 P st. nw., has been missing since May 14. Mrs. Merchant said he was a student at Bell Vocational School, 7th and O sts. nw., and had disappeared after attending morning classes May 14.

He had no money, she said, and no clothes with him except those he wore to school. Other than getting poor grades, he had no "troubles," Mrs. Merchant said. She described him as 5 feet 11 inches tall, 130 pounds, brown hair, parted on the left side. He wears glasses and speaks German as well as English. The lad is an avid reader of science and mechanical fiction, according to Mrs. Merchant.

The Preston boys have been missing since Monday morning when they failed to show up at Thompson School, their parents told police. George is in the fifth grade there, Thomas the sixth. The parents said both boys like to fish and could have gone angling on the Potomac. George is 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 105 pounds and has brown hair and blue eyes. His brother, Thomas, weighs 98 pounds and also is brown-haired and blue-eyed.

3 Planes Feared Missing Over Sea

Three Flying Fortress planes are believed missing after taking off from the Azores for Corsica, airport officials in Lisbon, Portugal, reported last night. One of the planes sent a distress call saying one engine was afire shortly after they left the Azores Monday, the officials said.

A U. S. Air Force spokesman at Wiesbaden, Germany, said messages had been received there about the missing planes but he indicated they were a commercial version of the Flying Fortress and not Air Force planes. The Portugal dispatch said the planes had arrived in the Azores Monday from Puerto Rico. Crews of the three planes were said to total 21.

Police Hold Youth, 19, In Slaying of Father

Jack Jenkins, 19, Faujuier County, Va., carpenter, yesterday was charged by police with murder in connection with the fatal shooting Monday of his father, Gilbert, 47. Sheriff Sam Hill said younk Jenkins admitted firing one shot from a .22 caliber rifle at his father.

Cain Links Pay Rise, Sales Tax paid from the general fund would add about 2.4 million dollars to the budget for the year beginning July 1.

If those figures take effect, they estimated, it would require—without a sales tax—a 15-cent increase in the present property tax rate of $2 a $100 to cover the additional expense. The Commissioners could use powers they possess to order the increase into effect.

The sales tax, combining with it a high level income tax with a basic $8000 exemption for the District, has been approved by the House.

The new "if" for the teachers, police and firemen's pay bills overshadowed their approval earlier in the day by the Senate District Committee.

For police and firemen, including Metropolitan and White House and Park Police, the Senate District Committee chopped the House approved increase figure of $500 down to $200.

With the $200 teachers' pay increase bill passed by the House, the Senate District Committee left the figure unchanged and sent the bill to the Senate, where Senator Cain left the way open to possible amendment of the bill.

The District Committee, in what Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) said would be its final meeting, also approved House-passed bills to:

1. Equalize salary treatment of teachers with masters' degrees already in the public school system in comparison with new teachers being hired with masters' degrees.
2. Increase pensions for widows and orphans of police and firemen.
3. Let the District fix monthly fees for amusement places to cover costs of necessary special fire and police protection.
4. Revise the District optometry law.
5. Permit direct admission of chronic mental patients to St. Elizabeths.
6. Increase barbers' license fees to a scale running from $5 to $20.
7. Make the District commissioners survey comparative parking rates and services in Washington and other major cities, and report what they find to Congress early next year.
8. Authorize issuing a chiropractor's license to Samuel O. Burdette, 2335 Green st. se., without the District examination.

Rankin Aid Asked For Bill Allowing Water to Negroes

A Southern Congressman has been asked to introduce a bill permitting Negro citizens to "secure a drink of water" in the downtown Washington area.

Rankin

Representative John Rankin (D., Miss.) has received a letter from Richard W. Smith, secretary of the Joint Council of Dining Car Employes, in which Smith relates how, on a recent trip here, he was "in a desert in the center of our Nation's Capital" because there was no drinking water available in the area.

Smith said he was told that "drug stores and other places that sell various types of liquid beverages did not solicit our patronage." Outlining his support of several civil liberties measures, Smith added, "regardless of the outcome of the struggle for the greater items I have mentioned, would you kindly cooperate in getting me a drink—just a drink of water."

Jews Took Villages After Truce Deadline, Egypt Says, Threatens Fight to Rewin Them

Cairo, Egypt, June 15 (U.P.).—The Egyptian government said officially tonight that the Jews had taken villages in southern Palestine in violation of the truce and that unless they were returned the Arabs would recapture them by force.

Egypt's threat was made in a note to Count Folke Bernadotte, United Nations mediator, asserting that the Jews attacked and occupied 11 villages after the truce deadline, some of them as long as 24 hours after the cease-fire went into effect.

In the village of Aslouj, southwest of Beersheba, Jews wiped out the entire Egyptian garrison 75 minutes after the deadline, the note said.

Planes Patrol Coast

The new threat to the truce came after Bernadotte announced that American planes acting for the U. N. were patrolling the Palestine coast, looking for ships which might take immigrants to Israel in violation of the truce.

Bernadotte disclosed that he now has five American planes, flown by their own crews, at his disposal.

Arriving from Rhodes, Bernadotte conferred for 70 minutes with the political committee of the Arab League, which acts for the seven Arab countries, on the situation in Palestine.

He said he would go to Tel Aviv Thursday to confer with Jewish leaders and then fly on to Rhodes to complete his truce control organization.

"I intend to invite both Arab and Jewish leaders to confer with me at Rhodes during the truce period," Bernadotte said. "I have drawn up a timetable for talks and I intend to stick to it."

As planned at present the Arab-Jewish talks are to be separate. Bernadotte declined to say whether he hoped to get the two sides together at a round-table conference in an attempt to prevent renewal of fighting when the four-week truce ends at 2 a. m. (EDT) July 9.

Soviet Observers Turned Down by U. N.

Lake Success, June 15 (AP).—The United Nations Security Council today rejected a Russian move to put Soviet military observers in Palestine.

Only the Soviet Ukraine supported Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in his efforts to get Russian soldiers in the Holy Land to help supervise the four-week truce.

Hungary Hits Church Schools

Budapest, Hungary, June 15 (U.P.).—The government today submitted to Parliament a bill to nationalize church schools and the Catholic Church in Hungary threatened to excommunicate everyone who supported it.

With Parliament scheduled to rush passage of the bill tomorrow by a vote of 80 per cent or better, the church organ Magyar Kurir outlined the canon law covering excommunication "to avoid misunderstanding."

The church paper bluntly pointed out that excommunication affected those "first, who make laws, pass decrees or resolutions against the church's freedom or rights. Second, those who directly or indirectly prevent church authorities from practicing their rights . . ."

"The church's right to maintain schools is also included in the rights indicated in the first paragraph," the paper said. "The above punishment will also be applied in case church schools are effectively taken away."

Catholic church opposition to the bill already has resulted in three riots, climaxed Sunday night by a huge demonstration here by vespers worshipers, most of them women. Today's newspapers reported that 15 persons were arrested Sunday night as thousands gathered in Gellert Square to protest the bill. The papers described those arrested as "Fascists."

Md. Pupils Fight For D. C. Schooling

Justice Henry Schweinhaut yesterday took under advisement a suit filed in the District Court for an injunction to prevent the District School Board putting a group of Woodrow Wilson High School students out of school because they live in Maryland but have not paid the tuition required of out-of-District pupils.

A rider to the Appropriation Act passed last July authorized dropping out-of-District pupils who did not pay tuition, unless they had been enrolled in District schools before the act became law. Members of the parents group testified yesterday that the children whose status is involved in the case were enrolled because they applied for admission and were signed up before the provision for dropping them became law.

Attorney Michael J. Keane argued in their behalf that this consituted enrollment, and that it followed that the pupils and their parents now are entitled to have the court enjoin the School Board from interfering with their attendence in the schools here.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton Korman, who appeared for the School board, argued, however, that a pupil is not enrolled until he actually becomes part of a class, and that the preliminary signing up accomplished by the group of parents did not constitute enrollment for the purpose of obtaining exemption from payment of tuition.

The Woodrow Wilson principal, Thomas J. Holmes, testified that pupils were not considered as enrolled until classes began at the opening of a term and the children actually in attendance could be counted.

Bones Excavated In Montgomery Not to Aid Science

The unwitting excavation of human bones last week by a Montgomery County construction firm isn't going to add much to science, even if the bones are 100 years old.

Dr. Stewart

The bones, believed to have been those of early American Negroes, were unearthed in the process of constructing Cranbrook Court rd., and taken by county detectives to the Smithsonian Institution.

Yesterday, Dr. T. D. Stewart, physical anthropology curator, said that a skull which had been dug up was that of a Negro woman, and that other bone fragments had been identified as belonging to several other persons. This would indicate that excavations had been made in an unmarked grave, probably for slaves.

However, because of the advanced state of deterioration of the bones, Dr. Stewart said they will be of "little value" from an anthropological standpoint.

Masons Approve Renovation Of Temple at $330,000 Cost

Expenditure of about $330,000 for complete renovation of the Masonic Temple, 13th st. and New York ave. nw., has been approved by the District's Masonic Grand Lodge, Grand Master Dean Hill Stanley disclosed yesterday.

The committee's recommendations call for renovation of the building, both inside and out, as well as construction of several new offices and lodgerooms. The Pix Theater, which occupies part of the building and is leased to a private operator, also will be enlarged, but the cost will be borne by the operator.

New features will include a new stairway and alterations to the one existing stairway to comply with recently revised District building regulations, Stanley said.

The Grand Lodge also plans to build a new lodge room and offices for the grand master on the second floor and to move the Commandery and Chapter offices from the second to the fourth floor.

Plumbing and lighting fixtures throughout the building will be modernized, and some new furnishings will be purchased as part of the alteration program, the grand master announced.

Clark Reportedly Calls Anti-Red Bill Unconstitutional

Attorney General Tom Clark will tell the Senate the Mundt-Nixon Communist-control bill is "class legislation" and unconstitutional, informed sources reported yesterday.

The measure, approved by the House, would compel the Communist Party and its "front" organizations to file their membership lists with the Attorney General. It would deny visas and passports to Communists and require them to label their material as "propaganda."

The Senate Judiciary Committee asked Clark and a group of private constitutional lawyers for their opinions to help it decide what action to take on the bill.

Informed Justice Department quarters said Clark believes the measure, in attempting to regulate political activities in this country, is contrary to the spirit of the Constitution. The committee plans to consider the bill today.

Pay Hike Bill Passed

the House Civil Service Committee on Monday. The postal bill would give $450 increases to each of the 475,000 postal employes and it would cost approximately 211 million dollars. A provision in the bill would raise postal rates approximately 125 million dollars a year to help offset the pay cost. Second-class mail rates wouldn't be lifted. The postal raise would be permanent and it would become effective on July 1.

The $360 flat raise for Federal and District workers who are covered by the Classification Act would be temporary for one year only to begin on July 1. The bill would continue the present $10,000 ceiling on salaries.

Chairman Rees of the House Civil Service Committee made an able defense of the bills before the Rules Committee. He said it would be "most unfair" to give a raise to postal employes only. He was joined by Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), who brought out that the vast majority of classified workers were in the low salary brackets; that the average salary was $3006, and that the average salary of employes paid under $5000 was only $2740.

Rees then produced his own statistics to answer charges that classified workers were overpaid. He said that only 7.2 per cent are paid more than $5000 and that 87 per cent make less than $4000.

Both Smith and Sabath (D., Ill.) were critical of the proposed larger raise for postal employes. Sabath pointed out classified employes are obliged to meet higher living costs like postal employes. Rees reminded him that his original bill would have treated both groups alike.

On the Senate side, amendments have been drawn to the pay bill pending on its calendar to raise salaries by amounts identical to those okayed by the Rules Committee.

NAVY: In approving the Navy appropriation bill, the Senate Appropriations Committee increased by five million dollars the amount allowed by the House to pay civilian salaries here. If approved, the Navy could hire several hundred additional civilians here. The report stated:

That civilians should be hired here to replace many military people who are holding administrative jobs, and that poor administration because of the lack of help could result in greatly increased costs. The committee also okayed funds for the transfer of some Navy personnel here to the Pentagon.

Are You Really Playing Ball with Your Son?

WE'RE NOT TALKING about any occasional game of pitch and catch. We're talking about a much bigger, more important game . . . the game of life. His life and yours!

Are you delivering the day-in, day-out care, kindliness and sincere understanding which are the duties, yes, and the joys of the father who is truly a hero to his son?

The answer isn't far to seek. You can find it right in his honest eyes. For he knows, with the sure and certain instinct of the growing boy, whether you're playing straight, whether you're sticking to the rules.

And the rules are very simple. No son can long respect or honor the father who fails to set a worthy pattern of right living, who fails to abide by the code of moderation.

And moderation must mean, among other things, wise and sensible drinking . . . a realization that over-indulgence is a betrayal of one of the most sacred obligations of fatherhood.

Yes, as we of The House of Seagram have said publicly many times, true moderation is a compelling duty of every father. And we say it again this Father's Day for the very simple, but very real reason that we are men with sons of our own whose love and respect we deeply cherish.

TVA Town Sold To Private Owner

Norris, Tenn., June 15 (AP)—Norris, a Tennessee Valley Authority landmark for 15 years, today passed from public to private ownership.

The picturesque little town a dam built was sold by TVA at public auction to Henry David Epstein, 27-year-old Philadelphia real estate dealer, for $2,107,500.

Epstein quickly reassured the town's 1250 residents, most of whom thronged the schoolhouse lawn for the auction, that they would not be evicted from their houses.

"We are going to give you an opportunity to buy your own homes," he told the crowd. "We intend to make Norris not only the finest but also the largest model community in the United States."

The residents, mostly TVA employes, had organized a corporation to try to buy the town. Their own bid of $1,900,000 quickly was topped.

Epstein's bid topped by $2500 the next highest offer; submitted by B. W. and E. V. Ferrell, brothers, of Winston-Salem, N. C.

Norris was built by TVA in 1933-34 to house personnel working on nearby Norris Dam. It is unlike the average American town in that it has no business district in the usual sense. There is one large centrally located building which houses a drug store, grocery, postoffice, medical center and warehouse.

The property Epstein acquired included 1284 acres of land, 341 dwelling units, the schoolhouse, all streets, and several other buildings.

Area Forces Mobilize to Fight Beetles

Those Japanese beetles due to pop out of the ground hereabouts within a week will find their enemy, man, ready and waiting.

In Montgomery County, Md., particularly, the beetle battlers are prepared to protect their crops and their landscapes from the voracious intruders who whet their appetites on lawns in anticipation of the farm crops that follow.

With $15,700 in its battle fund, Montgomery County was all set to open war on Monday. The beetles, however, failed to attack, presumably because climatic conditions kept them underground. Cool weather and late rains were credited, or blamed, for their tardiness.

O. W. Anderson, county agricultural agent, said the county's main assault forces, five DDT spraying machines and crews, had postponed D (Debeetling)-Day until next Monday. Then, he said, the sprayers would go to work on the county's public highways, and with a DDT spray twice as potent as last year's solutions.

Three of the sprayers, he said, will fight the good fight in the trees and bushes abounding public domain in the Takoma Park, Silver Spring, Chevy Chase and Bethesda areas. The other two will be pressed into service in upper Montgomery County sectors, he said.

The State and Federal Government are providing the difference between the $15,700 fight fund figure and $10,000 set aside for the project by the county, Anderson said.

Prince Georges County, Md., has about $6000 in its antibeetle war chest, according to P. E. Clark, county agent there. Besides that, said Clark, the county is prepared to lease prisoner-made Japanese beetle traps at a rate of 25 cents each. He listed 11 distributors from whom the traps can be obtained.

These included: Officer R. B. Earnshaw, Brandywine; Felicitas Childs, Oxon Hill; Hartman Filling Station, Suitland; Tom Heide, Forestville; Robert Hampton, Seat Pleasant; Mrs. Blanche Leishure, Laurel; Mrs. Florence Duke, Clinton; Mrs. Pyles, Camp Springs; Mrs. Hilda Suit, Lanham; Russell Hamilton, Accokeek; the office of the county agent, in Marlboro, and at the County Service Building in Hyattsville.

In Fairfax County, Va., County Agent Kenneth Peterson said the fight with spraying machines is expected to start at this week's end on a community basis. Between 12 and 14 machines, either privately owned or contracted for through State and Federal agencies, will be used, he said.

Stock Market Rise Is Seen Indicative of GOP Victory

The state of the stock market augurs a Republican victory in the presidential campaign, J. A. Livingston, Washington Post business columnist, told the Better Business Bureau meeting yesterday.

Approximately 400 representatives of member firms of the bureau met at the Mayflower. Ralph L. Goldsmith, vice president and general manager of Lansburgh's, was unanimously elected president and chairman of the board of trustees of the bureau, which celebrated its twenty-eighth anniversary.

Livingston's prediction of a GOP President was based on the following analysis:

A study of the stock market in election years since 1900 shows that when a Republican is about to be President, the market rises 18 per cent on the average. When a Democrat is on his way to the White House the increase is 3 per cent.

Since the beginning of 1948, the stock market is up 11 per cent.

"The Democrats never give the market the same oomph as the Republicans," Livingston said. "It is my opinion that the country is counting its elephants even before a candidate has been nominated."

Continued prosperity is also in the offing, Livingston said. It will be proven by the biggest building boom ever in rural areas, increased road building and bigger and better schools and hospitals, he said.

As for Washington itself, Livingston predicted continued expansion.

"Washington is growing and growing fast because it is the center of power in the universe," he said.

Freezing Weather Hits Northern Wisconsin

Chicago, June 15 (AP).—Freezing weather hit parts of northern Wisconsin today as cool air spread over sections of the Midwest.

The mercury dipped to 32 at Land O'Lakes, Wis., and registered 33 at Pellston, Mich. It was in the 30's in parts of northern Michigan and northern Minnesota. The cooler weather covered sections of the upper Lakes, the upper Mississippi Valley and the Northern Plains States.

Three Rezoning Petitions Opposed

Three of six requested rezonings heard yesterday by Montgomery County commissioners met opposition from an estimated 200 persons at the zoning hearings in Bethesda.

Most controversial was the requested rezoning from residential to commercial of about 4 acres on the east side of Wisconsin ave., adjacent to the Naval Medical Center, to permit erection of a two-million-dollar apartment-hotel.

About 70 residents of Glenbrook Village opposed the petition and Col. Carl H. Cuphaver, 8611 Brandt pl., Bethesda, told the commissioners Glenbrook residents would demand lower assessments if the rezoning is approved because the project would lower property values. The petition was submitted by Samuel Kushner, owner of the tract.

Forty Battery Park residents opposed commercial zoning of a lot at Georgetown rd. and Del Ray ave., requested by Dr. and Mrs. Leo I. Donovan. The physician said he planned to erect a $50,000 medical center. Carey Quinn, attorney for protesting homeowners, said legal action would be taken to enforce restrictive covenants in their deeds against commercial encroachment if the rezoning is approved.

Victimizing Children

Whether the quality of congressional mercy toward the hungry children of Europe is to be strained through "cold war" prejudice and fear will be determined by the Senate-House conference on appropriations for the European Recovery Plan. If the action of the Senate Appropriations Committee in cutting from 60 to 20 million dollars the authorization for the International Children's Emergency Fund of the United Nations is upheld, this Government will be in a vulnerable position before the world.

Both its humanitarianism and the honor of its intentions toward the U. N. would be questioned if the cut were allowed to stand. But its remissness would have a positive implication that would be even more damaging. The fund will be used as a matching basis for other nations' contributions, and the object of setting aside 60 million dollars was to have at our disposal a sufficient fund with which to encourage generosity. Approval of this ruthless slashing, therefore, would be virtual notice to prospective donors that the United States did not care how much they gave.

Certain Senators in the Appropriations Committee who insisted on the cut—some even wanted the fund wiped out—objected to American money being used to feed children in eastern Europe. Such an attitude toward hungry and diseased children seems incredible in a Nation that boasts of its generosity. It is a strange reversal of the legislative attitude of a few years ago when both houses of Congress supported a plan to feed children in countries dominated by the Nazis. Even more recently, when ERP legislation passed both houses the authorization for the Children's Fund, attached as a rider to the omnibus bill, went by without opposition. There is diplomacy as well as charity in such ignoring of the iron curtain.

As the one international agency not torn by the "cold war," and operating without regard to race, religion, politics or geography, the Children's Fund offers a small beginning toward one world—at least for children. If the people of the United States permit their legislators to inject power politics into this enterprise, they may as well abandon any claim to moral or even democratic leadership.

Bernadotte's Chance

The watching world will be with Count Folke Bernadotte in spirit as he wrestles with the problem of bringing peace to the Middle East. Evidently he is a good man. By his side is the Bible given to him by his 88-year-old father before he left Stockholm. But he is not quixotic, as was shown by his insistence that the United Nations dispatch a token force to police the cease-fire. By this time quite a sizable flotilla must have been assembled in Palestine waters in order to keep the guns silenced. The wonder grows that the Palestine Commission as far back as February should have been cold-shouldered when it asked for such elementary aid.

It remains our view that the trouble in Palestine is more with the British on the spot than with the Jews and the Arabs. Left to themselves, Jews and Arabs would achieve some formula for finding a basis for living and letting live—that is to say, for neighborliness. A state that built a policy on a feud with its neighbor would have no durable foundation. The new makers of Israel know this perfectly well, and, by their conduct during the sort of war that has now ceased, have shown that this is not their intention. As for the Arabs, the problem from the start, as we have insisted, has been the parcelling out of Arab Palestine. The issue in front of Count Bernadotte, in other words, is between Arab and Arab as much as between Arab and Jew. It will need all his diplomacy to reconcile the rest of the Arab world with Abdullah's undoubted claims.

Where, then, do the British men on the spot come in? It has become obvious to the world that Abdullah's Arab Legion would lose their backbone without their British spine. This consists not only of the 37 or so officers, but of several hundred noncommissioned officers as well. When Abdullah moved on Jerusalem, he was following, doubtless, British rather than his own strategy. It will be recalled that in the Old City he got plaudits as King of Jerusalem. If the British encourage this claim, and were to succeed in it, it would mean that the British would be installed in Jerusalem as well as Abdullah. What the world will expect is a peace based on the United Nations' recommendation, and this set aside Jerusalem as an international enclave. That may not suit the Glubbs and the Claytons, but the time is at hand for the United Nations to put them in their place, if the British Colonial Office can't.

Rate-Making

The President's veto of the Bulwinkle-Reed bill exempting rate agreements by railroads and other common carriers from the antitrust laws should be overridden. For, if upheld by Congress, it would result in serious disruption of rate-making processes that have stood the test of time and meet with the approval of shippers as well as the Interstate Commerce Commission and State regulatory officials. A great deal depends, therefore, upon the action taken today by the Senate on the rejected measure. If it votes to override the veto the chances are that the House, which passed the bill by a very large majority, will follow suit.

In passing the Bulwinkle-Reed bill, Congress sought to remove the confusion and uncertainty that have resulted from a conflict of views regarding the applicability of the antitrust laws to certain kinds of agreements among regulated common carriers. As the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce said in its report on the bill, "a large measure of collective action by and among common carriers is necessary if the national transportation policy is to be effected and if the public is to receive the kind of transportation service to which it is entitled and if rates are to be reasonable and nondiscriminatory." If, as the Department of Justice maintains, rate agreements effectuated through rate bureaus and associations are to be regarded as illegal restraints of competition, the regulatory system under which the carriers have been operating for years will be shot to pieces.

The late Joseph B. Eastman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, who was also director of the Office of Defense Transportation, was an ardent defender of the existing system of rate conferences. He said some years ago that he did not know how the carriers could comply with the mandates of the law and the orders of the Commission unless they could consult and confer with one another. He further pointed out that such joint action was always subject to protest and review by the ICC if in violation of the provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act. The bill vetoed last week by the President does not impair any of these existing safeguards against abuse. The carriers will have the right, as at present, to propose rates to the ICC, subject to its approval. And the Commission may suspend any proposed changes on protest or of its own initiative as at present. The bill also protects the rights of a carrier to take independent action regardless of conference decisions. Spokesmen for the Department of Justice have made much of the fact that few protests reach the Commission, citing it as an indication that rate bureaus are in a position virtually to compel individual roads to adhere to collective agreements. However, it can just as well be maintained that the small proportion of protested rate changes is proof that the conference method of rate adjustment works very satisfactorily for all interested parties, roads and shippers alike.

The President's charge that the Bulwinkle-Reed bill represents a departure from the present transportation policy of regulated competition simply does not fit the facts of the case. For the bill does not impair the regulatory powers over rate-making now exercised by the ICC. Nor does it render the carriers immune from the antitrust laws except as to joint rate agreements of the kind they have long been accustomed to enter into with the approval of the ICC.

In the absence of rate conferences tariff schedules would have to be filed by individual railroads and by thousands of motor carriers. The result would be not competition but regulatory chaos. The integrated rate structure would fall apart and the ICC would be overwhelmed by the burden of work thrust upon it by protesting shippers and carriers. Consequently, prompt legislative action is needed to insure preservation of a regulated system of rate-making that an overwhelming majority of transportation officials, regulatory agencies and shippers consider indispensable and in the public interest.

The pending antitrust cases referred to by President Truman as one reason for vetoing the Bulwinkle-Reed bill may not be settled for some time. Nor is it certain that those suits will result in judicial clarification of the issues raised in the present instance. Incidentally, the pending Georgia and Lincoln, Nebr., suits to which the President was evidently referring in his veto mesage would not be thrown out of court by legalization of carrier rate agreements, since the roads concerned have been charged with conspiracy to fix rates of a discriminatory nature. Such practices are outlawed by the antitrust laws, whether they are engineered by rate bureaus or other agencies. And the Bulwinkle-Reed bill would not legalize such unlawful antisocial practices. In sum, the national interest appears to require that Congress override Mr. Truman's veto of this important measure.

Forgotten Veterans

Tardy and inadequate recognition of the claims upon the United States of Filipino veterans who served under the American Flag in the war has at last come out of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee. The veterans in question, some 338,000 of them, were made a part of the American Army by executive order in 1941, when the Philippines still owed allegiance to this country. They served faithfully and are entitled to benefits similar to those accorded our own veterans. Nearly a year ago President Truman sent to Congress a bill that would have restored, in modified form, the educational, hospitalization and burial and funeral benefits taken away from Filipino veterans by the Rescission Act of 1946. The House committee has now trimmed this down to a simple hospitalization bill for Filipino veterans with service-connected disabilities and dropped the bill into the preadjournment logjam.

Certainly this is shabby treatment of the men of Bataan and the guerillas who, through the dark years of Japanese occupation, continued fighting for the common American-Philippine cause. It may account in part for the reported popularity of collaborationists in Manila today. Of course, hope of making complete amends at the present session of Congress is nil. But Congress can enact the noncontroversial and apparently unopposed bill to grant to the Philippine Republic $22,500,000 for construction and equipment of veterans' hospitals and $3,285,000 a year for expenses incident to the hospitalization of Filipino veterans with service-connected disabilities.

The condition of many Filipinos wounded in action is said to be deplorable three years after the end of the war. The House committee found that "adequate hospitalization is so necessary and pressing that it should receive immediate attention." In the face of such need the committee's stalling has been truly shocking. The least that Congress can now do is to put H. R. 4073 on its must list as a token of good faith.

Congressional Club

A notable victory has been won by Senator Sheridan Downey. He has succeeded in punishing two Government officials, Michael Straus, Reclamation commissioner, and Richard Boke, regional director of the Reclamation Bureau, because they dared, in opposition to his wishes, to insist upon application of the acreage limitation provisions of the reclamation law to the Central Valley of California. The punishment was effected by a neat little ruse which is a testimonial to Senator Downey's ingenuity if not to his ethics. A rider was attached to the Interior Department appropriation bill requiring that the Reclamation commissioner, the assistant commissioner, and regional directors be engineers with at least five years of engineering experience. Mr. Straus and Mr. Boke, although they have admirable records of service in the bureau, do not possess this particular—and wholly irrelevant—qualification.

Congress, having now acted to satisfy the personal spleen of Senator Downey, might do well to count the cost. It may entail a complete subversion of the reclamation law which has had the support of Republican and Democratic administrations alike since the turn of the century. It will probably entail a huge handout to a few of Senator Downey's large landowning constituents and a total denial of the Central Valley Project's benefits to veterans and others who would like to be small landowners. And it will certainly entail a degradation of the United States Congress which has now let itself be used as a thumbscrew to wreak vengeance upon individuals who incurred the displeasure of one of its elite members.

Senator O'Mahoney, a very astute judge of this sort of thing, says that the rider is unconstitutional in that it "prescribes qualifications solely for the purpose of inflicting punishment on Commissioner Straus and Regional Director Boke." But Senator Downey insists that it gets around the constitutional prohibition against bills of attainder in that it does not actually name its victims. How exceedingly clever of him! This must be a red-letter day indeed in Senator Downey's career. But it is a very dark day in the history of the United States Congress.

Science Research

Encouragement of pure science—that is, of basic scientific research as distinguished from mere technology—is an urgent national necessity. This is the overriding argument in favor of accepting the current legislation to establish a National Science Foundation. If the need were not so compelling, it would be impossible to support a measure so inadequate and unsatisfactory as Senator Smith's bill passed by the Senate and now before the House. The best that can be said for this legislation is that it is not so bad as the Smith bill which Congress enacted last year and which the President very properly vetoed.

The outstanding defect of last year's bill which prompted this newspaper to urge a presidential veto was that it deprived the President even of authority to appoint the director of the National Science Foundation. This was an invasion of the executive domain which no President ought to tolerate. The present bill would vest selection of the director in the President but would so circumscribe the director's powers as to make him little better than a puppet in the hands of a part-time board of scientists. This is a divorcement of power and responsibility thoroughly antithetical to sound administration.

Even more reprehensible, perhaps, is the failure of the present bill to require that patentable discoveries resulting from research financed by the Government be dedicated to the public and made freely available for general use. The treatment of patents contained in the Atomic Energy Act affords a model which ought to be followed in connection with all Government-sponsored research. In spite of these very grave defects, however, it is to be hoped that the House will enact the Smith bill before adjournment. Once the National Science Foundation is established, there will be time to press for improvement of its charter.

At present, however, the Nation cannot risk any further delay in fostering scientific schooling for young men of talent, promoting basic research of the sort on which all technological advancement depends and mobilizing its scientific resources. In modern times, pure science is the fountainhead alike of military security and of material progress.

Thought From England

Editor's Note: The Washington Post has a standing rule against publishing poetry in the letters-to-the-editor column. We break it in this case because of the unusual character of the following commentary from England.

You lucky, lucky people, who live in U. S. A.
How I'd love to be with you, if only for a day.
For when I read your magazines,
and see your adverts there,
Then read about the things you've got, I'm jealous I declare.
Tins of peach and pineapple, fruit salad, quince and pear,
Tins of ham and tins of tongue,
and other dainties rare,
Nylons for the women, costumes,
frocks as well,
And furs and undies, scant and chic, displayed in shops to sell.
Men can get their evening dress, their lounge suits and their ties,
Dressing gowns and well made shoes, for all the New York guys.
Pots and saucepans for the home,
tablecloths galore,
Curtaining for every room, and carpets for the floor.
I wonder if you realize, just how we scrape along,
Whilst politicians kid us that life's a "grand sweet song."
Our lives are ruled by ration books which we must have to live,
And whether we want socks or meat, our coupons we must give.
I bought a suit in '39 (now shared by my big son),
I can't afford the coupons to get another one.
Three for socks, and seven for shirts and five for underwear,
Twenty-six to get a suit, or else
you can go bare.
Now, each half year we get a book, of coupons, twenty-four,
And they must last you quite six months, you won't get any more,
Unless you go black market, (coupons are two bob each),
But to the British working man, they're quite beyond his reach.
The kiddies have their money, to spend like your kids do,
But they can't buy their candy,
for it just ain't here to chew.
Our housewives all line up in queues, for everything they need,
They queue for food for hours and hours, they're heroines indeed,
Bombed out during war years,
we stuck it to the end,
And though we live in quieter times, we still "make do and mend."
So when you feel like moaning, cause things won't go your way,
Thank your stars—and thank your God, you live in U. S. A.

Taxes And Inflation

The way financial interests distort economic facts to suit their own advantage is illustrated by the monthly business letter from the National City Bank of New York which finds danger of inflation in the General Motors wage settlement and in the failure to raise the rate of interest on Treasury certificates of indebtedness (one year Government loans).

Actually, the increased pay scale in the General Motors-union agreement was needed to make up for the increased cost of living that had already taken place. It was the result, not a cause, of inflation. The two years of uninterrupted production which the wage settlement makes possible will help in curbing inflation by increased production.

The failure to raise the rate of interest on short-term Government loans has a negligible effect on inflation. But it has a considerable effect in keeping down the rate of profit for banks holding such securities, so the bank tries to pin the responsibility for inflation on this policy.

The most inflationary factor in the present situation is the tax policy of the Republican majority in Congress. They reduced taxes in a way which greatly favors wealthy taxpayers if they are married, and then refused to make up this loss of revenue to the Government by an excess profits tax despite the fact that profits after taxes are higher than ever before in American history.

The reduction of taxes means that five billion dollars of additional purchasing power is placed in the hands of the people without any corresponding increase in production. Such an increase in purchasing power without increased production is certain to increase prices.

To admit this fact, of course, means criticism of the Republicans and an indorsement of President Truman's recommendation to make up the loss to the Government by a tax on excess profits.

National Theater

Because a few thousand people in Maryland go to the Olney Theater why should Helen Hayes assert that is proof positive that Washingtonians—the whole city of us—prefer that the National Theater change its long-established habits and policies?

It is not important whether or not a few well-behaved colored people attend the National, but it is highly important that a few individuals or even organizations should be able to enforce their will upon a whole city and deprive it of an opportunity to see legitimate drama at all in the Capital of the United States of America.

Many of us who have been faithfully served with entertainment by the officers of the National Theater since our childhood feel that as the National is entirely within its legal rights in selecting its clientele they should be admired for their stand in refusing to allow themselves to be pushed around by a very small minority.

M. B. A.
Washington.

The National Theater has cut off its nose to spite its face. The National will show movies beginning September 1, rather than break its tradition of having an all-white audience. It is the most absurd thing of which I have ever heard.

First of all, all types of people are not interested in going to the theater to see a "legitimate stage play. Secondly, "the trashy class" of whites as well as "the trashy class" of Negroes are not willing to pay the price, nor are they interested in the finer things of life.

If the policy goes through, Washington, the Capital of the United States, will be a city without a legitimate stage, due to discrimination. Sounds ridiculous, doesn't it?

Segregated Playgrounds

Current debate over reversing the racial segregation policies of our public playgrounds transfers the restrictive covenant issues from private property to public domain. Letters like the one of Wendall A. Parris (June 12) make the segregation issue a personal challenge to one's allegiance to the democratic ideal. Living close to a public playground, his children may not enjoy tax-subsidized benefits because they are Negro. The public playground is for white only.

The hostility of this quasi-Southern community to any compromise with its ancient tradition of racial segregation is understandable. It is a community conspiracy in which most of us participate. Our fear of miscegenation is so deep and sincere that we accept denial of minority rights as the lesser evil. Yet the thinking white person knows we must face this grave social and political problem and find a workable solution. Reversal of racial segregation policies on public playgrounds is both a logical and fruitful place to start.

Our Supreme Court unanimously has ruled that segregation is not enforceable as restrictive covenants. It declares that patterns of racial prejudice and preference imposed by dominant majorities have no force beyond mutual consent. If not applicable to private contracts, then how may the repugnant practice be applicable to public policy on public domain?

Obviously a public playground belongs equally to all citizens. No dominant group legally may preempt public domain for purposes prejudicial to the principle of the basic equality of all citizens. Either intelligent good will attempts a practical formula of interracial amity or legal compulsion will impose a less desirable one.

The most persuasive pleading for voluntary reversal of our playground segregation policy is that inevitable change will be achieved by evolution rather than revolution. A working formula for interracial amity first should be attempted at areas of association where frictions traditionally are minimal. Even with explosive adults sports and recreation represent areas of human association freest from race hates and prejudices. Children are even more inclined toward attitudes of tolerance and fair play.

If you disapprove of biracial association on a public domain there is no compulsion to participate. Whether we like it or not, our Supreme Court has decreed only human rights are enforceable. Our prejudices are not.

"Packed Delegation"

I wish to thank The Washington Post for the splendid editorial of June 11 criticizing the stand taken by the Democratic Central Committee of the District in denying the delegates of the Washington Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action the privilege of appearing on the ballot of delegates for the Philadelphia convention next month.

I hope your editorial brings the desired results through protests from an outraged public against such high-handed manipulation of our politics.

It is heartening at least to have a paper such as The Washington Post to give expression to the basic tenets of our democracy when they are in danger of being abused or destroyed.

Platform Pressure

By Malvina Lindsay

Normalcy Lobby

I FOUND Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Mastodon as they were about to depart for Philadelphia for convention preliminaries. They were surrounded by a large assortment of genuine leather luggage including six hat boxes. Mrs. Mastodon was wearing an orchid and carrying others in a refrigerated box. "I hear there may be an orchid shortage in Philadelphia," she explained.

"Mr. Mastodon," I began, "as president of the Status Quo Protective League——"

"We are now," he interrupted, "the Committee to Forestall the Atomic Age."

"Will your committee work at both party conventions for its platform planks?"

"Yes, but our vice president, Senator Beauregard Gumm, will handle the lobby—I mean public relations—at the Democratic convention."

"Will Mrs. Mastodon help in your lobby—I mean your public relations—this week with the Republican Resolutions Committee?"

"Oh, no! no!, Mrs. Mastodon never meddles in politics?"

"BESIDES," spoke up Mrs. Mastodon, "I won't have time. The partying's getting under way early. Simply everybody is entertaining. There will be some simply stunning parties. I've promised to help some of the girls line up their big shots—I mean their guests—in advance.

"What will you try to get into the Republican platform, Mr. Mastodon?"

"We want to make it 100 per cent early American, a platform that all the sound-thinking public as well as the right-minded people at large will indorse, one that stands for four-square advance back to fundamental democracy——"

"Watch out for that word 'denocracy," admonished Mrs. Mastodon.

"I mean republicanism. We are calling for an end to all this bureaucracy and regimentation, this chaos and confusion——"

"Just a minute, Mr. Mastodon. What is your main plank?"

"Freedom, of course."

"YOU MEAN freedom of speech, thought, religion——"

"Exactly! Freedom of the American businessman to make a dollar as he chooses without Government interference, freedom of the American taxpayer from handing over to the Government every red cent he makes, freedom of business generally from red tape, regulations, red tape, robber[illegible] tatorship——"

"Remember your heart, S[illegible] ter!" cautioned Mrs. M[illegible]

"Do you have an inter[illegible] relations plank?"

"Yes indeed. But we are isolationists. We favor p[illegible] forces to maintain peace—provided of course we don't let any American boys get mixed up in them and provided we don't give any more handouts to a lot of lazy foreigners who are always stirring up trouble."

"And of course we—that is Sylvester, is against letting any more foreigners come into this country," added Mrs. Mastodon.

"What about labor, Mr. Mastodon?"

"I've always been a friend of labor——"

"He means true, hardworking American labor," explained Mrs. Mastodon.

"WHAT ARE some of your other planks?"

"We demand that the Republican Party come out against Communists, Socialists, New Dealers, Democrats, professors, internationalists, theorists, do-gooders, civil rightists, free tradists—well Reds of all kinds. We are also against frills in the schools, doles for the lazy, Franklin D. Roosevelt, war, sin——"

"Just a minute. Aren't you for anything?"

"Certainly: We're for freedom."

"He means the right kind of freedom," explained Mrs. Mastodon.

"We shall also demand that the Republican Party declare this so-called Atomic Age a lot of subversive propaganda——"

"Don't say 'proapaganda,'" frowned Mrs. Mastodon.

"While we're not opposed to the atom bomb," continued Mr. Mastodon, "so long as this country keeps the secret, yet all this tomfoolery about medical cures, power miracles, more leisure and things that'll completely upset the country has got to stop!"

"It's making radicals out of people," said Mrs. Mastodon.

"The Republicans at Philadelphia this week," declaimed Mr. Mastodon, "have a rendezous with destiny. Everything depends on these next four years."

"You mean—war or peace?"

"I mean whether the proper elements get control of the Republican Party—and even the Democratic."

Teachers' Raise

I was amazed to learn that Representative Bates has condescended to give the teachers a $200 cost-of-living increase. Feeling he had to justify his discriminatory attitude, he gives one the impression that it is really a $360 increase since teachers get a [illegible] increment each September. Thereby, he leads the reader to conclude that in contrast the Federal worker, for whom a $360 cost-of-living increase is being proposed, does not get a periodic increase when in fact he gets more, in certain instances $250 every 18 months.

Is the rising cost of living an animal which attacks Federal workers but not teachers? Do we gain sustenance because we possess degrees?

Matter Of Fact

Fear In France II

PARIS.—A recent episode helps to explain the profound sense of insecurity which underlies the current bitter wrangle in the French Assembly over the six-power agreement on western Germany. The incident followed a now familiar pattern. An official of one of the Soviet satellite countries, who had just returned from a pilgrimage to the Kremlin, obligingly offered to describe his visit to a French diplomat. He had conferred at some length with the Russian chiefs, the satellite official told the Frenchman, and they had assured him that their one desire was peace.

The Russian leaders had also asserted, however, that one development would leave them no choice but to order the Red Army into action. That was the rearmament of western Germany by the western powers. Moreover, the Russians had clearly intimated, they were inclined to consider the establishment of a government for western Germany as the first step toward German rearmament.

This conversation was of course reported back to the French Foreign Office, as it was intended that it should be. Its meaning was perfectly clear—beneath the facade of the Soviet peace offensive, a grim warning to the French. The episode occurred before the end of the six-power London conference on western Germany. Yet French Ambassador Rene Massigli, acting on instructions from French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, agreed to the establishment of a western German government at Frankfurt. In that sense, the no doubt carefully rehearsed warning from Moscow failed.

YET IN another sense, this example of the well-established Soviet technique of bullying at one remove has no doubt succeeded. For it has aggravated the French fear of a war in which the French would be powerless to protect themselves, a fear which is the most striking feature of French political life today.

One reflection of this profound feeling of insecurity is a French proposal which has recently been forwarded to the American and British governments on the initiative of French Premier Robert Schuman. The French have proposed a joint demarche to Moscow by the three western powers. The three powers would again assert that the Soviets are free to join their zone of Germany to the three western zones, and would repeat that the formation of a western German government implies no threat whatsoever to the Soviet Union. The dual purpose of this demarche would be to placate both the Kremlin and French public opinion, which has undoubtedly been deeply disturbed by the agreement on western Germany. Much will depend, of course, on the resolution of the French crisis which is now in progress, but it is believed that the American and British governments are considering accepting this French proposal, on three conditions. One is that the note be sent to Moscow only after all the governments concerned have approved the agreement reached at London. Another is that it be made clear to the Kremlin that no further conferences, on the futile pattern of the past, are contemplated. And a third condition is that under any circumstances the Soviets should have no part in the management of the Ruhr.

IT IS extremely unlikely that any real Soviet-western agreement could result from such a move. Yet it might help to reduce the growing French fear of a Soviet armed assault on the west. More formal American commitments to France and to Western Union, on the lines of the Vandenberg resolution, will also certainly in part dispel French doubts of the dependability of the United States as an ally in the struggle between east and west, doubts which the meat-axing of ECA appropriations brought to a head.

Yet the plain fact is that the fear which hangs like an almost visible cloud over this lovely city, as to a greater or lesser degree over every city in western Europe, cannot really be dispelled by placatory notes to Moscow nor by American assurances. For the fear springs simply from the conviction that the Red army, at the word of command from the Kremlin, could push to the Atlantic in a matter of weeks. While this conviction persists, the fear will persist.

Can western Europe be placed again in a "posture of defense"? The joint military staff committee of Western Union is reported to believe that the answer is "yes"—with American help. The Western Union experts have reportedly estimated that between 40 and 50 crack divisions, with the best equipment, largely American, and with decisive air superiority, could hold the Red army on the Rhine.

GENERAL CHARLES DE GAULLE is believed to differ with the Western Union estimate. He is quoted: "They would create an army of prisoners again." De Gaulle believes in a system of "redoubts"—strong points which, supplied by air, could hold out on French soil until a counterattack could be mounted from the west. Aside from the strategic problem there is also the economic problem: Can the economies of both Europe and the United States now stand the great strain of the effective rearmament of western Europe?

These questions must soon be answered. For the general conviction in western Europe—that nothing today could stop the Red army short of the Atlantic—is the basic weakness of the west in the great contest now in progress. In view of the wholly exposed position of France today, French fears seem anything but surprising. Indeed, what is surprising is that despite their fears, the French have committed themselves in the struggle between east and west as completely and courageously as they have.

New AEC-Financed Method Held Hope for Cancer Cure

By The Associated Press

Lewis L. Strauss, member of the Atomic Energy Commission, reported yesterday a new technique for using radio-active iodine to treat cancer "holds out hope" for curing the disease.

Strauss said he had been advised of the development by Dr. Cornelius P. Rhoads, director of the Sloan-Kettering Institute at Memorial Hospital in New York City.

Strauss first made the disclosure before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee. The group is studying requests of the commission for a restoration of House cuts in AEC appropriations for the 1949 fiscal year, starting July 1. He later elaborated on his testimony to reporters.

Radio-active iodine has been used successfully, Strauss said, in the treatment of thyroid cancer. Because of iodine's affinity for the thyroid, he explained, it has not been possible before to use it successfully to check cancer in other parts of the body.

Strauss said the new technique developed at Sloan-Kettering in the last few days from research financed by AEC funds deals with this. It indicates, he said, that a means of concentrating any required amount of radio-active iodine 131 in any desired amount in any tissue or organ of the body probably has been discovered.

He said Dr. Rhoads reported the method is still complex, but seems to work. The doctor added that while the results are wholly preliminary, they are impressive.

Radio-active iodine may be administered either orally or by injection. It offers, Strauss said, a nonsurgical treatment for a deep-seated lesion without damage to surrounding tissue. Once the radio-active iodine is concentrated in an infected part of the body, its radiation immediately attacks and destroys the malignant tissue.

Previously it has been used in the treatment of thyroid cancer because the iodine went to that part of the body immediately upon being administered. If the technique developed at Sloan-Kettering lives up to its advance expectations, it would be possible to use the treatment for other cancer-infected portions of the body.

Strauss gave no details as to the technique itself. He received the report on it in his capacity as a trustee of Memorial Hospital.

AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal told the committee the House cuts raise "grave dangers to the atomic energy program."

"In our considered opinion," he said, "they may threaten the very foundation upon which world leadership by this country in atomic energy depends."

Lilienthal urged restoration of a 48-million-dollar cut made by the House in the commission's appropriations for the year beginning July 1. The House recommended a total of $501,850,000, plus 400 million dollars in contract authority.

The chairman noted the House directed the 48-million-dollar cut should be made without hurting military phases of the atomic program. He added:

"The House committee recognizes, as does the commission and the country, how close is atomic energy to the present balance of peace, and the security of the country.

"But it is my duty to advise this committee that the reductions, applied as the report recommended, will directly and inescapably affect these very 'military phases' the committee stated it was its purpose not to affect."

Lilienthal said basic research would have to be curtailed.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Stassen's Missed Opportunity

OF THE THREE leading contenders for the Republican presidential nomination, Harold Stassen is given the least chance to capture the grand prize at Philadelphia. Experienced observers rule out even the possibility of the No. 2 place for the big, broad-shouldered farmer's son from Minnesota.

Childs

For one of Stassen's burning ambitions this would be a bitter anticlimax to a campaign as remarkable as any in American political history. Few men have gone so far on so limited a career in public office.

Largely by his own heroic endeavors, Stassen lifted himself to a point at which he threatened to run away with the convention. It was an achievement that took nerve, resourcefulness, endless energy, patience and great self-discipline. All these qualities Stassen has as a counterpoise to his vaulting ambition.

His ardent backers reject vehemently the view of the calculating professionals who deny Stassen a chance. They point to the passionate partisanship of the Stassen delegates. With this core of unflinching support, they insist that the Stassen managers can maneuver in a deadlock to bring about a victory for their hero.

IN MY OPINION Stassen's big chance for the nomination was in his original approach. That was to build himself up as an independent, taking a stand of his own regardless of the views of party regulars. In this way he might have accumulated such strength in popular and delegate following that the convention could not have turned him down.

That was the role he assumed when he returned from his service with the Navy in the Pacific at the age of 38. A delegate to the conference in San Francisco that shaped the United Nations, he increased his stature as a public figure of independence and integrity.

Following a carefully plotted course to capture the Presidency, he made his voice heard throughout the Nation. What he said about American responsibility to win the peace was in accord with what most Americans were thinking.

With only a small organization and paying his own way in part by lecturing and writing, Stassen made remarkable progress. Visiting western Europe and Russia, he showed his desire to learn at first hand the problems his country faced.

A year ago he began a change in his tactics. This was shown in his declaration that no nation in Europe carrying out nationalization or socialization of industry should be given Marshall Plan aid. He was thus to the right of Senator Robert A. Taft, who recognized that such a provision would make the program unworkable.

In his discussion of public housing, Stassen was fuzzy, seeming to evade a stand on the part Government should play. He catered to powerful grazing interests in the Western States. On public power he said one thing in one region and another thing in another part of the country.

NOW, of course, a politician running for office must be granted the right to a certain amount of double-talk. But Stassen's strength and his hope of success lay precisely in that he was an independent spurning the tricks and stratagems of the clever politician.

What he failed to realize was that no matter how far to the right he turned, he could never win over the Old Guard regulars in his party. By publicly spurning Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and invading Taft's home State of Ohio, he alienated two men who would yield great power even though they themselves might not capture the nomination.

The momentum of Stassen's original approach, getting out and talking to the voters, answering their questions, carried him a long way. But as a quick-talking, changeable self-salesman he began to lose some of the support he had won from the mass of independent voters. He began to look more like merely another politician and less like the independent spokesman for millions of Americans who want to see an able leader in the White House, no matter what his political tag.

Regardless of the outcome of the convention in Philadelphia, the country will be in Stassen's debt. If it had not been for his aggressive campaigning, we should have had even less opportunity then we have had to see the other contenders in action. He forced them to get out into the country and to say something about their views on national and international issues. That in itself is a real achievement and, ironically enough, it is one of the reasons why the Old Guard means to shut him out.

State Department and NBC Both Blamed in Voice 'Smear'

By The Associated Press

House investigators yesterday held the State Department and the National Broadcasting Company both at fault for the airing of Voice of America "smear" programs.

A report by an expenditures subcommittee also recommended "safeguards" to prevent any more such programs from being broadcast. And it suggested that maybe the Voice of America shouldn't talk so much.

The subcommittee investigated after many lawmakers charged that American States and customs were "smeared" by "Know North America" programs prepared by NBC for the State Department and beamed to Latin America last winter.

One of these programs contained the statement, "New England was founded by hypocrisy and Texas by sin." Other references were described as offensive to Mormons, Quakers and other groups.

Carelessness Alleged

The House group reported that NBC "did not properly discharge the great responsibility which it undertook in its contract with the State Department." It said the "unfortunate" broadcasts would not have occurred if NBC "exercised reasonable care and ordinary caution."

And the report said, "The State Department was negligent in permitting programs of this type to be broadcast at the expense of the taxpayers of the United States."

(Spokesmen for both NBC and the State Department accepted, during the committee hearings, a share of the responsibility for the broadcasts.

(NBC said, however, that with the limited funds available it was physically impossible to keep a check on foreign language broadcasts made for the State Department. The "Know North America" series was written in Spanish.

(The State Department said Congress itself had ordered as many Voice of America programs as possible to be done by private organizations. Lack of funds, the department said, prevented a close check on these programs.)

Check in English Urged

The House investigating group was headed by Representative Chenoweth (R., Colo.). It recommended, among other things, that foreign language broadcasts be checked in an English version before they are made, and that they be monitored by the State Department itself.

It said the emphasis should be on quality rather than quantity, and: "In the absence of clear and convincing evidence of the need for, and the effectiveness of, our broadcasts to Latin America, such broadcasts should be reduced to a minimum, or eliminated."

Another recommendation was that "except in extraordinary situations" only United States citizens who have lived most of their lives in this country should prepare foreign information broadcasts. (The broadcasts that figured in the investigation were written by Rene Borgia, a native of Venezuela.)

The committee said it was convinced that even if there was no deliberate attempt "to sabotage our efforts to promote international understanding and good will," some NBC employe or employes "were ignorant of the intent and purpose" of the programs.

Tax on Concubines Planned by Jap City

Tokyo, June 15 (AP).—The Tokyo government, seeking ways to raise money, has proposed to tax its concubines.

At least one third of Kyoto's geisha, estimated at about 5000 women, are concubines of Japanese businessmen and newly rich Koreans.

Hirohito May Get Raise

Tokyo, June 15 (U.P.).—Court treasurers today unanimously decided to increase Emperor Hirohito's living allowance 2½ times to 20 million yen ($400,000) a year. The plan must be pproved by Allied headquarters and the Japanese Diet.

REMEMBER FATHER ON FATHER'S DAY . . . SUNDAY, JUNE 20.

Father's Day Gifts . . .

Happy is the man whose wife and children remember the one day of the year dedicated to father—and welcome the opportunity to present him with a gift—something he never would buy for himself. A good pipe, some fine quality hose, a panama hat, a fine razor, a cashmere sweater, a silk pocket handkerchief, a pair of imported suspenders, or a leather belt. Or it may be a California sport shirt, luxurious, even high-priced, though of exceptional value.

And who dares say that those who give presents on father's day are not happier than father himself!

Business Outlook Good, Group Told

Domestic business prospects are bright, C. O. Hardy, staff director of the Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report, told a meeting of the American Marketing Association at the Statler yesterday.

Hardy spoke of the pitfalls facing business forecasters and cited the increasing mass of statistics on business trends being placed in the hands of the public. Along with good business prospects he saw continuation of the present inflationary trend.

Earlier the 500 members of the association heard Robert E. Freer, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission; Lawrence Kingsland, Commissioner of Patents, and Walter P. Wooden, assistant general counsel of the Federal Trade Commission.

Yesterday's session wound up a two-day meeting of the organization, which is devoted to promoting scientific marketing.

A. Rex Johnson of Washington was general conference chairman. Charles H. Sevin of Washington was chairman of the arrangements committee. Rowe Alderson of Philadelphia is president of the association.

Lutherans Pick Ressmeyer as District Head

The Rev. Rudolph S. Ressmeyer of Baltimore yesterday was elected president of the Southeastern District of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod.

He succeeds the Rev. O. A. Sauer of Richmond. About 150 delegates from churches in Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, the District, Georgia and North and South Carolina are attending the three-day convention at Christ Lutheran Church, 16th and Gallatin sts. nw.

At the opening session yesterday, delegates heard the Rev. Mr. Sauer, retiring president, call for an increase in funds for missionary work. He urged delegates to face "courageously and without prejudice" their decisions on work with Negroes in the Southeastern District area.

Last night Dr. Arthur Brunn, vice president of the synod, called upon the pastors to bring healing to a sin-sick world. Sessions today will be devoted to committee reports and resolutions.

World's Tallest Building May Be Built in Houston

Houston, Tex., June 15 (AP).—The world's tallest building may be erected here.

Officials of the United Building Supply Co. said they are considering plans for a structure 140 stories, 1366 feet high. That would be a foot taller than the Palace of the Soviets in Russia, and would dwarf New York's Empire State Building by 116 feet.

Murel Goodell, general manager, said the skyscraper would house "the world's largest department store, the world's largest theater, and the world's largest hotel." Space probably would be left for some smaller businesses.

The building would have 1,500,000 square feet of floor space and would cost about $25,000,000.

G. E. Results Dramatized for Area Investors

The General Electric Co. yesterday brought to life its annual report at a regional stockholders meeting in the Statler.

An estimated 700 local shareholders, their guests and Government officials attended the session here. A color film of the giant company's operations was the highlight. Philip D. Reed, board chairman, and Charles E. Wilson, president, made a motion picture appearance and gave a running explanation of the company's operations as shown in the movie.

W. H. Milton, jr., commercial vice president, presided here and explained major actions taken at the formal annual meeting last April in Schenectady. Other local G. E. representatives were introduced.

This innovation in stockholders relations, Milton said, is the result of company realization that it is distance and not lack of interest that prevents many stockholders from attending the formal annual session.

Of particular interest was the pictorial history of the year's developments in G. E. plants and laboratories.

Meanwhile, another corporation issued its annual report yesterday in novel form. The ATF Corp., parent firm of American Type Founders, Inc., included a phonograph record in a book illustrated with cartoons and highlighted with a "pop-up" device like a comic valentine. The record voiced President Thomas Roy Jones' report on the year's results.

R. C. Jones Co. Opens Second Branch Office

By S. Oliver Goodman

A second branch office has been opened by the Washington investment house of Robert C. Jones & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, it was announced yesterday.

Sledge

The new branch at 1713 I st. nw. will be managed by Louis A. Sledge, who has been associated with the Jones firm for eight years. Associated with him will be Robert C. Jones, jr., as assistant manager, Luther E. Schreiner and Richard B. Jones.

Last month the Jones firm opened its first branch in Silver Spring, Md., pioneering the way into that thriving Maryland metropolis. It marked the first time that a local investment house had opened a branch and the initial brokerage house in that city.

The I street branch is in the heart of the Washington medical district. Robert C. Jones, senior partner of the firm which has main offices in the Metropolitan Bank Building, said yesterday this branch is equipped to handle a complete brokerage and investment service. It will have a stock quotation board, translux, stock ticker, Dow Jones news ticker and a statistical library.

ELEVATED: William A Spaugh, manager of the installment loan department, has been elected an assistant treasurer of American Security & Trust Co. Spaugh, a former Air Corps captain, had been associated with the Universal Credit Corp. before joining the local company. Also, directors of American Security & Trust Co. have declared a dividend of 2½ per cent on capital stock, payable July 9 to stock of record June 15, President Daniel W. Bell announced.

NEW ENTERPRISE: Edward A. J. Fay, former chief of the tariffs and service division of the Civil Aeronautics Board, has launched a new traffic service for airlines and other carriers. Among other services, the company will offer facilities to meet all Federal, State and foreign regulatory requirements connected with the construction, publication, filing and distribution of all classes of tariffs and operating schedules, Fay said. Associated with Fay in the new enterprise is Eugene S. Ostheimer, former assistant general sales manager of Northeast Airlines. Offices are at 1703 K st. nw.

FIRE RATES UP: Fire insurance companies, operating in the red since 1943, have been granted rate increases on certain types of risks in 15 States. Maryland is included, but not the District of Columbia or Virginia, according to the National Board of Fire Underwriters. The board added that principal property affected is small manufacturing plants with inadequate fire protection. The estimated increase for Maryland was 10 per cent.

ODD LOTS: A group of former officers of the Empire Steel Corp., sold recently to Studebaker Corp., has leased the naval industrial reserve plant at Birdsboro, Pa., and has formed the Penn-Ohio Steel Corp. . . . Treasury Department reports money in circulation increased $90,914,736 in May after previously declining for four straight months . . . Floyd D. Cerf Co., Inc., heads a Nation-wide syndicate which today will offer a new issue of two million dollar 6 per cent convertible debentures of Segal Lock & Hardware Co. . . . Laura Marquis of Pittsburgh is new chairman of the financial group of Special Libraries Association which met here recently . . . Raphael H. O'Malley has been appointed national director of payroll savings of Savings Bond Division.

Walworth Votes Dividend

Walworth Co., declared a dividend of 40 cents on common stock, payable June 30 to stockholders of record June 25. Previous payments were 25 cents in June, 1947, and 50 cents in December.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 15 (AP).—Wheat was independently strong in today's Board of Trade session. Some buying was traced to mills. Other buying was by shorts and by commercial houses against sales of cash wheat to the Government.

In early trading the continued heavy movement of wheat in the Southwest continued to attract attention, but there was no indication of heavy hedge selling.

Rallies in corn and oats were not sustained. Private reports say that the corn crop is developing nicely. Although cash houses were reported paying higher premiums and bookings were only 3000 bushels, corn was heavy.

At the close wheat was ⅝ to 1¼ higher than the previous close, July, 2.28¼@2.28⅜; corn was ⅛ to 1¼ lower, July, 2.27⅝@2.27⅝; oats were ⅜ to 1⅝ lower, July, 93½@93⅝, and soybeans were 2½ to 9 lower, July, 4.07.

THE PRESS PARTY given by Kay Ford and Al Walters to help celebrate the Saturday night dances at Chesapeake Beach Park got under its somewhat late but nonetheless spectacular way last Saturday afternoon. After a pleasant drive through the country we arrived at the park to find the sun in a cooperative mood. First on the agenda was a swim in the salt water pool that was even more enjoyable than it would have been because of the lack of crowds. It's a large pool, three strokes longer than our physical strength, and the water is completely filtered every hour.

Later there was a short cruise on the bay in one of the many fishing cruisers. According to the man running the boat the fishing has been good at night. If this seems a little distant from night clubs and such we'll hop off the cruiser and walk into the Rod 'n Reel Restaurant for a shore dinner. It's a lovely place to eat, has good food and you can look out over the bay while you wrestle with your lobster or crab dinner. As soon as you finish your coffee you can join us on the boardwalk for a short walk back to dance floor.

Ina Ray Hutton made a better-late-than-never arrival looking very sharp for a gal who's been in show biz for as long as she has. All in all it turned out to be a very lovely day and evening that we'd like to do a repeat on soon. This Saturday night Gene Krupa opens his drum kit long enough to do a one-night stand.

Shirley Allen will be winding up a successful stay at the Merry-Land Club next Tuesday night. If you haven't had the chance to hear her do so soon and see if she and the material she writes don't remind you of Nan Blackstone.

LAST WEEK we made an error in saying that Evelyn Balfour was doing a bit of future peeking into at the Watergate Inn. Her name is really Evangeline Balfour, and she says we're due for a reading. Judging from the headlines, we'd almost rather just have the future happen, thank you.

The fickle finger of the weatherman stopped flicking raindrops long enough to let the Roger Smith Hotel open its roof garden last Friday night. Judging from the worried looks around the roof a rain would have caused no less than half a dozen breakdowns. Sammy Seymour, the band and Nini Baker all did a nice job furnishing the music. Sammy has been breaking a couple of new members in the past few days, but you'd never know it from the way they play together.

Another spot leaning toward the fresh air Friday night was the La Conga Terrace. The big attraction there is Elena, a very sharp blonde capable of singing some very fast Spanish. Wish we could have stayed to learn the language.

Received: one card from Marjorie Garretson in the Biltmore Bowl in Los Angeles saying she's being held over again.

The Mayflower lounge has discontinued its feature acts until this fall. Replacing Dick Barlow and Rosiland Courtwright are Eric Correa and Ruth Brown as vocalist, during cocktail and dinner hours, and Johnny Shaw for luncheon music.

$9000 Awarded Estate of Woman, Killed in Crash

One year to the day after Ardyce L. Simon, 25-year-old nurse at St. Elizabeths Hospital died in an automobile accident on a Prince Georges County road, her estate was awarded damages of $9000 yesterday by a jury before Justice Jennings Bailey in the District Court.

The damage suit was filed for Miriam Young, 4500 Livingston rd. se., administratrix of the girl's estate, by Attorney Leonard P. Walsh of Washington, against Army Air Force Sergt. Alton T. Hall, 4325 Taylor st. se., with whom Miss Simon was riding when his car ran off the road and crashed into a tree.

Beneficiary of the estate will be Miss Simon's mother, Mrs. Nellie Simon of Frederic, Wis., who said her daughter was her sole support until her death.

Boys' Clubs Seek Funds

The Prince Georges County Boys' Clubs appealed for funds yesterday to meet their goal of $30,000 to provide year-round programs for 33 clubs.

Sugar Workers Go Back

Baltimore June 15 (AP).—Employes of the American Sugar Refining Co. here returned to work today accepting an 11-cent-hourly wage increase.

Russian Bride Quits 'Slavery' Of England

Moscow, June 15 (U.P.).—Mrs. John Brand, a Russian war bride, announced in a letter in Pravda today she had left a life of "slavery" in Britain to return to the Soviet Union for good.

In a "warning" to other Russian women, Mrs. Brand said she suffered privation and poverty in England. She was forced to live the slavish life of all British housewives who, the English believe, "must be occupied only by kitchen and children," she said.

Because of "unrestrained British propaganda," the Soviet wives in England were treated "haughtily and with some despisal," Mrs. Brand wrote in the Communist party organ. Five other Russian wives there intend to follow her example, she said.

Not once in her 2½ years in England did she go to the theater, Mrs. Brand said, since her husband made only $20 a week. When he got a new job she had to sell all the valuables she had brought along from Moscow to get him decent clothes.

Bringing her small son with her, she left her husband after he was threatened with the loss of his job for the third time since her arrival in London in 1945. She brought suit for divorce one month ago.

She also left, she said, because she worried when it became increasingly obvious her then year-old son had no chance for education in England.

House Unit Votes To Void Contempt Against Kamp

The House Rules Committee in executive session yesterday approved a resolution to withdraw the contempt of Congress citation voted against Joseph P. Kamp, 46, of New York, for refusing to produce the records of his Constitutional Educational League, Inc., before a House committee in 1944.

Kamp was indicted, found guilty by a District Court jury and sentenced to four months in jail, two months less than was given Dr. Edward K. Barsky and others of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee for refusing to produce their records before the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Kamp's appeal now is pending in the United States Court of Appeals. The resolution to withdraw the citation against him was introduced some months ago by Representative Ralph Church (R., Ill.), who voted against citing Kamp when Kamp disobeyed the House summons four years ago.

State Department Shifts Press Aide To Paris Embassy

The State Department announced yesterday that Reginald P. Mitchell, one of its press officers, will be transferred to Paris as second secretary and information officer at the American Embassy.

Mitchell

Mitchell, a native of Jacksonville, Fla., is a graduate of Vanderbilt University at Nashville, Tenn. Before entering the foreign service in 1931 he engaged in newspaper and public relations work for 12 years. He was on the news staff of The Washington Post for several years.

In the last four years, as a member of the staff of State Department press officer Michael J. McDermott, he has been sent overseas on two occasions, once a press officer of the American mission to observe the Greek elections in 1946, and again as press officer in the American mission handling political developments in Korea during the first four months of this year.

Chiang Takes Command of Central Front

Nanking, June 15 (AP).—President Chiang Kai-shek himself is directing government military operations on the critical Central China front, a reliable source said today.

The source reported Chiang decided to take charge when Gen. Pai Chung-hsi refused to accept the command. A friend said, "it is hard for Pai to accept a nominal military post after 30 years of active service."

A government military spokesman reported no developments on the central front, where Communist armies are gradually broadening their holdings and threatening the rich Yangtze Valley.

In Shantung Province, the government claimed a victory in fighting around Tsinan, provincial capital. The Tsinan garrison messaged it had killed 2000 Communists near "Dragon Hill" in the eastern suburbs.

3d Infantry to March In Alexandria Parade

"Washington's Own" Third Infantry Regiment will be among Army units in the annual Virginia Veterans of Foreign Wars Encampment parade in Alexandria June 21, VFW officials announced yesterday.

The parade, scheduled as one of the features of the Virginia veterans' convention, will be led by the Fifty-first Army Band, and also will include a band and a battalion of engineer troops from Fort Belvoir; a band, drum corps and troops from the Quantico Marine Base; sailors, Waves, Coast Guardsmen and National Guard units. Joseph B. Martin of Russell Mitchell Post, Alexandria, is chairman for the parade.

Mrs. Seeley Here to Take Spouse Home

Mabel Seeley, author of the best-selling novel, "Woman of Property," came here from Minneapolis yesterday and began efforts to have her husband released from Gallinger Hospital.

Dr. Kenneth Seeley, 44, former University of Minnesota English instructor, was committed there last Wednesday when he was arrested on the Catholic University campus, wearing the cassock of a priest on the faculty.

Mrs. Seeley was unavailable, but all indications were that local law enforcement officers and hospital authorities would cooperate to permit Seeley's return to Minneapolis.

Assistant United States Attorney J. Warren Wilson said a charge of unlawful entry against Seeley would be dropped as soon as psychiatrists indicated there was no criminal intent involved. According to police, Seeley took the clerical clothing from the room of Rev. John B. Zachary, chemistry professor, Tuesday night, leaving his own clothes in its place. Seeley was enrolled in summer courses.

Dr. Joseph L. Gilbert, chief psychiatrist at Gallinger, declined to divulge the results of mental examinations of Seeley thus far and wouldn't venture a diagnosis publicly. He said, however, that Seeley could be released as soon as Mrs. Seeley can make arrangement for her husband's safe transport home and for proper psychiatric care, if needed.

Dr. Gilbert said he understood Seeley's history showed one other occasion when he was hospitalized for an apparent mental illness.

33 Graduates Get Diplomas At Devitt School

Diplomas were presented last night to 33 graduates of Devitt Sshool 2955 Upton st. nw., in commencement exercises at the Shoreham Hotel.

John A. Reilly, president of the Second National Bank, told the graduates the "triumph of an evil idea" is a greater menace than victories by "tyrannical governments."

He urged them to continue their educations and offered a ten-point program to help them meet the future. His theme was "America's Destiny is Your Obligation."

Invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Clifford Homer Richmond, pastor of Chevy Chase Methodist Church. Diplomas were presented by Dwight C. Bracken, principal.

Council Gets Dispute Over Office Space

The question of who is to use the first-floor offices in the new Alexandria Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court was left unanswered last night by Alexandria City Council.

After a 4-to-4 vote on keeping the ten-room building at 115 N. Patrick st. for the exclusive use of the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court, council voted 5-to-4 to table the question until next Tuesday, when a public hearing will be held.

The problem arose Monday when Francis Drischler, real estate assessor, and James Clark, State driver's permit inspector, tried to move into quarters on the first floor.

Judge Marion B. West locked the front door, denying them entrance.

West last night said his chief concern is to "protect from public view" children and their parents coming into his court. He said the present five-man staff of the court probably will be expanded in the near future to fill the entire building.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys
If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Dupont Pictures French Farm Life

By Richard L. Coe

THE DUPONT has an unusual and fascinating film in "Farrebique." This is a French picture, a quiet study of the four seasons on a provincial farm. It also suggests some revealing comparisons with the U. S. farmlands.

There are no actors in the cast; the slight story is portrayed by the people of whom the farm actually belongs and to whom similar experiences have happened. The setting is the almost painful simplicity of the French peasantry.

The photography is downright superb. By the use of still-motion photography Cameraman Andre A. Dantan has given us the falling shadows of eventide, the growth of plants and flowers, the motion of the earth in springtime plowing and many of the subtle wonders of nature that make country living so quietly stimulating.

Exactly how the social observers of France looked at this record of their land would be interesting to know. Here is a careful study of farming life, the crowded quarters which must accommodate grandparents, one son and his family of five, and a younger son. Here is farming as it has been practiced by generations of fine, frugal folk, yet with few of the conveniences one sees pictured in the magazines devoted to American farm life.

Our Rural Electrification High

In this country there are 5,800,000 farms; 61 per cent of them have electricity. The year 1947 saw this figure rise from 50 per cent in 1946, making last year the largest rural electrical increase our country has ever known. This year's total is expected to go higher.

Of our farm people, one-half have access to freezer-locker plants; 43 per cent have washing machines and 38 per cent electric ice boxes. Ours, particularly in the farmer's lush recent years, is a remarkable record of bringing the blessings of science to the hardships of husbandry.

And so, in contrast, there is something heartbreakingly pathetic about this affectionate record of these French farmers. While one might say that farming is the same the world over, in an age which has brought striking stride the record of "Farrebique" speaks well for the guidance of our Federal Government as opposed to stern, unchanging ways.

An Unforgettable Springtime

But, apart from its depressing suggestions as a social tract, "Farrebique" is a film of remarkable beauty. The care with which Writer-Director-Producer George Rouquier has trained his cameras on his real-life peasants results in the sensation that one is also within the rolling hillocks of Farrebique, watching the seasons come and go, marveling at the power of springtime, most moving of Rouquier's four sequences. Here is a springtime, caught as long as celluloid will last, in all its strong, subtle gnawings, bringing birth and life to the creatures of earth.

The music of Henri Sauguet, too, is prefectly fine, rushing along with the surging moods of the seasons. The quiet, reticent speech of the farming family is succinctly caught in Charles Clement's English subtitles.

The Dupont has another unusual feature in its short subject, "Spanish Gypsies." Flamenco dancing is the highlight of this realistically screened dance film from Spain. You'll smile at the happy ease with which the camera catches the youngsters in this one and your ears will click with the irregular rhythms that accompany the dancers. Combined with the unique "Farrebique," the unusual Flamenco dances form a thoroughly out-of-the-ordinary program.

"HARVEY" is going to stick around at the National through Saturday night, July 10 . . . which breaks a 113-year record for stage engagements at the National Theater, for by then Frank Fay and his company will have completed an eight-week run . . . That 113-year record? . . . No, the National's not that old . . . It's on the site of another National which opened in 1835 . . . The National's other continuous long runs have included four weeks each for "The Voice of the Turtle," "Up in Central Park" and "Oklahoma!" . . . By July 10, Fay will have played Elwood P. Dowd 1471 times; he's not missed a performance and never been late for one . . . Today, by the way, is matinee day.

TODAY: "Fighting Father Dunne," the story of a priest who comes to the aid of homeless boys, opens at Keith's with Pat O'Brien, Una O'Connor, Arthur Shields and Charles Kemper in the leading roles . . . "The Search" goes into its eighth week today at the Playhouse and 'tis said it's its last . . . "Le Silence Est d'Or" begins its second week at the Little.

CONNECTICUT FAMILY LIFE: Butch Jenkins gives Selena Royle his clipped-tooth charm in "Summer Holiday," opening Thursday at the Capitol. This is Metro's Technicolor musical based on Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness!" with Walter Huston and Mickey Rooney in the father-son roles

Loan Is Needed To Keep U. N., Senators Warn

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee warned yesterday that the United Nations might move to another country if Congress failed at this session to approve the 65-million-dollar loan for building the New York headquarters.

The committee unanimously reported a bill by Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.) to authorize the loan, and in its report made an urgent appeal for quick passage.

A similar proposal, wrapped in an omnibus bill for strengthening the U. N., has been approved by the House Foreign Affairs Committee but has not yet reached the House floor. Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) of the House committee said yesterday, after consulting Speaker Martin, that the prospects for House action this week looked brighter than before.

Called "Makeshift"

The permanence of the U. N. decision to settle in New York "cannot be assured while the United Nations remains in makeshift headquarters," the Senate committee declared in its unanimous report.

"Since the original decision, the Soviet Union has made clear that it regretted its support for the location of U. N. headquarters in this country . . . In view of the dollar shortages in the world, the availability of buildings in Geneva and Paris, and a lack of proper facilities in New York, a motion to move the headquarters to Europe might have a strong appeal for certain member states.

"The removal of headquarters from the United States would unquestionably affect United States' prestige and leadership."

The Senate committee was sharp in saying that the precedent of a loan to the U. N. by a single nation should not be repeated. However, it urged approval of this one "as an earnest of our faith in the United Nations and of our determination to strengthen it to the full."

"Investment in Hope"

"The headquarters is an investment in hope, and in investment in security and progress," the committee said.

In spite of the crowded pre-adjournment calendar in the Senate, leaders were hopeful of getting the Ives bill to the floor and reconciling it with the House bill before Congress disperses.

GW Star Admits He's a Professional

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Joe Wapinsky, two-sport star, yesterday admitted to George Washington University officials that he played professional baseball before accepting their football scholarship in February, 1947.

His statement was made at a conference with Athletic Director Max Farrington, Baseball Coach Arthur Zahn, Dr. B. H. Jarman, registrar, and Tom Coleman and John Busick of the university's publicity department.

Following Wapinsky's declaration, Farrington telephoned Col. William Couper, president of the Southern Conference, at Lexington, Va. Couper immediately ruled Wapinsky ineligible. A sophomore, the 22-year-old Wapinsky would have had two years of eligibility left.

Farrington said that G. W. would forfeit all its baseball games, and write letters of apology to the school's opponents.

"We had no knowledge of Joe's professional background," said the G. W. sports chief. Farrington then produced two yellow Southern Conference eligibility declaration forms, filled out by Wapinsky, and dated February 1, 1947.

One form was for football and the other for baseball. One of the questions asked on the sheet was: "Have you ever entered into any agreement under which you were expected to engage in professional or paid athletics? (If so, state the circumstances.)" Printed in the proper space on both sheets was "No." Wapinsky's signature followed.

G. W. Had 16-6 Record

Largely on the strength of Catcher Wapinsky's fat .378 batting average, G. W. amassed a 16-6 record, reaching the finals of the N. C. A. A. District 3 tournament at Charlotte, N. C.

It was there that the story of Wapinsky's pro career leaked out. Replying to queries of interested big league scouts, Wapinsky said he was the property of the Buffalo club of the International League.

Records showed he signed with Buffalo in 1943 at the age of 17, after graduating from St. Clair (Pa.) High School. He was optioned to Hagerstown, Md., of the Interstate League where he batted .278.

When he entered the Navy in 1944, Buffalo placed him on the National Defense list. Twenty-five months later, he received his honorable discharge, and Buffalo optioned him to Oil City, Pa., in the Depend on the Washington Redskinmanagement to recognize a news item when it sees one.

The following was included under "Tepee Topics" in a publicity release yesterday:

"Harry Gilmer, the Redskins' sensational new passer from Alabama, has 12 uncles and 11 aunts—not counting those by marriage. There are six boys and six girls in his father's family, and seven boys and six girls in his mother's clan."

The above statistics are not as yet in the National League record book.

Hudson Hopes For Comeback In St. Louis

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

St. Louis, June 15—Eight years ago, almost to the day, Rookie Pitcher Sid Hudson started a sensational comeback here in St. Louis which turned a dismal first season into a whopping success.

The 23-year-old righthander, who on June 21, 1940 had an unimpressive mark of only two victories against nine defeats, pitched a one-hit, 1-0 shutout over the Brownies for the Nats.

Rip Ridcliff spoiled his no-hitter in the ninth inning, which is relatively unimportant. The important thing, the item that Hudson likes to remember about that game, is that he proved to himself that he could pitch in the majors.

Bolstered by that near-perfect performance, Hudson went on to complete his freshman year with a 17-16 record.

Today, in spite of a 2-6 performance to date, he feels the same way and thinks maybe the current Nat series with the Browns will bear him out.

Tonight's Nat-Brown series opener was rained out, but Mickey Haefner, who, whenever he pitches is usually the signal for the Nat batters to fold up, is still Kuhel's choice to open against the Brownies tomorrow night.

NAT NOTES—Tom Ferrick's sore shoulder is O.K. once again and he's ready for his usual relief chores . . . Kuhel, who received gifts in two Western cities from fans on the last swing out this way, is now being besieged by others to help them get tickets for the All-Star game next month here . . . When Roy Scarborough saw a feature story about Art Houtteman and his eight-game losing streak he remarked: "Now, how do you account for that? Last year I lost eight in a row and very few people knew about it. Houtteman does the same thing and he becomes a celebrity."

The Ups and Downs

DOWNCAST ATHLETE—Joe Wapinsky, who yesterday admitted to George Washington University officials that he has been a professional baseball player, performed his usual chores in the school's maintenance room. But being declared ineligible by the Southern Conference had its effect on the usually happy Wapinsky. At left, the football and baseball star, hand on head, gloomily checks a reuisition on his desk. At right he seems to say, "Oh well, things could be worse." A better than B student, he faces possible expulsion.

Browns Trade Sam Zoldak To Cleveland

Cleveland, June 15 (AP).—Sam Zoldak, 25-year-old southpaw pitcher with the St Louis Browns, has been traded to the Cleveland Indians, the Tribe announced tonight.

In return, the front office said, the Indians will give up Pitcher Bill Kennedy, a player to announced later, and a "large sum of cash."

Zoldak, who joined the Browns in 1944 and pitched 18 innings for them that year without being credited with a win or loss, has two victories and four defeats so far this season.

His joining the front-running Indians was regarded as a further buttress to a pitching staff that has performed surprisingly well so far—with the possible exception of slumping Bobby Feller.

The 27-year-old Kennedy, the Indians' No. 1 draft choice, defeated the Chicago White Sox early this season for his only official game. Last night he lost an exhibition game in Brooklyn to the National League Dodgers.

The trade was announced hours before the deadline at midnight tonight.

While Zoldak has been considered a fine prospect for several years, he has never been a consistent winner. In 1945 he won three games while losing two. In 1946 Sam came up with 9 triumphs against 11 defeats and last year turned in a 9-10 record.

With Zoldak gone, the only player still with the club who was a member of the 1944 pennant-winning Browns is Al Zarilla.

Lemon Chased, Tribe Bows, 7-3

Cleveland, June 15 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox shelled Bob Lemon from the mound with a three-run outburst in the seventh inning tonight and went on to win a 7-3 victory over the league-leading Cleveland Indians before 51,380 stadium fans.

Southpaw Rookie Mel Parnell was credited with the triumph. He allowed seven hits.

Musial was on third and Enos Slaughter on first with two out when the Cardinals started the double steal try. Seminick's peg went over second and into center field.

Mrs. Walter Stokes Upset In D. C. Women's Title Golf

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

In the local season's biggest upset, Mrs. Walter Stokes of Manor was eliminated by Mrs. E. K. Harris of Kenwood in the first round of match play for the Women's District Championship yesterday at Woodmont.

Mrs. Harris, an experienced performer who has not played much golf this season, won by 2 and 1 over the Manor ace who was defending titlist and whose 79 won the medal yesterday.

Gaining a 1-up advantage at the turn, Mrs. Harris shot an 82 to Mrs. Stokes' 84.

Other outstanding performances were recorded by Mrs. L. G. Pray, Columbia; Mrs. Richard Kreuzburg, Kenwood; Mrs. A. B. Bower, Indian Spring; Mrs. George Martin, Manor; Miss Elizabeth Garber, unattached; Mrs. S. B. Crocker, Kenwood, and Mrs. Betty Meckley, Kenwood.

Wins by 9-and-8

Mrs. Pray scored the most decisive victory of the day in downing Mrs. M. H. Dinneen of Washington, 9-and-8. Her 38 going out was one of the best nines of the first round.

Mrs. Kreuzburg was headed for a round in the low 80s as she ousted Mrs. Trouchaud, a pretournament favorite, by a 5 and 3 margin. Miss Garber, a dark-horse in the tournament, jumped into London, June 15 (U.P.).—Frank Parker of Los Angeles drew the top seeding today in the men's bracket of the Wimbledon tennis championships, which begin next Monday, and Mrs. Margaret Osborne Dupont of Bellevue, Del., was seeded first in the women's division.

The Wimbledon committee virtually conceded the United States the tournament singles titles by awarding Americans five of the eight seeded positions in both men's and women's events of the sixty-third All-England championships.

Mrs. Dupont drew the first seeding in this year's meet, despite the fact that she is ranked second to Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif.,

American women won the first four seedings in their division with Miss Brough second, Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., third, and Miss Hart fourth.

The Ol' Groaner played with Jimmy Demaret, traveling pro of Ojai, who shot 34, 34—68. The Crosby-Demaret duo was in a foursome with Jimmy's brother, Al Demaret, and George Fazio of Los Angeles, with Swim Star Esther Williams as scorekeeper.

Budge, Pails Gain Tennis Quarterfinals

Forest Hills, N. Y., June 15 (AP).—Dinny Pails, former Australian Davis Cup star, and Donald Budge, veteran former court king from Hollywood, Calif., gained the quarter-finals today in the National Professional Tennis Championships.

Pails, No. 1 in the foreign-seeded list, eliminated Wayne Sabin of Bretton Woods, New Hampshire, seventh-seeded, in the feature match of the day, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3, 6—4.

Budge, runnerup to champion Bobby Riggs the last two years and No. 3 in the rankings, easily conquered Jerry Adler of White Plains, N. Y., 6—0, 6—0, 6—1.

Only One Game Lost

The red-haired Californian has lost only one game in his last two matches. He will play Pails in the round of eight.

Pails and Kramer joined three other performers in the quarter-finals. Favored Jack Kramer of Los Angeles, Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Calif., and Pancho Segura of Ecuador, had advanced previously.

Sabin's accurate volleying and forcing tactics earned him the first set against Pails, but the Australian recovered the initiative in the second set to take the next three sets.

Sabin rallied in the final set but lacked the punch to clinch it as Pails took to the forecourt and forced the issue.

Budge, who is playing some of the best tennis of his career, brushed Alder aside in 34 minutes, losing only 27 points. The redhead lost only 15 points in beating George Hudson of Los Angeles, in straight love sets yesterday.

These two singles matches today shared the West Side Tennis Club spotlight with opening jousts in doubles.

Don Budge Enters Pro Quarterfinals

Forest Hills, N. Y. June 15 (AP).—Don Budege of Hollywood, Calif., third seeded player in the twenty-first annual National Professional Tennis championships, stormed into the quarter finals today by blasting Jerry Adler of White Plains, N. Y., 6—0, 6—0, 6—1.

McCosky Hits Wall Chasing Homer by Wakefield

Detroit, June 15 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers inaugurated their brand-new $400,000 lighting system by beating the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 1, tonight in the first American League night game in history in Detroit. Hal Newhouser took the occasion to hurl his finest game of the season—a two-hitter—for his seventh consecutive pitching triumph.

Barney McCosky, Philadelphia left fielder, crashed into the concrete wall in the eighth inning and was carried off the field with a painful back injury.

McCosky was carried off the field on a stretcher when he collided with the left field wall chasing Wakefield's blow, which cleared the screen for Dick's third homer of the season.

The injury was believed serious at first but a half hour later much of the pain was gone and it was believed to be only a bad bruise in the middle of the back.

McCosky said he struck his head as he fell and had a "dizzy feeling" for a while.

Only one of the Cubs' tallies was earned.

The Boston victory coupled with a 2-0 loss suffered by the New York Giants to Pittsburgh, gave the Tribe sole ownership of first place.

While winning the tenth of their fourteenth night games, the Tribesmen belted three Chicago pitchers for 10 hits and collected 11 bases on balls.

Oyster K. Wins Purse By a Head

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 15. There's no letter "R" in June, but a horse named Oyster K. was in season here today. He withstood a long drive to win the George town University Athletic Association Purse featuring the Tuesday program.

Racing in the colors of G. Y. Booker, a Virginia sportsman, Oyster K, a son of Oyster Bay, survived a thrilling three-way photo to win by a head margin from Mrs. Frank D. Christmas' Friendly Miss. Another head back came E. E. Estenberger's Army Belle to be third in the field of seven.

Jockey Emileo Carrillo, who has had little success at the meeting, put up a fine ride aboard Oyster K to get the 5-year-old home at an $8.40 mutuel. The gelding was clocked in 1:26 2-3 for the about 7 furlongs.

Second Win This Year

The victory was the second in nine tries this year for Oyster K, which carried 122 pounds, giving much weight to her two picture -finish rivals.

The disappointment of the race was J. K. Wynkoop's Dr. Johnson, the favorite. Jockey Freddie Kratz had the 8-year-old close up, but a jam developed entering the stretch and he was unable to get through. Friendly Miss was driven hard coming away from the gate to get to the front, but was soon joined by White Russian. Army Belle was close up and on the outside while Dr. Johnson was being rated within striking distance.

Along the back stretch, Friendly Miss shook off White Russian. Army Belle moved up on the outside and along came Oyster K. Nearing the stretch, several horses began moves behind the leaders and Dr. Johnson and Bitty Blitz got the worst of it.

In the closing drive, a three-horse affair, Oyster K in the middle, had the most punch and barely got up ahead of Friendly Miss. Army Belle hung under a drive, but was a keen factor right to the end.

The day brought a 10-day suspension to Apprentice Jockey R. D. Scott. He rode W. F. Park's Briarbroom home as a $4.40 favorite in the fifth race, but the 4-year-old swerved in during the stretch run.

The day's best ride was by Willie Nartney, the Baltimore [illegible] winning with Eddie DeCamillis' Brest after being all but knocked down at the first turn. Brest paid a healthy $24.40.

Daughtry, Herring Go In Top Bout

Thirty-two Navy boxers compete tonight at 8:30 at Uline Arena for the right to represent their service branch in the United States Olympic finals at Boston June 28.

The show is sponsored by the District A. A. U. and the Navy. Receipts will be divided between the Navy Relief Society and the fund to cover overseas expenses of the United States Olympic team.

The feature attraction will probably be the bout between Washington's A. A. U. welterweight champion, Leon Daughtry and the Navy's K. O. specialist, Hank Herring.

De Pena Fights

Wapinsky Admits He's a Pro; GW Offers to Forfeit Games

Middle Atlantic League. He batted .243 there before placing himself on the voluntary retired list.

"An Error in Judgment"

Wapinsky called his mistake "an error in judgment," and traced his current trouble to his senior year in high school.

"I was pretty good in baseball and football, big and only 17," he said yesterday. "Ed Catalinis, Detroit Tiger scout, wanted to sign me. And University of Pittsburgh offered me a scholarship.

"Though my dad let me make up my own mind, I picked a baseball career. Dad is a miner and the family needed money. Besides, I thought I'd be drafted, so I might as well make some money.

"After serving in the Navy, I decided t ocontinue in baseball temporarily. Then I changed my mind. I wanted to get an educatoin."

"One day," Wapinsky continued,, "a GW representative approached me during a sandlot football game. He asked if I'd be interested in going to college in Washington. I didn't tell him about my pro baseball, and and grabbed at the chance.

"So I Played Quarterback"

"I wanted to major in physical education and become a coach or teacher some day. So I played ball team and catcher on the baseball team, never dreaming that anyone from Hagerstown or Oil City or Buffalo would remember me," said Wapinsky.

"I guess now that my whole life is ruined. I haven't told my girl about this mess yet. We were planning to be married in August. I hope she can take it.

"One of the worst things," said the 5-foot 8-inch 195-pounder, "is that I've hurt the school and especially Coach Zahn, who is the nicest guy I ever met."

"I'd like to continue at G. W. if they'll let me. My marks are better than B, and after all, my primary interest here is in getting an education."

Wapinsky's chances of being allowed to stay at G. W. seemed pretty good. Both Farrington and Dr. Jarman, the latter a member of the faculty disciplinary committee, agreed that Wapinsky's misdemeanor was purely extra-curricular.

Said Dr. Jarman, "Joe's mistake was ethical and moral, but in my opinion, not bad enough to warrant his being dropped from the school's rolls."

Giants Sign All-America Chuck Conerly

New York, June 15 (AP).—New York's football Giants completed a brand-new "dream backfield" today by signing All-American Halfback Charley Conerly of Mississippi to a five-year contract.

Conerly, leading collegiate passer in the Nation last fall, said he had signed for less than the $100,000 dangled before him by Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers in the rival All-American Football Conference.

The bidding was high, however, on the 24-year-old former marine and estimates on his five-year Giants salary ranged up to $80,000.

It had been an open secret since last fall that Conerly would join the Giants, although club officials said actual contracts were not signed until now because Charley wanted to remain eligible for college baseball. He was a right-handed hitting outfielder at Mississippi, but said he didn't expect to play pro baseball.

With Conerly in the fold, the Giants have available a potent backfield including three rookies and pitchin' Paul Governali, former Columbia star, who was obtained from the Boston Yanks in a late season deal last year.

The other rookies are Halfback Tony (Skip) Minisi of Pennsylvania and Fullback Joe Scott of San Francisco.

Redskins Traded Conerly to Giants

Charley Conerly originally was drafted by the Washington Redskins while he was in the Marine Corps. When the Redskins signed Harry Gilmer of Alabama, they traded draft rights to Conerly for the Giants' Howie Livingston and another player as yet unnamed.

44 Entered In 10-Mile Run

Forty-four of the Nation's top-flight distance runners have entered the 10-mile modified marathon race, one of the sports highlights of the Masonic Night of Thrills at Griffith Stadium Friday night, John F. Leiss, chairman of the classic, announced yesterday.

Seven States and the District are represented in the list of runners. Texas and California each have entered a 10-miler.

The classic is scheduled to get under way at 8 p. m., the runners making three laps within the stadium and then taking to a measured course over city streets and finishing with three laps inside the park.

Another phase of the Thrills sports program is a baseball doubleheader, the Silver Spring DeMolays clashing with the Alexandria DeMolays at 1:55 p. m. and the Martin Bombers of Baltimore meeting the champion Quantico Marines at 4:15 p. m. A single ticket is good at both afternoon and night programs. The gates open at 1:15 p. m.

Isaacs Tops Pros With 68 Score

L. E. Cox and Jim Woodward, two Congressional Country Club members, paired with Pro Dave Hendry, to shoot a 33-28-61 and win best ball threesome honors at yesterday's proamateur event at Congressional.

But Jack Isaacs stole the show by winning the pro sweepstakes with a nifty 33-35-68, a stroke ahead of Baltimore's Andy Gibson, who finished with a 33-36-69.

Best ball twosome honors went to Charles Betschler, another Baltimore pro and F. E. Johnson, with 33-31-64. Right behind were Isaacs and Dr. D. F. Dena, with 32-32-64, while Clagett Stevens of Manor and Norman Good were third with 34-31-65.

3 Tied At 65

Three other teams had 65s, but lost out in the draw. They were George Diffenbaugh of Kenwood and Dr. P. O. Pelland; Max Elbin of Burning Tree and Billy Shea and Lawrence Wisner, Edgewood, and H. L. Merrick.

Shea and T. J. Branch tied for the first prize in the amateur sweepstakes gross division with 71's. Shea had nines of 36-35-71 and Branch 37-34-71.

Low net went to Jim Gibbons, whose 86—24—62 was 5 strokes ahead of J. J. Kennedy, 82—15—57; Eddie Warner, who also had a net 67, lost out in the draw with Kennedy. Warner's gross score was 78.

Cox Shoots 70

Behind Isaacs and Gibson in the pro sweepstakes were Wiffy Cox of the home club, who shot a beautiful 36, 34—70 despite his infrequent play this summer. At 71 were four players.

Harry Griesmer, Bethesda Country Club pro, had 35, 36—71; John Kelley, Norfolk, had 36, 35—71; Al Houghton of Prince Georges carded 35, 36—71 and Dave Hendry had 37, 34—71.

Isaacs was top money winner of the day with $135 in his pocket to show for his winning performance in the sweepstakes and his runner-up spot in the best-ball twosome bracket.

Sharkey-Garibaldi Bout Is Tops Tonight

Babe Sharkey and Gino Garbaldi, who claim no world championships but wish they could, tonight feature hostilities in the regular Wednesday wrestling program at Turner's Arena.

The semifinal calls for a 2-man team brawl between Benito Gardini and Mervin Mercer, and Herbie Freeman and Sandor Kovacs. Other bouts pair Tony Cosecnza with Joe Kameroff and Jesse James with Fred Corona. Starting time is 8:45 p. m.

Local Harness Driver Takes Blame on Himself for Losses

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Meredith Capper, who came into harness racing when he grew tired of jockeys' alibis, will have two of his trotters in action during the 20-night Laurel Raceway meeting that gets underway next Monday night.

Capper, 44, Falls Church landscaping engineer, explained it this way: "I raced some thoroughbreds a few years ago, but finally got fed up hearing excuses from trainers and jockeys when they lost.

"I decided to race trotters and drive them myself. Now if I come in last, I know it's my fault."

Capper, 190-pounder who was an All-High football selection at Western in 1924 and a football and baseball star at William and Mary, has won 19 races in the last six years with his trotter Billy Miller (2:14).

Out at Laurel, he's busily getting ready for the races a green 3-year-old trotter, David Astra. He picked up the well-bred colt for only $450 and since has turned down $2500 for him.

David Astra is by Peter Astra (2:01¾), 1939 Hambletonian winner and one of the few trotters to beat the great Greyhound. David Astra's dam, Gloriana, was sired by Spencer (1:59¼), winner of the 1928 Hambletonian.

In the six years he's been in harness racing, Capper has become so enthused about it he has started to breed trotters and now has a training track at Tyson's Corners.

Naiman Upset By Thrifty

Outfielder Charley Masse supplied most of the hitting power and Bill Hess hurled 6-hit ball yesterday to give the Thrifty nine a 13-2 upset victory over Naiman in The Washington Post-Industrial League.

Masse collected three hits in four times at bat, drove in four of the winning runs. A five-run Thrifty uprising in the first frame just about sealed the verdict.

Montgomery Citizens Ask More Money For Schools

1000 Residents Protest Slash Of $544,501 in School Budget

Nearly 1000 Montgomery County residents last night called on their county commissioners to give their schools the money they need.

The crowd overflowed the Rockville Circuit Courtroom where a hearing on the 1948-49 budget recommended by County Supervisor I. G. McNayr had been scheduled.

The hearing was transferred to Richard Montgomery High School gymnasium, three blocks away, and even there more than 200 persons had to stand.

Slashes Budget Request

In his recommendations, McNayr had slashed the schools' $3,429,969 budget request down to $2,885,468, eliminating, school officials said, all proposed teacher pay increases.

As last night's hearing got under way, Commission President Brooks John put the issue bluntly to the protesting citizens.

"We are willing to give you people," he said, "the things you want if you have the intestinal fortitude to stand up and tell us you're willing to accept higher taxes."

Most of the 1000 present stood up, and—at John's request—further indicated they were taxpayers. The spectators included representatives of more than a score of county organizations which had entered the fight on behalf of the schools.

Approval Needed By July 1

The hearing lasted until nearly midnight when the commissioners took the budget under advisement. The new budget must be approved before July 1.

Under the McNayr recommendation for a $6,251,633 budget, the county would have a tax rate of $1.93 per $100 valuation. It was estimated a $2.14 rate would be necessary to meet the schools' request.

Speaking for the few opposing schools' demand was State Delegate John R. Reed who told the commissioners that, while he sympathized with the parents and teachers, he felt they had been carried away by enthusiasm. He said the Montgomery County teachers' pay now averages $200 above that of Washington.

Proposes Compromise

Proposing a compromise, Gerhard Isaac, executive committee member of the Montgomery County Federation of Civic Associations, suggested $125,000 added to McNayr's recommendation would enable the schools to meet their salary commitments. He suggested the tax rate might be limited to $2.

McNayr also had cut police department requests, and four spokesmen were wildly applauded when they argued these requests also be restored.

These spokesmen were: R. Duncan Clark, who described himself as a Bethesda resident; James Pugh, a former State's attorney; James R. Miller, attorney and former State policeman, and Blair Lee 3d, who appeared as representative of the Silver Spring Board of Trade.

City Measures Growth Strain On Welfare

A "very fruitful" beginning was made yesterday toward getting facts and figures on the probable impact of expanding District population on its welfare facilities.

John W. Tramburg, public welfare department director, who called the conference, said after talking with officials representing health, education, police and the District budget that talks would be continued as more information became available.

Among the points brought up in discussion yesterday was the tremendous increase in the city's birth rate.

The welfare department expects it will feel the impact of this increase within the next three or four years.

The causes of school truancy, as they relate to various departments of the city's government, also were extensively discussed.

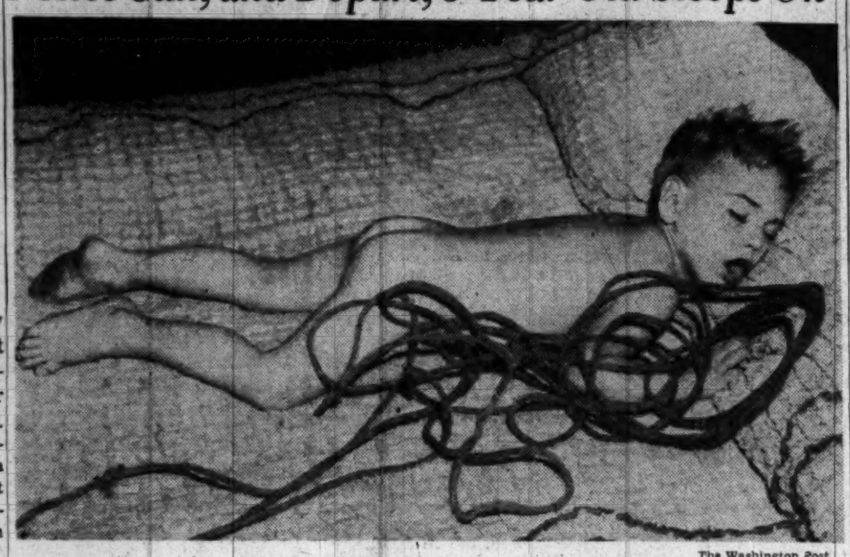
Bobby's Range on Leash Stirs 5th Complaint; Police Call, and Depart; 3-Year-Old Sleeps On



The Washington Post

BOBBY SLEEPS PEACEFULLY, UNMINDFUL OF "STRING" ATTACHED TO HIS WANDERINGS

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

Three-year-old Bobby Haas had another brush with the law yesterday—old stuff to the youngster, to his mother, Mrs. Virginia Haas, and to police.

So commonplace was the engagement that the law made a grinning exit—for the fifth time; Mrs. Haas returned to her housework, keeping a wary, resigned eye on her offspring, and towheaded Bobby slept the sleep of the pure in heart, naked as a jaybird on his mother's bed.

Mrs. Haas, 36, of 2912 13th st. nw., doesn't want the sturdy, agile child playing in busy 13th street. To Bobby, the street is what you find at the end of a rainbow.

So she takes her $1.68 rope, ties one end to the back of the lad's overalls and anchors the other to her bedpost. From there, the youngster roams the first-floor apartment at will, and even the front and back yards, as it moves him, in safety.

Police call upon Bobby and Mrs. Haas at fairly regular intervals because "upstairs neighbors" phone them that the child is tied up, Mrs. Haas said. The scout car pulls up, the officers take a look, the officers depart.

Mrs. Haas, wife of steamfitter Edward Haas and mother of three other young children, said police "approve the idea." She said they "agree it's better to tie him up than have him killed on 13th st."

The long rope was beside Bobby as he slept. Mrs. Haas intends to keep on using it, she declared.

Attorney Hits Montgomery School Books

Pupil's Father Says Some Texts Support Communistic Ideas

An attorney who lives in Chevy Chase complained to Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday that Montgomery County schools are using textbooks containing what he termed Communist propaganda.

The attorney, Franklin T. Miles, 15 Virginia st., Chevy Chase, cited the Rugg Books, the Building America series and the Bruner-Smith books.

He told the commissioners some of the books have been banned in Washington and California. He asked they be removed from the approved list of textbooks in Montgomery County.

Dr. Edwin W. Broome, county schools superintendent, immediately countered that the complaint came "as a complete surprise" and that "it is too bad that public schools have to be subjected to that sort of an attack."

Broome said the Rugg Books had not been used in the county in "seven or eight years." He said "only a few copies" of the Bruner-Smith books, which are co-authored by Miss C. Mabel Smith, county supervisor of instruction, had been bought for reference purposes.

The Building America series he said, were widely used. But, he added, they were issued by the National Education Association.

Miles, father of Albert Miles, 8, a third-grade pupil at Rosemary Elementary School, also criticized school officials for allowing Mrs. Aleksandra Lewis to speak at Montgomery Blair High School on May 26, 1947. Mrs. Lewis' talk at Western High School in Washington on May 6, 1947, caused four students to walk out in protest.

Dr. Broome said he was unaware Mrs. Lewis had spoken at the county high school until it was later called to his attention by State Senator Roy Tasco Davis. Principal Daryl Shaw explained the matter to the State senator and his explanation was apparently satisfactory, Broome said.

President Brooke Johns of the county board said he would arrange an executive session of the board to give Miles more time to air his complaints.

Man, 47, Leaps From Key Bridge; Body Identified

A man identified as Henry F. Warren, 47, of 2484 Phillips' ct., leaped to his death from Key Bridge about noon yesterday. The body was recovered by a Navy diver about an hour later.

The body was identified late yesterday by Warren's brother, Lloyd W. Warren of the same address. He told police the dead man had been despondent since the death of his wife, and has been under treatment for diabetes at Georgetown Hospital. He had been scheduled to report for treatment yesterday.

An old wallet containing 30 cents and a discarded pay envelope with the Phillips Court address were found on the bridge. Warren was an employe of a Georgetown laundry. Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

Man Is Found Dead With Wound in Chest

Harold W. Murray, 41, last night was found dead with a .22-caliber bullet wound in his chest in a second-floor bedroom of his home, 4116 17th st. nw.

Murray was pronounced dead by Dr. Glen Pincock, 4000 16th st. nw., a private physician, who told police Murray had been in "poor health for some time." Police said Murray was found about 10:40 p. m.

Stab Wounds Found

Housewife's, Poison Death Under Probe

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald last night withheld issuance of a death certificate pending investigation of the fatal poisoning of a 56-year-old Washington housewife.

Dr. MacDonald said he wished to know more about the circumstances in which Mrs. Irma Kain, 1323 Dexter ter. se., reportedly took poison tablets in mistake for cod liver oil pills.

He wants an explanation of two minor stab wounds found in the dead woman's chest during his autopsy yesterday.

Mrs. Kain died at 6:30 a. m. yesterday at Providence Hospital. She was reportedly found sick in bed at her home Thursday evening by a daughter, Mrs. Mary V. Dorony, 26, of 114 L ave., Capitol Heights.

Mrs. Dorony told police her mother told her: "I have taken (poison) tablets by mistake," Homicide Squad detectives said.

The ill woman was first taken to Sibley Hospital, then transferred to Providence Hospital on Friday. Neither hospital made report of the stab wounds, though Providence reported her case to police as an "accidental-poisoning" on admitting her, police said.

Mrs. Kain's husband, Louis, a waiter at the Carlton Hotel, was in Richmond, Va., the day his wife took the pills, police investigators said. Mrs. Dorony said it was for this reason she dropped in to see her mother, who, she told police, had been ill for about a year.

Mrs. Kain, a native of Cedar Hill, Md., had lived in Washington for about 20 years, her family said. For several years, after moving here from Baltimore, she was employed at the Raleigh Hotel.

Besides her husband and Mrs. Dorony, she leaves two other daughters, Mrs. Peyton Henderson of the Dexter ter. address, and Mrs. Camille Freitag of R.F.D. 1, Alexandria, Va.

Caldwell's Widow Voted $100 Pension

Prince Georges Amends Regulations, Moves to Increase Police Force

Prince Georges County Commissioners yesterday voted to change county police pension regulations to provide $100 monthly benefits to widows of policemen who die in service.

The approved amendment was made retroactive to June 1 specifically to benefit the widow of Patrolman Charles F. Caldwell, 36, of 3602 43d ave., Colmar Manor, Md., who was slain Saturday night while investigating a stabbing.

The commissioners also took steps to increase the county police force, after a plea by Police Superintendent Major Ralph W. Brown that it was undermanned.

One other patrolman, Pvt. Wallace L. Baker, 24, of 6308 Kilmer rd., Cheverly Manor, Md., suffered gunshot wounds in the Saturday night battle at the home of Thomas Hall, 55, laborer, in Deanwood Park, Md. Baker was reported recovering at Prince Georges General Hospital last night.

Two are Charged

Police have charged Hall, 6-foot, 5-inch giant, and his daughter, Janie Hall, 20, with Caldwell's murder and with assault with intent to murder Baker. The daughter also is charged with assault with intent to murder Willie Preston, jr., 23, of 5317 Nye st., Deanwood Park, who was knifed during the original melee.

Since Caldwell's death, close to $2000 has been contributed to a fund to aid his widow and two sons. Police asked that checks be made payable to the Charles F. Caldwell Fund, and that such checks or other contributions be sent to the County Service Building, Hyattsville, or to police headquarters, Upper Marlboro, Md.

The Metropolitan Policemen's Association last night voted to send a $50 contribution to Officer Caldwell's family.

Funeral services for the slain officer will be held at 1 p. m. today at Fort Lincoln Chapel. Rev. George Gingras of St. Francis de Sales Church here will officiate.

Commendations Voted

Besides voting change in the pension fund regulations, County commissioners also voted special commendations to Roy Lipscomb, A. C. Bradley and the Rev. Robert G. Golden, retired Baptist minister, all credited with aiding the police at the fight.

Police pension fund regulations prior to yesterday's change carried no provision for widows or dependents of policemen killed in line of duty or those who died in service, excepting for refunds of pension dues contributed by the officer during service.

The commissioners, at Major Brown's request, issued notice of police examinations to set up an eligibility list for appointments to the force. The exams, they decreed, will be held at 7:30 p. m., July 15, at the County Service Building, Hyattsville. Applicants must be between 21 to 35, voters and residents of the county, and must bring with them a physician's certificate of their physical fitness.

Explosions Cut Electricity to Fourth of City

'Worst Accident' At Pepco Plant In Northeast Hurts 1, Shuts Off Power

A series of explosions at the northeast plant of the Potomac Electric Power Co. yesterday sent one man to the hospital and cut off current in many parts of the city, but mainly in the northeast area.

The blasts, occurring shortly after 1 p. m., originated in a 13,000-watt reactor in the west wing of the giant generating plant at 33d st. and Benning rd. ne., setting off about 10 secondary underground explosions along a 16-block stretch of Benning rd.

One Pepco official called the blasts the "most unexpected and worst accident" in the utility's history. He estimated one-quarter of the homes in the city were affected—most of them for just a few minutes.

The explosion, attributed to a short circuit, burned out the mammoth reactor on the second floor of the plant, loosing current at such speed that huge underground cables linked with it burst into flames and shot manhole covers 10 and 15 feet into the air.

Hammond L. Odor, 38, of Silver Spring, Md., administrative clerk at the plant, received burns on the face, chest and arms when a manhole cover blew off on the grounds of the plant. His condition was reported good last night at Garfield Hospital.

He was the only person injured.

Greatest over-all upset due to the light disruption came at Gallinger Hospital, where elevators, cooking and laundry facilities were shut down. However, officials immediately put into operation gas equipment and received three portable generators from the local government for use in maternity wards and other quarters.

Superintendent Alvin L. Sweeney said the hospital's power went off at 1:12 p. m. and was restored by 3:45.

Elsewhere in the city power was reported fully restored shortly after 4 p. m., with assistance of Baltimore equipment and temporary feeders pressed into emergency service.

The District jail installed extra guards on electrically controlled cells gates—until their auxiliary power plant was put into operation. The morgue also was without current.

Traffic lights blinked out in various sections because of the power failure and along Benning rd. motorists lined up for at least a mile on either side of 24th st.

One workman, who saw an explosion on the plant grounds, said the flames burst almost 70 feet into the air, looking like "an atomic bomb explosion." Manhole covers were blasted into pieces, he said.

A truck driver, seeking to avoid an explosion at 17th st. and Benning rd., backed his yehicle into a station wagon. Police reported Luther Robinson, 28, of 511 South Capitol st., had stopped for a traffic light when the manhole cover shot into the air in front of him. The station wagon was operated by Horace Beverly, 38, of 1039 Sumner rd. se.

James Ferry, executive vice president of the firm, said a short circuit in a reactor was the cause of the explosions. According to Ferry, the reactor feeds current into the underground cables and serves as a "cushion" for the power drawn from "busses" and generators.

The original blast occurred in the bus room of the plant, which Ferry said was luckily empty at the time. However, its force was so tremendous, he revealed, that a book in an adjacent room blew off a desk into the air and hit a woman seated at the switchboard. She was not seriously hurt.

He said there was little likelihood of a recurrence of the power failure, although full restoration of the shattered equipment is expected to take several days. The PEPCO official estimated inside damage at $4000 to $5000.

The blasts brought speedy visits from Public Utilities Commission Chairman James M. Flanagan and Alfred G. Neal, president of PEPCO.

Bomb-Death Evidence Sent To FBI Experts

Arlington police yesterday sent to FBI laboratories for study a collection of metal and wire fragments picked up at the scene of the auto-bomb slaying of William A. Denekas.

Police Chief Harry Woodyard said he hoped FBI tests would determine what kind of a bomb killed the 30-year-old electrician. Denekas was fatally wounded June 7 when a bomb attached to his car's ignition system exploded as he started the motor in front of his home, 5836 N 21st st., Arlington.

Woodyard said the pieces of wire and metal fragments were found on the ground in the vicinity of the bomb blasted body.

Woodyard said detectives yesterday questioned "several more" persons about the slaying without turning up any new leads.

D. C. Primary Fight Open to Compromise

Democratic Central Committee Willing To Talk With ADA

The District Democratic Central Committee said last night it is willing to sit down with the Americans for Democratic Action and seek a compromise of their controversy over the court-blocked District party primary.

Following a closed meeting, the committee announced that it had authorized its attorneys to open negotiations in response to "overtures from ADA lawyers." Objective of the talks, the committee said, would be to select "other names to be included on the ballot."

Told the news, Local ADA President Benjamin Sigal said his group had made no "overtures" but expressed willingness to hear any proposition the central committee might make.

The primary, originally scheduled for Monday, was postponed indefinitely pending the outcome of a hearing at 10 a. m. Friday before District Justice A. Alan Goldsborough on two temporary restraining orders granted ADA.

The court orders were obtained when the central committee ruled ADA-backed candidates ineligible for the primary, in which delegates to the Democratic national convention and members of the committee will be selected.

Committee Chairman Melvin D. Hildreth denied earlier yesterday the delegates would be bound to support President Truman. "If the voters want someone else," he said, "the delegation must respond."

Hildreth said the committee itself previously had decided to support the President, but declared no attempt was made to eliminate nominees from the primary who might oppose him.

The ADA has announced it favors the nomination of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower or "some other liberal."

New Method in Foaming Fires...

The Washington Post

LOCAL INNOVATION—Men of the District Fire School extinguish an oil blaze with foam from portable machinery. The new technique, developed by Chief Ivan J. Dahlstrom, superintendent of machinery for the Fire Department, consists of installing a 95-gallon tank of liquid foam on the back of each rescue squad truck. When the apparatus arrives at a fire, a ground line is run from the nearest hydrant to the tank through the truck's pump, which greatly increases the amount of chemical and supplies pressure for the hose

Area News in Brief

Man Goes to Sleep Cooking His Dinner

Having a baby may be hard on a woman, but look what it does to her husband!

At least in the case of Robert Davis, 24, of 706 Rock Creek Church rd. nw., who went home yesterday afternoon after a hard day of fending for himself.

Davis' wife is in Garfield Hospital with their 6-day-old son. So husband Robert put meat on the stove and prepared to cook his supper.

Contrary to housewifely practice, however, he went to sleep, and was still sleeping when the meat burnd to an unrecognizable mess, the house filled with smoke and he was carried out to fresh air by two neighbors, Capt. B. C. Kuehling, a retired police officer, and D. H. Morris, a mechanic.

After 20 minutes of oxygen at the scene, and some more on the way to Emergency Hospital, Davis came out of it. He wasn't nearly as worried about his ruined dinner or his smoke-filled lungs as he was that he would miss seeing his wife and child during Garfield visiting hours last night.

CARMICHAEL, LLOYD E. In sad but loving memory of our dear son and brother, LLOYD E. CARMICHAEL, who departed this life (7) seven years ago today on the morning of June 16, 1941.

The stars are shining brightly upon
A silent grave, in it lies a precious one.
We loved but could not save.
He had a smile for everyone
And a heart as pure as gold.
To those who knew and loved him
His memory will never grow old.

Father, Mother and Brothers,
ALONZO AND ROLAND S. CARMICHAEL.

Delegates Are Honored

Moral Rearmament Leaders Are Feted on Visit Here

By Marie McNair

THEIR conference in California ended, delegates to the World Assembly of the Moral Rearmament are stopping off in Washington for a brief visit before scattering to their homes in the four corners of the earth.

Yesterday they met for tea with President, and Mrs. Steelman, and together in the green and tree-shaded garden of Mrs. Vogel's house on Thirtieth st.

Senator Harry Cain, who presided at the press conference held by the delegation earlier in the day, declared, "This is the most significant group to come to Washington in my memory."

They're an earnest, serious lot, leaders from all over the world, whose aims are to bring world unity; to bridge the gulf between East and West, Europe and Asia, Christian and Jew, labor and management.

At this conference, once bitter enemies now work together. There is Baron Karl Karwinsky of Austria, leader of the resistance movement in his country, twice member of the Austrian cabinet and the first man imprisoned by the Nazis. He's worked and roomed with Dr. Josef Kauth, Socialist editor of Austria.

Noted Men Attend

There is Peter Howard of Great Britain, "the Walter Lippmann of England," who gave up his job to throw all his energies into Moral Rearmament and ideological preparedness. There's mild mannered little Dr. Chen Li-fu, just elected vice president of the Chinese Nationalist Parliament, who has his wife, a celebrated Chinese painter, with him. And there are dozens of others equally famous in their own lands. I met Lord Hardinge of England, and the Hon. Elizabeth Harding, his wife, and tall, bronzed Wing Comdr. Edward Howell, O. B. E., D. F. C., who commanded a RAF fighter squadron during the war and wrote his experiences in the book "Escape to Live."

Kensuke Horinouchi, former Japanese Ambassador to the United States, who was recalled from Washington in 1940 because he disapproved of Japan's military program, is one of the first group of democratic leaders in his country to visit Washington since the war. Dr. Michael Horlacher, president of the Bavarian Parliament in the United States zone of Germany, and from the third one-time Axis country are Count and Countess Carlo Lovera de Castiglione and Fausto Pecorari, vice president, Italian Constituent Assembly, and Umberto Calosso, secretary of the Saragat—Socialist Workers Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Steelman and Mrs. Vogel were on the terrace to greet their friends, Mrs. Steelman in a long white gown banded in black lace and Mrs. Vogel wearing a black and white print with accents of green.

Gather on Lawn

Here and there on the sloping lawn or gathered about the buffet tables I saw the Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani; Senora de Belt, wife of the Cuban Ambassador; Mrs. Harry Andrews, wife of the South African Minister; the Minister of Iceland and Mme. Thors, the former Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnik.

In a military line-up were Gen. Franklin Babcock and Mrs. Babcock; Gen. Thomas Larkin and Mrs. Larkin and Gen. and Mrs. Everett Hughes. Glimpsed Leon Henderson and Mrs. Loy Henderson—but not together; Admiral and Mrs. Clark Woodward, Capt. and Mrs. William H. Watson, Gen. and Mrs. Clayton Adams.

Mrs. Junior Owens and her guest, Mrs. Violet Wiggins from Trinidad, were talking with youthful looking Dr. Dieter Sattler, Ministry of Education of Bavari Pouring tea were diplomatic ladies Mme. Koo, Mme. Eriksson, Mme. Thors, Mrs. Nehru, Mme. Bruggmann, Signora Tarchiani, Mme. Economou-Gouras, Mrs. Sairus-Ching and Senora de Belt.

BPW Club Urges Congress To Pass Equal Rights Bill

The D. C. Business and Professional Women's Club at its business session Monday night passed a resolution urging Congress to pass the Equal Rights Amendment at this session.

At the same time, the club's some 900 members indorsed Representative Margaret Chase Smith's candidacy for a senatorial seat. The motion specifically called upon club members in Maine and across the country to render "effective aid to Mrs. Smith in her campaign for the Senate, by assisting through whatever means may be available to them."

A call to action to help elect Margaret Chase Smith to the Senate in the Maine balloting is in keeping with the national policy of BPWC, which is to work for the election and appointment of qualified women to public office.

Telegrams in the name of the D. C. BPWC were dispatched to all members of Congress handling the Equal Rights Amendment bill, including Senators Robert A. Taft, Alben W. Barkley and Kenneth S. Wherry, and Representatives Joseph W. Martin, jr., Charles A. Halleck and Sam Rayburn.

True or False Notes

Rumor Puts Farley's Name In Race as Running Mate For Democratic Candidate

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

NEW YORK, June 15.—Rumors drifting through Manhattan's hoity-toity circles are that James A. Farley will be running mate to any Democratic presidential candidate. True or false? We wouldn't know, but since weather's warming, this department's thoughts turned to the former Postmaster General's present occupation—big shot Coca-Cola promoter. Knowing Farley neither smoked nor drank alcohol, the question was, did he imbibe the product he sold. We queried Gene Cavallero, proprietor of the Colony Restaurant, Farley's favorite bistro. Mr. Farley does indeed lap up the liquid, but usually it's disguised with considerable elegance.

For his taste, Gene fixes up a CC special and a CC Farley. The former is a long drink shaken up with a generous quantity of cocoanut milk. The latter is shaken up with a mass of mint leaves chopped excessively fine plus a dash of lemon. "It looks," said Gene, "just like what a lawn mower leaves behind."

Mrs. Farley, we regret to state, always takes a champagne cocktail concocted from imported vintage wine. Morton Downey goes in for the Farley potion, liberally diluted with Maraschino.

Perle Mesta Entertains

SPEAKING of the Colony, we were pleased to discover that Mrs. Perle Mesta is keeping up with her entertaining schedule, and gave a cozy luncheon for Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, Mrs. Joseph Davies and the Duchess of Windsor. After a farewell party given by Edwin Fish, one of Long Island's most eligible (upper bracket in age and income) bachelors, the Windsors will set sail for the Riviera. They spent so much money, the Duchess confided, they can't return until the Palm Beach season is well under way. Meanwhile, last weekend the Duke threw in the ball at the first of the International polo matches and her grace with real grace presented prizes to the conquering centaurs.

In The Glamour Spotlight

COPPING the New York glamour spotlight for the nonce are two young actresses—Meg Maundy, a former model who's made a hit in "The Respectful Prostitute," and ethereal Jennifer Jones, who invariably wears black and with equal invariability is seen in the company of David Selznick. Another attractive wench is Parisienne Susie Solidor who sings at the Versailles and steps out extra curricularwise with M. Arpels, the well known jeweler.

Meanwhile Ray Milland, whom everyone wants for dinner, is allowed out on his own only if he goes to the Colony. His wife made this ruling—scarcely flattering to the Colony's feminine clientele!

Stanton Griffis, erstwhile Ambassador to Poland, has been flitting in and out of New York, smiles creasing his usually sober countenance. The reason supposedly is his still unannounced but closely approaching marriage to the widowed Mrs. Philip Benkard. Stanton has been married twice. His last wife was lovely Whitney Bourne, now Mrs. Arthur Choate. Anne Benkard, the former Ann Ditchburn, who made a hit in musical comedy, has been twice widowed, her first husband being Rudolph Schirmer of the music publishing firm.

Gregory Carmichael To Fete Dr. Miller

GREGORY NOYES CARMICHAEL will entertain at a small reception on Friday at 6 p. m. in honor of Dr. Albert Miller, well known portrait photographer, at Dr. Miller's studio, 1310 19th st. A collection of Dr. Miller's photographs of famous Washington personalities done over a period of years will be on exhibition.

Mrs. Walter Ezekiel was installed president of the Business and Professional Division of Hadassah at a dinner meeting last night at the Kenmore.

Others taking the oath of office included Miss Ida Kessner, educational vice president; Miss Marian Goldman, fund-raising vice president; Miss Ethel Wolf, membership vice president; Miss Betty Rabenovetz, treasurer; Miss Fannie Tanenbaum, financial secretary; Miss Helen Houck, recording secretary; Mrs. M. Reisfeld, corresponding secretary, and Miss Ethel Felter, assistant corresponding secretary.

A Nation-wide protest to Congress against cutting appropriations for the European Recovery Program was voiced yesterday by the American Association of University Women through its national, State and branch officials.

Three of the AAUW national committees — international relations, legislative and social studies —are backing the call to action issued to all State presidents as well as to the 1048 branches, following the House of Representative's vote to cut ERP appropriations 25 per cent below the amount authorized by the Economic Cooperation Act.

The AAUW, an organization of more than 100,000 college trained women, put its full strength behind the Marshall Plan, and strenuously objects now to any variation of policies which would jeopardize the ERP program, according to a statement issued by AAUW headquarters here.

Dr. Louise Pearce of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research at Princeton, N. J., who will be one of the main speakers tonight when the State presidents hold a forum discussion on international relations, termed the House action "a departure from the principle of reconstruction already fixeed by law." The forum will be one of the featured highlights of the State president's four-day conference opening this morning at the National Cathedral School for Girls. Dr. Pearce heads the AAUW's national committee on international relations.

After 19 Years' Marriage, Woman Gets Divorce And Immediately Realizes She Made a Horrible Mistake in Doing So, But Husband Holds Aloof

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Henry and I were married 19 years ago, and in January of this year we were divorced. On the day of divorce, black despair descended on me and I have been in hell ever since. I can see the horrible mistake I made and would give anything in the world to wipe it out.

I love Henry with all my heart and would spend the rest of my life making amends for the wrong I've done him if only he would come back to me. But he says he is afraid I would act the same as before and I don't know how to convince him I wouldn't, unless he gives me a chance to prove I've changed.

We have two daughters who were born in the first two years of marriage and we had a hard time financially, but we managed to prosper gradually and accumulated quite a bit.

They Fought About Money

DURING the lean years I wanted things for the children that Henry felt they didn't need. In fact he thought I was extravagant and we had many quarrels about it, as I felt he was being unfair, which added to friction.

His father was constantly making remarks about my alleged extravagance, instead of letting us work out our own problems, which kept our strife stirred up, but Henry couldn't see that. He took the attitude that I was "against" his parents, although his mother, a good woman, was wise enough to see where the trouble was.

Our girls will enter college next fall and I will be alone then, for I have thrown away the most precious possession of my life. It seems as though I had just waked up, and I can't blame Henry if he doesn't come back, but this has been a bitter lesson for me.

I want to do all I can do to make him happy and the children want us back together again. I need encouragement very much, so please help me if you can.

V. S.

Woman Blames Herself Unduly

DEAR V. S.: Your letter doesn't shed much light on what the shootin' was all about in the 19 years' strife preceding divorce. But I gather that Henry was fully as much to blame as you; egged on, it seems, by an authoritarian dad who nurses great animosity against women, due to some outraged infantile theory that their "demands" on men are insufferable.

The picture one gets of your mother-in-law is a canny wife of the old school, who, though well aware that the menfolk engendered much of your difficulty, found it personally expedient to hold her tongue and not take sides, because she knew the futility and dreaded the fireworks of disputing with them.

You aspired to be more courageous, to speak up for full partner rights and treatment in marriage, and certainly there is nothing wrong with that philosophy, nor with spirited defense of it.

Needs Specialist Help for Hysteria

HOWEVER, when a wife takes that tack she should be psychologically prepared to accept whatever consequences her revolutionary doctrine may precipitate. She should be in truth and fact the mature productive resilient character she is asking her husband to be. And this you weren't, henee your black despair since getting divorced.

You aren't wracked by remorseful love of Henry. If you had him back, incompatiblity would soon be as rampant as before. You are the victim of neurotic panic at the prospect of walking alone, figuratively speaking, even for a little while; a not uncommon state of mind among middle-aged divorcees, by the way.

For advice: At this point you need psychiatric help to dredge up and dispose of the root sources of your hysteria, so that mature self-reliant emotional equilibrium may develop, after which, if you still want Henry, your chances of renegotiating a wholesome alliance will be greatly improved. M. H.

About Mexican Enchiladas, Tacos

I am anxious to make some enchiladas and tacos, but do not know where I can get some tortillas. Is there any place in town where I could buy them? If not, do you have the recipe for them? I would appreciate your sending me the recipe in any case.

J. C.

There is a Mexican restaurant near the corner of Connecticut and Calvert st. nw., and another (about one-half mile this side of Rockville) at which tortillas can be purchased. Or, you can make them at home by following this recipe:

TORTILLAS
1 cup cornmeal
1 cup white flour
1 teaspoon salt warm water

Mix the cornmeal, flour and salt and add enough warm water to make a stiff dough. Set dough aside for 20 minutes. Wet hands in water and mold balls for dough the size of hen's eggs. Pat into paper-thin cakes. Bake on a lightly greased griddle. Brown on both sides.

We inherited some furniture, including beds with spring and mattress, from a friend who has had tuberculosis. For years, however, she has had annual X-ray exams and is apparently free of the disease. It has been 20-odd years since she was in a sanitorium for this reason. Is it necessary for us to fumigate or otherwise use precautions in using this furniture? And if so, what do you suggest? A. L. D.

A public health officer suggests that before using them, you place the mattress and springs out-of-doors in the full sun for at least two days, turning them occasionally so that all sides are exposed to the sun. The bedsteads and other furniture may be washed with mild soap and water, using just enough soap to make a froth. Go over a small portion of the furniture at one time, buffing dry with a soft cloth as soon as washed. As an added precaution, it would be a good idea to place the bedroom furniture out of doors in the sun, too, if at all possible.

PETUNIA!

When the hot sun blisters
And the hot winds scorch,
The saddest thing of all
Is the milk upon the porch.

Right, Petunia! Store your milk FAST, in the coldest part of your refrigerator. Even a moderate temperature robs it of vitamins.

U. S. Faces Losing War If Reds Overrun Europe, Nixon Says

College Park, Md., June 15 (AP). "We are going to get into a war, a war we are going to lose" if the Communists are allowed to continue their European expansion, Representative Nixon (R., Calif.) said today.

The coauthor of the Mundt-Nixon Communist control bill before Congress spoke to about 1100 State farm women enrolled in the University of Maryland's annual short course.

Speaking in favor of the European Recovery Program, Nixon said, "Unless we do something to get these countries on their feet, the Communists are going to sweep into Italy and France."

Great Britain would be forced to follow, even against the will of the majority of its people, the Congressman predicted.

"If that happened, we are going to get into a war, a war we are going to lose."

Nixon said he doesn't agree with those who feel war is inevitable, but that "the shortest road to war is to allow the Communists to take by default the great power and freedom centers of the world."

The "students" participating in the twenty-second annual instruction course for rural women are taking such subjects as music appreciation, journalism and parliamentary law.

Other guest speakers during the week include Mrs. Hugh Butler, public speaking instructor from Georegtown Junior College; Roscoe Drummond, Washington bureau chief of the Christian Science Monitor; Mrs. Helen Carlton-Smith, vice president of the Associated County Women of the World, Alexandria, Va., and Dr. Ernest G. Osborne, professor of education, Columbia University.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING BY MINIMUM WAGE AND INDUSTRIAL SAFETY BOARD ON JUNE 24, 1948, FOR MANUFACTURING AND WHOLESALING OCCUPATIONS — The Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board of the District of Columbia, having, on June 1, 1948, approved the recommendations of the Manufacturing and Wholesaling Occupations Wage Conference for minimum wages for women and minors engaged in these occupations, as stated hereinafter, gives notice as required by Section 12 of the Minimum Wage Law that it will hold a public hearing at 8 p. m. Thursday, June 24, 1948, at the Municipal Center Building, 300 Indiana Ave. NW., at which time all persons who wish to speak on the recommended wage standards may do so.

DEFINITIONS — (a) "Manufacturing and wholesaling occupations" include the preparing, producing, or processing, or the selling or offering for sale at wholesale, of any goods, wares, merchandise, articles, or commodities, and all occupations, operations and services connected therewith or incidental thereto. (b) "Employer" includes anyone acting directly or indirectly in the interests of an employer in relation to an employee in the manufacturing and wholesaling occupations. (c) "Employee" means any woman or minor who is employed or permitted to work in any manufacturing and/or wholesaling occupation. (d) "Working time" includes all time during which (1) a woman or minor is required to be on the employer's premises, or to be on duty, or to be at a prescribed work place; and (2) woman or minor is suffered or permitted to work, whether or not required to do so. Such time includes, but shall not be limited to, time when the employee is required to wait on the premises while no work is provided by the employer and time when the employee is required or instructed to travel on the employer's business. Provided, however, that time allowed for one regular meal period within each employee's workday shall not be counted as working time. (e) "Wages" means unconditional payment in cash or by check, negotiable at par, except that an employer may include as part of wages taxes assessed against the employee which are collected and forwarded by the employer to the appropriate government agency in accordance with law. (f) "Uniform" shall mean any item of clothing worn by an employee to meet a condition of employment, or in compliance with any District of Columbia law, rule or regulation. (g) "Voluntary absence" means an absence which is not designed or planned by the employee and/or employer to evade the Minimum Wage Standards.

MINIMUM WAGE STANDARDS—No employee in manufacturing and wholesaling occupations shall be paid less than the following minimum wages and wage rates for working time: (a) Office and plant employee and all other employees except those listed in subsection (b) below: $30.00 for each week in which working time is 32 hours but not more than 40 hours; 85c per hour for working time of less than 32 hours in any week. Exception: Rate for students under 18 years of age—65c per hour for working time of less than 32 hours for a student under 18 years of age, provided that the employer has on file a student certificate issued by the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board. The 65c rate is applicable for 9 (nine) months after the original issuance of the student certificate; thereafter, the regular part-time rate of 85c per hour shall be paid. Overtime rate: $1.12½ per hour for working time in excess of 40 hours per week, which is time and one-half of the minimum rate. (b) Maids and cleaners: $26.40 for each week in which working time is 32 hours but not more than 40 hours; 75c per hour for working time of less than 32 hours in any week. Overtime rate: 99c per hour for working time in excess of 40 hours per week, which is time and one-half of the minimum rate. (c) Minimum daily wage: an employee shall be paid for 4 (four) hours for each day on which she reports under general or specific instructions, but is given no work or works less than 4 (four) hours. The requirement to pay the minimum daily wage does not apply to minors who regularly attend school as full-time students on days when school is in session. (d) Apprentice wage permit: Upon presentation of evidence that an employee has been registered under the District of Columbia Apprenticeship Law, the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board may grant, for a 12-month period from the date of application, the payment of a rate not less than 80% of the minimum weekly rate established in this order.

REGULATIONS TO SAFEGUARD MINIMUM WAGE STANDARDS — (a) UNIFORMS—When the employee furnishes and launders her own uniform an amount of $1.50 per week shall be paid in addition to the minimum wage required by this order. When the employee furnishes but does not launder her own uniform an amount of 50c shall be paid in addition to the minimum wage required by this order. (b) COMMISSIONS AND PIECE RATE PAYMENT—Irrespective of the basis of payment used, whether time rate, piece rate, bonus or commission basis, the employee shall be paid not less than the applicable minimum wage each week. In computing the minimum wage, bonus or commission earnings shall be counted in the week in which they are earned, and in no circumstances shall they be averaged for two weeks or longer. (c) NO DEDUCTION PERMITTED—No deduction, except as required by law, may be made from the minimum wage without special approval of the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board. (d) TIPS—In no event shall tips or gratuities from patrons or others be counted as part of the minimum wages. (e) APPLICATION OF ORDER—The minimum wage rates established by this order shall apply equally to all employees except those for whom the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board has issued a handicap license.

BARNABY

This license has the dog's name as "Mister O'Malley" and the owner as "Gorgon Baxter". Barnaby confused that clerk with his chatter about his imaginary Pixie—
Mr. O'Malley, my Fairy Godfather, says a dog can't own him. But Gorgon says, it—
Dogs don't talk and Pixies don't exist, son . . . And what would a dog do if he owned anybody? . . . It's ridiculous—
But—
Lie down . . . Play dead . . . Come on now . . . Beg . . . Give me your paw—Barnaby, this is ridiculous!

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

All "Bum Mots" Aren't By Goldwyn

ENGLISH SPOKEN HERE?

Hal Feyling of 812 K st. se. takes issue with a Washington Post editorial which credits Hollywood's Samuel Goldwyn with first saying, "I should have stood in bed."

Hal contends that the gem was first coined by Joe (Yussel the Muscle) Jacobs, of Jacobs Beach.

My recollection is that Hal is right, and that Jacobs gave that sentence to posterity during the period when he thought Funk & Wagnalls were middleweights, and tried to match them for a title bout.

Our editorial writers were no doubt confused by that authentic Goldwynism, "Include me out." Connoisseurs will recognize the difference in technique instantly.

Goldwyn's is the malapropism, but it lacks the 7th ave. idiom which characterises Jacobs' mot.

By way of illustration, the Goldwyn touch cropped up some years ago in a discussion of scenario writers for a forthcoming production.

When the Great Man suggested a certain writer, his aides shook their heads. "He's too caustic."

"Get him anyhow," ordered Goldwyn. "Hang the expense."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

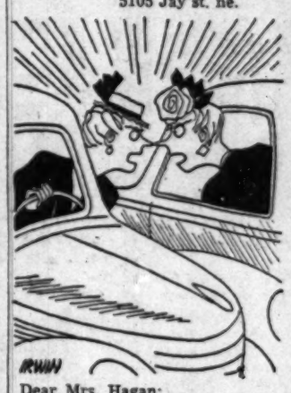
While Mr. Keneipp is weeding out the District's unsafe drivers, what can he do about unsafe drivers from Maryland? It seems to me that they're the worst offenders.

They make left turns and right turns and U-turns from any lane they choose, and usually without benefit of hand signals.

I've seen many near-accidents, just because some Maryland driver thought there was nobody else on the street except himself.

And if anything is said to them, they have the gall to argue back.

Mrs. Ethel B. Hagan,
5105 Jay st. ne.



Dear Mrs. Hagan:

I can sympathize with your feeling of exasperation, but I think we ought to keep a couple of points in mind.

Many drivers from nearby Maryland are just as law-abiding on District streets as any of us. The ones who usually cause the trouble are those from further away, who are infrequent visitors here.

I, too, have jammed up traffic in a strange town, because when I'm unfamiliar with the terrain I'm apt to be in the wrong lane or make other mistakes which cause the hometowners to cuss me out.

And even right here at home there have been times when I've "goofed off," perhaps letting my mind wander when it should have been concentrating on traffic conditions.

I'll concede that out-of-town drivers are a problem. But we need their tourist dollars—and Mr. Keneipp can't very well bar them.

So maybe the best solution is to make our traffic signs and signals as simple as possible, so that even strangers will be able to understand them.

And the best place to start is with those green arrows which sometimes mean yes, sometimes no, and sometimes maybe.

Bill.

NEW YORK.—This week, Diego Rivera, the painter, announced in Mexico City that he was seeking to rejoin the Communist Party. His first resignation from the party, when he gave refuge to Leon Trotsky, was followed by a series of melodramatic events, including a flight across the border to escape assassination . . . During his anti-Red period, Rivera told me, in discussing Earl Browder's reaction to the Nazi-Soviet pact: "Browder isn't thinking anything. Communist leaders are not supposed to think—but only to take orders" . . . Of Henry Wallace he said: "A good man, but he prays to God too much, and that's bad—because it postpones the revolution" . . . And of Mexico's six-year presidential term Rivera complained: "It's terrible. A six-year term is too long for a democracy and too short for a dictatorship."

Gene Fowler asked his publisher to get a male editor for his biography of Jimmy Walker. "I like the Walker story," Fowler explained, "and I'm afraid that a female editor won't see eye-to-eye on such matters as baseball, boxing and extra-marital affairs."

All the biographies of James Caesar Petrillo mention the story of his being kidnaped, but no details ever have been revealed. This is an unpublished sidelight of the kidnaping: Melvin J. Purvis, then in charge of the FBI's Chicago office, sent a G-man to Petrillo's office. The union leader refused to see him. Purvis then sent five men, and Petrillo came reluctantly but peaceably . . . He was kept for four hours in a detention room and then the FBI men asked him three questions: "Were you kidnaped? (2) How much ransom did you pay? (3) Where did you get the money?" . . . Petrillo insisted (1) He wasn't kidnaped. (2) He wasn't kidnaped and (3) He wasn't kidnaped." The FBI marked the case closed.

The Technicolor-processing of the RKO film, "The Boy With Green Hair," was delayed temporarily because some technicians, who were examining only the film and paid no heed to the plot, reported that for some strange reason the boy's hair kept coming out green . . . The Habimah Players will go to Grossinger's on Tuesday, for 10 days . . . Gen. Eisenhower points to Bernard Baruch as an example of how a man can best serve his country by not being President.

Jan Christiaan Smuts, who was defeated in the South African elections, was a favorite of the correspondents who were covering him during the war. It was from him that they learned that Montgomery was replacing Gen. Auchinleck in the fight against Rommel. At that time Smuts would send six cases of brandy to the commanding officer of each army. The correspondents saw Smuts point to the case marked for Auchinleck and got their story when they heard Smuts say: "Don't send this. He won't be there— and his successor doesn't drink."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Taft Always Right Second Time

By Drew Pearson

(Editor's Note: On the eve of the Republican convention, Drew Pearson begins a series of columns diagnosing the prospective Republican candidates. Today's column discusses Senator Robert Taft.)

If the members of the United States Senate had their choice in selecting a Republican candidate for President, most of them would vote for Robert Alphonse Taft.

SENATOR TAFT

This is because they like him, consider him a square-shooter, a man who always keeps his word. And this goes for a lot of Democrats, too. Even when they disagree with Taft, they pay tribute to his honesty and courage.

This, in a body where men live cheek-and-jowl, know each other's faults and failures, is no mean compliment.

It is also said in the Senate, even by those who like him, that: "Bob Taft is always right the second time."

And a friendly examination of his record indicates that this is true. Sometimes, in fact, Bob has had to wait for the third or fourth round to get right.

In 1943, for instance, Taft led the fight against the Roosevelt aid-to-education bill, and defeated it. This year he is leading the fight for it. In explanation he frankly states: "I had to give the problem a lot of study and saw there was a real need."

But it took five long years for Taft to wake up to that need—five years during which school houses bulged, new war babies grew up, and the literacy rate in the United States dropped to a level comparable with Russia's.

Two years ago, also, Taft was leery of veterans housing. Now he has led the fight for long-range housing, including help for veterans' housing. Two summers ago he was blasting the OPA and on July 1, 1946 flatly predicted: "The President's figures on possible price increases are a wild guess and for the most part dead wrong."

Prices, of course, have been going up ever since. And today, June 16, 1948, prices are much nearer the figure set up by Harry Truman than by Bob Taft.

In January, 1947, Harry Truman sent to Congress an economic recommendation for the Nation, which didn't go down with the Republican Senate at all. But in September of the same year, Bob Taft, speaking before the Commonwealth Club of San Francisco, outlined the same general program.

Once again Bob Taft was right the second time.

Taft Appraises Self

It is doubtful if Taft had his own changing social and economic views in mind, when, back in 1939, he remarked to a friend:

"They say I've improved since I've come to the Senate, but I'm just the same as I ever was."

However, it is a fact that Taft has improved. He is still just as brusque, just as frank, just as inclined to step on people's toes—though with such open-faced honesty that you have to admire it. But Taft has changed when it comes to policies—and changed radically. He has become more liberal.

For a man of Taft's background this is a revolutionary change. For you have to remember that he springs from a family that put one grandfather in the Grant cabinet as Secretary of War, sent another grandfather as Ambassador to Russia, elected one President of the United States, and that the Taft family, owners of utility stocks, real estate and a prosperous Cincinnati newspaper, is one of the wealthiest in Ohio.

The tax laws that Taft sponsored while an Ohio State Senator, for instance, in no way hurt the family fortunes. Nor have the tax revisions voted by the Republicans at this session of Congress been much different. However, those who watch Taft daily detect a steady shift away from the rank reactionarism of House Republicans who would dump everything in the lap of big business, and predict that, one year hence, Taft will be proposing just as heavy high-bracket taxes as Harry Truman.

Once again, they say, Bob Taft will be right the second time.

Taft the Isolationist

In these difficult days, however, a President of the United States has to be right most of the time, the first time up to bat.

Especially he has to be right on foreign policy. And, although some isolationists still consider Taft right, the majority of the Nation and Congress has voted him wrong on the most vital foreign problems facing the Nation.

Before Pearl Harbor, for instance, Taft opposed every single major defense issue. If Congress had followed his leadership we would have been so miserably prepared that the Axis could hardly have been defeated.

Since the war, Taft has also been opposed to most of Vandenberg's foreign-affairs leadership. He was strong for curtailing the Marshall Plan—if passed at all. And even after the Russians moved into Czechoslovakia, the Republican leader of the Senate claimed that Truman was merely using the Russian bogey to stir up a war scare.

Anyone who looks up the written records can see that this was pretty much what the Senator was saying a few months before Pearl Harbor. "The situation," Taft told the Nation in August, 1941, "looks infinitely safer."

The Smarter Man

Sometimes his neighbors criticize . . . The man who does not try . . . To gain the wealth for which his brain . . . Appears to qualify . . . Who seems to have the acumen . . . To prosper and expand . . . And win a worthy place among . . . The greatest in the land . . . But I know many brilliant men . . . Who are content to be . . . The moderately successful ones . . . In their community . . . Who do not strive to gather all . . . The glory of their deeds . . . But just the simple comforts that . . . Will satisfy their needs . . . And when the humble and the high . . . Are passing in review . . . I often think the former is . . . The smarter of the two.
